The Clark sisters were seen for the first time in a good while Bertrice Constance and Vivian.

Helen Coleman thought she was the whole darned school when the way she yelled "Let's play ball" That's the spirit, said Bea Austin, "Miss Morgan," with her aegis behind her, and we were that usual smile for dear old Morgan.

Fernie Mallory was seen dancing with Harriet Jackson quite close. By the way they say he takes the young lady home. William Nash was K-O'ed from his chair when the two teams rushed to his corner. Following the game Bubbo Parks was seen on the Spot looking fit after a spell of sickness.

It is very sad, the way some fellows take things, but it is our duty to find something nice to say about my worker and friend. Such a thing can't always be done. I humbly apologize for last week. Million.

Seeing the Counts and friends coming from the formal. They looked rather nifty to me. I am told that the boys really did cut out and all that sort of thing.

I saw Charles Davis at the Spot quite often. That charming waitress, Dorothy Hubbard, just has to hurry up him. I wonder what's doing the rushing?

Margaret Byrd and Oliver Mallory have decided that there's no place like McCulloh Street for a rendezvous, and who knows better than they?

Fay Grimage and Charlie Counts Tough, eh gallois?

Betty Moore and Chaffine Hubbard were doing the town up Saturday night. Miss power to you, boys. You've got something there.
