POETRY.

THE BABY.

BY PAPA.

Come to papa, little darling,
He has been away all day;
Come you precious angel cherub—
Stop you imp, don't kick that way.

Give papa a dozen kisses
From those little ruby lips;
Sweet as nectar from the lillies—
Plague the rascal how he spits.

O, you little laughing rose bud!
Tiny teeth, like pearls, so white;
Let me see—four, five six, seven—
Quit, you villain—stop you bite.

Eyes like sparkling, dancing fountains;
Cheeks that shame the full-blown rose;
Lacks but wings to be an angel—
Oh! he's almost broke my nose.

Bright as dew-drops in the morning;
Merry as a butterfly;
Full of sunshine—ever laughing—
Dare den, baby, don't him cry.

O you precious, sweet plum-pudding,
I do think without a doubt
You would make the goodest dinner—
Nasty wretch! nurse, take him out.

MISCELLANEOUS.

To let—Inquire Within.

Two young damsels and a spinster aunt came in, and after a lengthy inspection of the premises, came to a state council in the parlor.

'I like the house very much,' said the spinster aunt solemnly, 'and with a few alterations I will engage it for my brother's family.'

'Very good, madam,' said Nahum, rubbing his hands, and scenting a speedy termination to his trials. 'Name 'em.'

'The door handles must all be guilded, and I should like the house newly papered in velvet and gold, and repainted, and the partition between the parlors taken down and replaced by an arch, and an extension dining room built on behind, and a bay style of range in the kitchen and a dumb waiter put in, and new bronzed chandaliers throughout, and another furnace in the sub-cellar, and—'

'Hold on, ma'am—just hold on one minute,' said Nahum, feebly gasping for breath. 'Wouldn't you like the old house carried away, and a new one put in its place? I think it would be rather less trouble than to make the trifling alterations you suggest.'

'Sir!' said the spinster loftily.

'I don't think we can agree, ma'am,'

'Very well—very well—come girls.'

With prim dignity the lady marshaled her two charges out, muttering something about 'the extortionate ideas of landlords now-a-days.'

Nahum, wildly rumpling his iron grey hair with both hands, soliloquized: 'Well, if Job had been alive and had a house to let, there never would have been any book of Job written. There goes that bell again; I'll haul it out by the roots if this thing goes on much longer. I'll tear down the bell and put the place up at auction.'

Another lady, but quite different from the other—a slender, little, cast down lady with a head that drooped like a lilly of the valley, and a dress of brown silk that had been mended, and darned and turned and retrimmed, and even Nahum Biggs, man and batchelor as he was, could see how very shabby it was. Yet she was pretty, with big blue eyes and shining brown hair and cheeks tinged with a fair, fleeting color bloomed in vivid carmine. And a golden haired little lassie clung to her dress as like her tiny lilly buds to a bloom chime of flower bells.

As Nahum Briggs stood looking at her there came back to him the sunshiny days of youth—a field of blooming clover crimsoned the June like the waves of blood, and a blue-eyed girl leaning over the fence, with her bright hair barred with level sunset gold, and he knew he was standing face to face with Barbara Wylie, the girl he had quarrelled with years and years ago, and whose blue eyes had kept him an old batchelor all his life long.

'This house is to be let, I believe?' she asked, timidly, with a little quiver in her lips.

'I believe it is, Barbara Wylie.'

She looked up startled with a sudden flash of recognition. And then Barbara turned very pale, and began to cry with the little golden haired girl clinging to her skirts and wailing—

'Mamma—mamma, what's the matter mamma?'

'Nothing, now,' said Barbara, resolutely brushing away the tears. 'If you please, Mr. Briggs, I will look at the house. I am a poor widow now, and very poor, and—and I think of keeping a boarding house to earn my daily bread. I hope the rent is not very high?'

'We'll talk about the rent afterwards,' said Nahum, fiercely swallowing down a big lump in his throat that threatened to choke him. 'Come here little girl and kiss me. I used to know your mamma when she wasn't much bigger than you are.'

Barbara, with her blue eyes still drooping, went all over the house without finding a word of fault, and Nahum Briggs walked at her side, wondering if it was really fifteen years since the June sunshine lay so brightly on the clover fields.

'I think the house is beautiful,' said meek Barbara, 'will you rent it to me, Nahum?'

'Well, yes,' said Nahum, thoughtfully; 'I'll let you have my house, if you want it, Barbara.'

'With the privilege of keeping a few boarders?'

'No ma'am!'

Barbara stopped and looked wistfully at him.

'But I don't think you understand how very poor I am, Mr. Briggs.'

'Yes, I do.'

'And that I cannot afford to take the house without the privilege of taking boarders.'

'I'll tell you what, Barbara,' said Mr. Briggs, dictatorially, 'I'll give you the privilege of keeping just one boarder, and him you will have to keep all your life long, if you once take him.'

'I don't think I quite understand you Nahum Briggs,' but she blushed very becomingly, and we are rather inclined to think she told a naughty little fib.

'What do you say to me for a boarder, Barbara?' said the old batchelor, taking both the widow's hands in his. 'Barbara, we were young folks once, but there is no reason why we should be old fools now. I like you as well as ever I did, and I'll do my best to be a good husband to you, and a good father to your little girl, if you'll be my wife.'

Barbara blushed again, and hesitated, but Nahum was not to be eluded thus.

'Shall I take down the 'To Let,' Barbara?'

'Yes,' she murmured, almost under her breath.

So Nahum went deliberately out and coolly tore down the bill to the great astonishment and disappointment of a party of rabid house hunters who were just ascending the steps.

'And when shall we be married, Barbara,' he demanded.

'In the summer, perhaps,' said Mrs. Barbara, shily.

'To-morrow,' said Nahum decisively—and to-morrow it was.

'Upon my word, Barbara,' said Nahum, on the first day of May, as he watched his wife's blooming face behind the coffee urn, 'you can't think how much jollier it is with you for a housekeeper, than that hag, Mrs. Parley.'

Barbara only laughed and said, 'he was a dear, good old stupid.'

So the probabilities are that neither Mr. Nahum Briggs nor his brown stone house will be in market again as—'To Let—Inquire Within.'

An Obstinate Remedy.

A doctor in this vicinity was recently called to prescribe for a somewhat illiterate old lady, and as cod liver oil, in his opinion, was the remedy for her complaint, he wrote a prescription for the apothecary to put up, with the Latin formula, "Ole. Jec. Ass."—the unintelligible terms being an abbreviation of "Oleum Jecoris Asselli," in plain English, cod liver oil. The medicine was procured, taken, and in a few weeks the lady completely recovered her health. A neighbor paid her a visit after her recovery, and expressing surprise at her improved condition, inquired the secret of so rapid a restoration. 'Why' said the old lady, lifting both hands in Grateful enthusiasm, 'it was that beautiful medicine, the Oil of Jackass, that brought me on my feet again!' The inquirer called on the doctor soon after with a request for some of the same remedy, and when the physician became aware of the novel rendered of his classics the guffaw which ensued can be better imagined than described.—North Bridgewater Gazette.

A Clerk Puts His Foot in it.

The following circumstance is wholly true, and while it occurred several months since, it has not been publicly spoken of until recently. A gentleman who had long been absent from home, returned, and after a rest he and his wife went to Indianapolis, Indiana, to spend a day or two as pleasurably as the institutions at the Hoosier capital might permit. Going to one of the best Hotels where the gentleman was well acquainted, he registered his name "and lady." The clerk looked at him with a smile and said, "you can't play that on me; that lady has been here half a dozen times with as many men, and each one said she was his wife."—Here was trouble. The gentleman swore, the clerk saw he made an ass of himself. Omitting particulars, we will state that the five or six gentleman were sent for; they met and having divided their greenbacks with the husband, the latter informed them they might "draw cuts" for his wife, since which speech his whereabouts has not been known to interested parties.

Railroad Train Attacked by Wolves

In Paris we have only had the cold, but, as you already know, the South of France has been visited by an almost unparalleled fall of snow. A singular accident is reported to have happened to a train on the Luxemburg railroad on the night of the 18th. This train was composed of nine cars filled with metallic ore, and three cars carrying sheep and oxen. At Marbellan great difficulty was experienced in making headway against the snow, and between Lubiamont and Poix the snow threatened to extinguish the fires, and the engineer was obliged to stop the train and send on ahead for assistance to clear the track. The men who were left were busying themselves in sweeping off the snow that had fallen on the engine, when they heard behind them a low yelping. They turned, they saw against the darkness a semicircular line of fiery points. They were the eyes of famished wolves, five in number, who had been attracted by the smell of the cattle, and were now seated at a few steps from the four men watching. The situation was extremely critical. Except for the fire irons and shovels, the besieging were entirely unarmed, and could have no hope of assistance within three hours. They opened the steam jets and blew the whistle in hopes of frightening the beasts, but with no success. It was determined finally to beat a retreat, and the four men crept in single file along the train, closely followed by the hungry wolves.—They reached the wagons without difficulty, and three of them had succeeded in entering, but as the fourth started, one of the wolves sprang upon him and tore off the flap of his coat. This was the signal for the assault of the entire band, an assault, however, that was so vigorously resisted that the human animals came off victorious, killing one of them. The door of the wagon rolled on its hinges and admitted them into a place of temporary safety, where for two mortal hours they sustained a blockade.—A quarter of an hour's silence after the retreat of the wolves was followed by a frightful tempest of yells and howls from the terrified cattle, which continued to break the monotony of suspense until the arrival of assistance. It has been suggested that henceforth the men in charge of cattle trains in the Winter should be proved with fire-arms, so as to be better able to make a stand when like Red Riding Hood, they met wolves in the forests.—Paris Cor. Evening Post.

Let the Forgiven Fear.

A soldier whose regiment lay in a garrison town in England was about to be brought before his commanding officer for some offence. He was an old offender, and had been often punished. 'Here he is again,' said the officer, on his name being mentioned; 'everything—flogging, disgrace, imprisonment—has been tried with him.' Whereupon the sergeant stepped forward, and apologizing for the liberty he took, said,—

'There is one thing which has never been done with him yet, sir.'

'What is that?' was the answer.

'Well, sir,' said the sergeant, 'he has never been forgiven.'

'Forgiven!' exclaimed the colonel, surprised at the suggestion.

He reflected for a few moments, ordered the culprit to be brought in, and asked him what he had to say to the charge.

'Nothing, sir,' was the reply; 'only I am sorry for what I have done.'

Turning a kind and pitiful look on the man, who expected nothing else than his punishment would be increased with the repetition of his offence, the colonel addressed him, saying, 'Well, we have decided to forgive you.'

The soldier was struck dumb with astonishment, the tears started in his eyes, and he wept like a child. He was humbled to the dust; he thanked his officer and retired; to be the old refractory, incorrigible man? No, he was another man from that day forward. He who tells the story had him for years under his eye, and a better conducted man never wore the Queen's colors. In him kindness bent one whom harshness could not break; he was conquered by mercy, and, forgiven, ever afterward feared to offend.

A Snake in a Stove.

We learn that a gentleman residing in our town some few week ago purchased a lot of old condemned sleepers from the Railroad Company, for the purpose of using them as fire-wood. They were accordingly conveyed to his residence and sawed in suitable lengths for the stove and were used as fuel, and as such gave great satisfaction, until one evening the good wife placed one of the pieces in the stove, when a very strange and remarkable occurrence happened.—Shortly after placing the wood in the stove her attention was attracted by a singular noise in the room, not unlike the crying of a child or the moaning of a person in distress, and upon searching for the cause of it ascertained that the noise proceeded from the stove, and becoming somewhat alarmed calling in her husband and acquainting him of the matter. The gentleman at once advanced to the stove and upon opening the door a strange and fearful sight met his astonished gaze—right in the very midst of the blazing flames was a large black snake writhing in agony, and uttering the piteous noise which had attracted the attention of the lady. The snake slowly crawled out of the stove and dropped on the floor, a veritable 'fiery serpent,' and in a few seconds expired. The snake had doubtless entered a hollow cavity in the Fall, and relapsing into a torpid state, was only aroused when encompassed by the flames.—Hanover Spectator.

BALTIMORE LOCK HOSPITAL.

BALTIMORE, MD.

ESTABLISHED AS A REFUGE FROM QUACKERY.

The Only Place Where a Cure Can be Obtained.

DR. JOHNSTON HAS DISCOVERED THE most Certain, Speedy, and only Effectual Remedy in the World for Weakness of the Back or Limbs, Strictures, Affections of the Kidneys and Bladder, Involuntary Discharges, Impotency, General Debility, Nervousness, Dyspepsia, Languor, Low Spirits, Confusion of Ideas, Palpitation of the Heart, Timidity, Trembling, Dimness of Sight or Giddiness, Diseases of the Head, Throat, Nose or Skin, Affections of the Liver, Lungs, Stomach, or Bowels—those Terrible Disorders arising from Solitary Habits of Youth—secret and solitary practices more fatal to their victims than the song of Syrens to the Mariners of Ulysses, blighting their most brilliant hopes or anticipations, rendering marriage, &c., impossible,

YOUNG MEN

Especially, who have become the victims of Solitary Vice, that dreadful and destructive habit which annually sweeps to an untimely grave thousands of Young Men of the most excellent talents and brilliant intellect, who might otherwise have entranced listening Senates with the thunders of eloquence, or waked to ecstacy the living lyre, may call upon me with full confidence.

MARRIAGE.

Married Persons, or Young Men contemplating marriage, being aware of Physical weakness, organic debility, deformities, &c., speedily cured.

He who places himself under the care of Dr. J. may religiously confide in his honor as a gentleman, and confidently rely upon his skill as a Physician.

ORGANIC WEAKNESS

Immediately Cured and Full Vigor Restored.

This Dreadful Disease—which renders Life miserable and Marriage impossible—is the penalty paid by the victims of improper indulgences. Young persons are too apt to commit excesses from not being aware of the dreadful consequences that may ensue. Now, who that understands the subject will pretend to deny that the power of procreation is lost sooner by those falling into improper habits than by the prudent? Besides being deprived the pleasure of healthy offspring, the most serious and destructive symptoms to both body and mind arise.—The system becomes Deranged, the Physical and Mental Functions Weakened, Loss of Procreative Power, Nervous Irritability, Dyspepsia, Palpitation of the heart, Indigestion, Constitutional Debility, a Wasting of the Frame, Cougas, Consumption, &c.

☞No letters received unless postpaid and containing a stamp to be used on the reply. Persons writing should state age, and send portion of advertisement describing symptoms.

The Doctor's DIPLOMA hangs in his office

DR. JOHNSTON,

Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, Graduate from one of the most eminent Colleges in the United States, and the greater part of whose life has been spent in the hospitals of London, Paris, Philadelphia and elsewhere, has effected some of the most astonishing cures that were ever known; many troubled with ringing in the head and ears when asleep, great nervousness being alarmed at sudden sounds, bashfulness, with frequent blushing, attended sometimes with a derangement of mind, were cured immediately.

TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE!

Dr. J. addresses all those who have injured themselves by improper indulgences and solitary habits, which ruin both body and mind, unfitting them for either business, study, society or marriage.

Times are some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, viz: Weakness of the Back and Limbs, Pains in the Head, Dimness of Sight, Loss of Muscular Power, Palpitation of the Heart, Dyspepsy, Nervous Irritability, Derangement of the Digestive Functions, General Debility, Symptoms of Consumption.

MENTALLY.—The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded—Loss of Memory, Confusion of Ideas, Depression of Spirits, Evil Forebodings, Aversion to Society, Self Distrust, Love of Solitude, Timidity, &c., are some of the evils produced.

Thousands of persons of all ages can now judge what is the cause of their declining health, losing their vigor, becoming weak, pale, nervous and emaciated, having a singular appearance about the eyes, cough and symptoms of Consumption.

DR. JOHNSTON'S INVIGORATING REMEDY FOR ORGANIC WEAKNESS.

By this great and important remedy, Weakness of the Organs is speedily cured, and full vigor restored.

Thousands of the most nervous and debilitated, who had lost all hope, have been immediately relieved. All Impediments to Marriage, Physical or Mental Disqualification, Nervous Irritability, Trembling, Weakness or Relaxation of the most fearful kind, speedily cured by Dr. Johnston.

YOUNG MEN

Who have injured themselves by a certain practice indulged in when alone—a habit frequently learned from evil companions, or at school, the effects of which are manifested even when asleep, and if not cured, renders marriage impossible, and destroys both mind and body, should apply immediately.

What a pity that a young man the hope of his country, the darling of his parents, should be snatched from all prospects and enjoyments of life, by the consequence of deviating from the path of nature, and indulging in a certain secret habit. Such persons must, before contemplating reflect that a sound mind and body are the most necessary requisites to promote conjubial happiness. Indeed, without these, the journey through life becomes a weary pilgrimage; the prospect hourly darkens to the view; the mind becomes shadowed with despair and filled with the melancholy reflection that the happiness of another becomes blighted with our own.

DISEASE OF IMPRUDENCE

When the misguided and imprudent votary of pleasure finds he has imbibed the seeds of this painful disease, it too often happens that an ill timed sense of shame, or dread of discovery, deters him from applying to those who, from education and respectability can alone befriend him. He falls into the hands of ignorant and designing pretenders, who, incapable of curing, rich his pecuniary substance, keep him trifling month after month, or as long as the smallest fee can be obtained, and in despair leave him with ruined health to sigh over his galling disappointment; or, by the use of that deadly poison, Mercury, hasten the constitutional symptoms of this terrible disease, such as affection of the Head, Throat, Nose, Skin, etc., progressing with frightful rapidity till death puts a period to his dreadful sufferings by sending him to that undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveller returns.

ENDORSEMENT OF THE PRESS.

The many thousands cured at this Institution within the last eighteen years, and the numerous important Surgical Operations performed by Dr. Johnston, witnessed by the reporters of the "Sun" and many other papers, notices of which have appeared again and again before the public, besides his standing as a gentleman of character and responsibility, is a sufficient guarantee to the afflicted.

Skin Diseases Speedily Cured.

Persons writing should send that portion of the Advertisement which describes Symptoms; also, be particular to enclose a Postage Stamp to be used on the reply and direct in the following manner: Dr. J. M. JOHNSTON, of the Baltimore Lock Hospital, Baltimore, Maryland. May 23, '65.—

Shriver's Bitter Wine of Iron.

AN exquisite combination of Calisay Bark, Citrate of Iron and Dry Spanish Wine. It has a Vinous flavor very grateful to the palate, with very little chalybeate taste, and will not discolor the teeth, it excites feble appetite, improves digestion, increases the strength, removes the pallor of debility, gives firmness to the action of the nervous system with power to endure fatigue and resist disease.

Calasay's Bark has no equal as a strengthener or restorative, nor rival as an antiperiodic—and in this preparation all the virtues of the Bark are preserved in an eminent degree. Sold at SHRIVER'S West End Drug Store, Westminster, Md. June 21.

The Great Destroyer has come!

Appearance of the Asiatic Cholera in the United States!

THE ZINGARI BITTERS

The Only Sure Antidote for Disease!

As a Preventative it is Infallible!
As a Cure it is Certain!

The appearance of the Asiatic Cholera in the United States has given rise to the just apprehensions of all classes. The National Congress has appointed a special committee to ascertain what means are necessary to insure the proper quarantine at all the ports on the Atlantic coast, while the authorities in the great commercial cities on the sea-board are actively engaged in enforcing such sanitary measures as will secure the cleanliness and promote the healthfulness of the communities in their charge. These proceedings are all laudable. Cleanliness and temperance are the first great essentials necessary to safely guard against attacks from the Cholera, but greater than all these efforts of Congress, more potent than the precautions of municipal bodies, and infallible beyond all doubt is the Great Zingari Bitters,

as a sure preventative of Cholera. The discoverer of the compound part of this Bitters, an eminent Egyptian physician, had much experience in Egypt, where the Cholera rages with tremendous virulence. He had long seen and felt the want of some remedy which would stand at the door of the disease, and so prevent much of the suffering which the human family has been compelled to endure from this scourge. The result of his thoughts and labors at length presented themselves in the production of the wonderful

ZINGARI BITTERS.

It was not long before this Bitters was recognized and accepted in all parts along the Mediterranean coast, in the south of Europe, among the semi-civilized tribes of Africa, and by the abler practitioners of the old world, as the only sure and certain preventative or cure for the Cholera. The ZINGARI BITTERS acts on the organs of excretion and secretion, keeping up a perfect balance between them. It is composed entirely of roots and herbs, so nicely concocted that every organ is affected upon and put into one healthy action. Its effects prompt and lasting.

For travelers who are subject to all the changes of climate and water, the ZINGARI BITTERS is a companion that should never be left behind. It is for sale by all the druggists in the United States.
