POETRY.

A LESSON IN ITSELF SUBLIME.

A lesson in itself sublime,
A lesson worth enshrining,
Is this: "I take no note of time,
Save when the sun is shining"
These motto words a dial bore,
And wisdom never preaches
To human hearts a better lore
Than this short sentence teaches,
As life is sometimes bright and fair,
And sometimes dark and lonely,
Let us forget its pain and care,
And note its bright hours only.

There is no grave on earth's broad chart
But has some bird to cheer it;
So hope sings on in every heart,
Although we may not hear it.
And if to-day the heavy wing
Of sorrow is oppressing,
Perchance to-morrow's sun will bring
The weary heart a blessing.
For life is sometimes bright and fair,
And sometimes dark and lonely;
Then let's forget its toil and care,
And note its bright hours only.

We bid the joyous moments haste,
And then forget their glitter;
We take the cup of life and taste
No portion but the bitter.
But we should teach our hearts to deem
Its sweetest drops the strongest;
And pleasant hours should ever seem
To linger round us longest.
As life is sometimes bright and fair,
And sometimes dark and lonely,
Let us forget its toil and care,
And note its bright hours only.

The darkest shadows of the night
Are just before the morning;
Then let us wait the coming light,
All bodeless Phantoms scorning.
And while we're passing on the tide
Of time's fast ebbing river,
Let's pluck the blossoms by its side,
And bless the gracious Giver.
As life is sometimes bright and fair,
And sometimes dark and lonely,
We should forget its pain and care,
And note its bright hours only.

The lucky father was very solici[redacted] regarding his dear companion's s[redacted] up to the last hour, but when infor[redacted] that all 'was over,' and he was inv[redacted] to congratulate Mrs S. on the h[redacted] termination, a look of fear and a ghostly pallor passed o'er his features, and the proposal was declined. The nurse thinking his sense of delicacy the cause, forbore to urge his presence in the sick room just then; but as the day passed off without the consolation of his attendance, she visited the sitting room again not a little indignant, and insisted that the liege lord should at once go with her to his wife's room.

Evidently with the greatest reluctance, he at last consented; and absenting himself from the house a few minutes, he was seen returning from a neighboring apothecary's, bearing in his hand a large bunch of dried tansy. Ascending the front stair case, he knocked gently at the door, which being opened, he immediately seized, and nearly closed again, standing with his tansy thrust tightly against his nose, and trembling in every joint.

To the amazement of all present, when urged to come in by the feeble voice of his 'better half,' he replied with the greatest trepidation:

'No, no, my dear, I dare not expose myself, for fear of catching the disorder.'

The Clothes-Line Telegraph.

In the early part of 1863, when the Union army was encamped at Falmouth and picketing the Rappahannock, the utmost tact and ingenuity were displayed by the scouts and videttes in gaining a knowledge of contemplated movements on either side; and here, as at various other times, the shrewdness of the African camp attendants was very remarkable.

One circumstance in particular showed how quick the race are in learning the art of communication by signals.

There came into the Union lines a negro from the farm on the other side of the river, known by the name of Dabney, who was found to possess a remarkably clear knowledge of the topography of the whole region; and he was employed as cook and body servant at headquarters. When he first saw our system of Army telegraphs, the idea interested him intensely, and he begged the operators to explain the signs to him. They did so, and found that he could understand and remember the meaning of the various movements as well as any of his brethren of the paler hue.

Not long after, his wife, who had come with him, expressed a great anxiety to be allowed to go over to the other side as servant to a 'secesh woman,' whom Gen. Hooker was about sending over to her friends. The request was granted. Dabney's wife went across the Rappahannock, and in a few days was duly installed as laundress at the headquarters of a prominent rebel general. Dabney, her husband, on the other hand, was soon found to be wonderfully well informed as to all the rebel plans. Within an hour of the time that a movement of any kind was projected or even discussed among the rebel Generals, Hooker knew all about it. He knew which corps was moving, or about to move, in what direction, how long they had been on the march, and in what force; and all this knowledge came through Dabney, and his reports turned out to be true.

Yet Dabney was never absent, and never talked with the scouts, and seemed to be always taken up with his duties as cook and groom about headquarters — How he obtained his information remained for some time a puzzle to the Union officers. At length, upon much solicitation he unfolded his marvelous secret to one of our officers.

Taking him to a point where a clear view could be obtained of Fredericksburg, he pointed out a little cabin in the suburbs near the river bank, and asked him if he saw that clothes line with clothes hanging on it to dry. 'Well,' said he 'that clothes line tells me in half an hour just what goes on in Lee's headquarters. You see my wife is over there, she washes for the officers and cooks and waits round, and as soon as she hears about any movements or anything going on, she comes down and moves the clothes on that line so that I can understand it in a minute. That there gray shirt is Longstreet, and when she takes it off it means that he has gone down about Richmond. That white shirt means Hill, and when she moves it up to the west end of the line, Hill's corps has moved up the stream. That red one is Stonewall, he's down on the right now, and if he moves she will move that red shirt.'

One morning Dabney came in and reported a movement over there. 'But,' says he, 'it don't amount to anything. They're just making believe.'

An officer went out to look at the clothes line telegraph through his field glass. There had been quite a shifting over there among the army flannels.—'But how do you know but there is something in it?' Do you see those two blankets pinned together at the bottom?' asked Dabney.

'Yes, but what of it?' asked the offi-

A Serious Question.

At the close of a lecture on physiology before an evening school not long since the lecturer remarked that any one was at liberty to ask questions upon the subject, and he would answer them as far as he was able. A young lady with much apparent sincerity, remarked that she had a question to ask, though she was not certain that it was a proper question—she would, however, venture to ask it. It was as follows:

'If one hen lays an egg, and another sits on it and hatches out a chicken, which hen is mother of the chicken?'

The lecturer said:

'I will answer you in the Yankee style by asking you a question: If a little, pretty, white, genteel, native pullet sits on an egg, of Oriental extraction, and hatches a great homely, splinter shanked, slab-sided, awkward gaited Shanghai, would you, if you were the pullet, own the great homely monster?'

'No, I wouldn't,' said the lady.

'Very well,' said the lecturer, 'that settles the question for it is a principle in physiology that hens think and act alike in all essential particulars.'

A Conscientious Lawyer

The Danville (N. Y.) Express tells a capital story connected with a prominent lawyer connected with that village, who has distinguished himself in the defense of criminals, as well as in connection with other trials, having frequently, through his skill, aided the most hardened criminals to escape from justice.—Some time ago, while he was attending Court in an adjoining county, he was applied to by a singular specimen of humanity charged with grand larceny, to defend him. The lawyer very naturally inquired what crime he was accused of. The party accused replied that somebody had been mean enough to charge him with stealing $150 in bank notes, and had got him indicted.

"Are you guilty?" asked the lawyer. "That's none of your business," replied the accused. "They say that makes no difference with you; whether a man is guilty or not, you will contrive to dig him out in some way. So don't talk any more about the guilty until you hear what the jury says." "Well, what about the pay?" said the lawyer. 'You just hold on till the trial is over: give L———(the complainant) h—l on the cross-examination, and that other fellow he has got to back him up, and you'll have no trouble about the pay."

The trial commenced and proved to be a somewhat protracted and exciting one. The District Attorney proved that the money in question was composed of two $50 bills on a certain bank, and the remainder all in $10 bills, all of which were wrapped up in a piece of oiled silk. The jury, after listening to the counsel in the case, and receiving the charge of the Judge, retired, and soon returned with a verdict of not guilty.—The accused, who was greatly elated with the result of the trial and the effort of his counsel, invited the latter into one of the vacant jury rooms. As soon as they were alone he slapped his counsel on the shoulder, and exclaimed;

"Free as water, aint I? What's the use of trying a man for stealing when you're around? Now I suppose you want your pay?" "Yes; have you got anything to pay with?" said the lawyer. Lend me your knife and we'll see about that

The Lawyer, slightly startled at such a proposition, rather reluctantly complied, The accused immediately commenced ripping and cutting away at a waistband of his pantaloons, and soon produced the roll of bills for the stealing of which he had just been tried, wrapped up in the identical piece of oil silk described by the witness for the prosecution, and throwing it down on the table before the astonished lawyer, exclaimed; "There, take your pay out of that; I gue s there is enough to pay you tolerably well."

"Why, you villain! you stole that money after all," said the lawyer. "Do you expect I can take any of that money?" "Stole that money! Didn't them twelve men up stairs there just say I didn't steal it? What's the use of trying to raise a question of conscience after twelve respectable men have given their opinion on the subject? Take your pay out of that and ask no questions. Don't be modest in taking; I got it easy enough, and you've worked hard enough for it." Our informant does not state how much the lawyer took, but we presume the chap didn't have much change left after our friend had satisfied his "conselence" in the premises.

A Mixin' of the Babies.

Some time ago there was a dance given not many miles from this place; most of the ladies present had little babies, whose noisy perversity required too much attention to permit the mothers to enjoy the dance. A number of gallant young men volunteered to watch the young ones while the parents engaged in a 'break down.' No sooner had the women left the babies in charge of the mischievous devils, than they stripped the infants, changed their clothes, giving the apparel of one to another.—The dance over, it was time to go home, and the mothers hurriedly took each baby in the dress of her own, and started some to their homes ten or fifteen miles off, and were far on their way before daylight. But the day following there was a tremendous row in the settlement; mothers discovered that a single night had changed the sex of their babies—observation disclosed physical phenomena, and then commenced some of the tallest female pedestrianism; living miles apart, it required two days to unmix the babies, and as many months to restore the women to their natural sweet dispositions. To this day it is unsafe for any of the baby mixers to venture into the territory.—Juniata Republican.

☞ The following amusing incident is related by a Denver paper: Some days ago a young merchant of this city made a bargain with a country lady for two chickens. The lady brought them to his store, and he being busy, she placed them on the end of the counter. Our young friend didn't think that the proper place for them, but did'nt like to say so plainly; so he remarked, as the chickens were trying to jump about, 'They won't lay there will they?' meaning they would likely jump off the counter. His astonishment may be imagined when the lady replied, 'Of course they won't; they're roosters!'

☞ 'Young man, do you believe in a future state?'

'In course I duz; and what's more, I intend to enter it as soon as Betsy gits her things ready.'

How He Lost His 'Ticker.'

A Philadelphia policeman who usually carries a three hundred and fifty dollar chronometer, lost it very nicely one day last week. He was standing at Sixth and Chestnut streets, talking with a friend, when asked, 'How late is it?' Turning to his watch-pocket, he perceived that it was empty, and remembered that he had left it at home. 'I have left my watch,' said he, 'under my pillow, and it is the first time that I ever forgot it.' The day wore on, and the official in question returned to his home. A fine turkey had been left there by a man in the garb of a huckster, at eleven o'clock in the morning, with directions that dinner should be ready at three o'clock. His better half, as he entered the house late in the afternoon, expressed regrets that he had been so belated, and gave utterance to apprehensions that the turkey he sent home had become spoiled by over roasting. This led to inquiry, resulting in a statement by the lady that at eleven o'clock that morning a man had delivered at the door a turkey then awaiting him, at the same time asking for the watch which the huckster had been told to say would be found under the gentleman's pillow. The watch was found there, and delivered to the man at the door without a question. The official was somewhat astounded at the development, but knew enough of the world to understand that some sharper had overheard his remark that morning when asked the time of day, and had immediately started for his home with a view to securing it.

☞ A funny story is going the rounds in New Orleans. A lady in first rebel society was recently obliged to dismiss her nurse on account of an excess of the visits of Yankee soldiers too often repeated. After choosing as a successor to this criminal a very pretty girl, the lady explaining why the first was sent away, enjoined it on the second not to do likewise. She admitted that she should'nt. 'I can endure a great deal,' said the lady, 'but Yankee soldiers about my kitchen I won't endure.' After a week or eight days, the lady came one morning into the kitchen, opened a cupboard, and discovered a youthful military character. Oh, ma'am! cried the frightened girl, 'I'll give you my word I never saw that soldier before in all my life—he must have been one of the old ones left over by the other girl, and been asleep in there!'

☞ The Louisiana Legislature has a bill before it to license gambling houses at $10,000 per anum. The curious feature of the bill is the provision that requires each gambling room to be on the ground floor, fronting on a public thoroughfare, with one or more large windows to the room, so that the passer by may see all that is going on in the room where the gambling is done. It is claimed that in this way the gambling room will be open to the inspection of the police at all hours—to merchants, bankers and others who have clerks—to fathers who have sons, and to the wives of recreant husbands also.

☞ The local of a Lynchburg paper says he saw a woman the other day from the country, underneath a new spoon bowl hat decked with a rooster feather, inside of a tilting "skert" before a huge waterfall, having in her mouth a corn-cob pipe, and in her arms a baby about two months old. She looked like she felt she was in Mahomet's seventh heaven, and was just ready to exclaim, "cut the straps, and let me go to glory."

☞ An Irish girl was ordered to hang the washed clothes on the horse in the kitchen to dry. Her mistress shortly after found a very gentle family horse standing in the kitchen completely covered with the articles that had been washed that day. Upon interrogating the girl the reply was: "Och, to be sure ye tould me to hang the clothes upon the horse in the kitchen, and the baste is the kindest I iver saw, shure."

NEW BONNETS.—The London Punch is very anxious always to record in an appropriate manner changes of fashion. The latest achievement is a picture representing a fashionable and affectionate couple, the husband searching vigorously in his waistcoat pockets. The young wife inquires: "Have you lost your watch, love?" and he replies, "No, darling, 'twas a new bonnet I had for you somewhere."

☞ An old lady was complaining a few days since, in the market, of the extensive high prices of provisions. It is not the meat only that is so enormously dear," said she "but I cannot obtain flour for a pudding for less than double the usual price; and they do not make the eggs half so large as they used to be."

☞ An Irishman who had just landed in Pennsylvania said the first bit of meat I ever ate was a roasted potato, boiled yesterday, and if you do not believe it, I can show it to you, for I have it in my pocket now.

☞ The sweetest word in our language is Love. The greatest word in our language is God. The word expressing the shortest time is Now. The three making the greatest duty man can perform!

BALTIMORE LOCK HOSPITAL.

BALTIMORE, MD.

ESTABLISHED AS A REFUGE FROM QUACKERY.

YOUNG MEN

Especially, who have become the victims of Solitary Vice, that dreadful and destructive habit which annually sweeps to an untimely grave thousands of Young Men of the most excellent talents and brilliant intellect, who might otherwise have entranced listening Senates with the thunders of eloquence, or waked to ecstacy the living lyre, may call upon me with full confidence.

MARRIAGE.

Married Persons, or Young Men contemplating marriage, being aware of Physical weakness, organic debility, deformities, &c., speedily cured.

He who places himself under the care of Dr. J. may religiously confide in his honor as a gentleman, and confidently rely upon his skill as a Physician.

ORGANIC WEAKNESS.

Immediately Cured and Full Vigor Restored.

This Dreadful Disease—which renders Life miserable and Marriage impossible—is the penalty paid by the victims of improper indulgences. Young persons are too apt to commit excesses from not being aware of the dreadful consequences that may ensue. Now, who that understands the subject will pretend to deny that the power of procreation is lost sooner by those falling into improper habits than by the prudent? Besides being deprived the pleasure of healthy offspring, the most serious and destructive symptoms to both body and mind arise.—The system becomes Deranged, the Physical and Mental Functions Weakened, Loss of Procreative Power, Nervous Irritability, Dyspepsia, Palpitation of the heart, Indigestion, Constitutional Debility, a Wasting of the Frame, Coughs, Consumption, &c.

Office, 7 South Frederick Street,

eft-hand side going from Baltimore street, a few doors from the corner. Fail not to observe name and number.

☞ No letters received unless postpaid and containing a stamp to be used on the reply. Persons writing should state age, and send portion of advertisement describing symptoms.

The Doctor's DIPLOMA hangs in his office

DR. JOHNSTON,

Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, Graduate from one of the most eminent Colleges in the United States, and the greater part of whose life has been spent in the hospitals of London, Paris, Philadelphia and elsewhere, has effected some of the most astonishing cures that were ever known; many troubled with ringing in the head and ears when asleep, great nervousness being alarmed at sudden sounds, bashfulness, with frequent blushing, attended sometimes with a derangement of mind, were cured immediately.

TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE!

Dr. J. addresses all those who have injured themselves by improper indulgences and solitary habits, which ruin both body and mind, unfitting them for either business, study, society or marriage.

Times are some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, viz: Weakness of the Back and Limbs, Pains in the Head, Dimness of Sight, Loss of Muscular Power, Palpitation of the Heart, Dyspepsy, Nervous Irritability, Derangement of the Digestive Functions, General Debility, Symptoms of Consumption.

MENTALLY—The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded—Loss of Memory, Confusion of Ideas, Depression of Spirits, Evil Forebodings, Aversion to Society, Self Distrust, Love of Solitude, Timidity, &c., are some of the evils produced.

Thousands of persons, of all ages can now judge what is the cause of their declining health, losing their vigor, becoming weak, pale, nervous and emaciated; having a singular appearance about the eyes, cough and symptoms of Consumption.

DR. JOHNSTON'S INVIGORATING REMEDY

FOR ORGANIC WEAKNESS.

By this great and important remedy, Weakness of the Organs is speedily cured, and full vigor restored.

Thousands of the most nervous and debilitated, who had lost all hope, have been immediately relieved. All impediments to Marriage, Physical or Mental Disqualification, Nervous Irritability, Trembling, Weakness or Exhaustion of the most fearful kind, speedily cured by Dr. Johnston.

YOUNG MEN

Who have injured themselves by a certain practice indulged in when alone—a habit frequently learned from evil companions, or at school, the effects of which are nightly felt, even when asleep, and if not cured, renders marriage impossible, and destroys both mind and body, should apply immediately.

What a pity that a young man the hope of his country, the darling of his parents, should be snatched from all prospects and enjoyments of life, by the consequences of deviating from the path of nature and indulging in a certain secret habit. Such persons MUST, before contemplating reflect that a sound mind and body are the most necessary requisition to promote connubial happiness. Indeed, without these, the journey through life becomes a weary pilgrimage; the prospect hourly darkens to the view; the mind becomes shadowed with despair and filled with the melancholy reflection that the happiness of another becomes blighted with our own.

DISEASE OF IMPRUDENCE.

When the misguided and imprudent votary of pleasure finds he has imbibed the seeds of this painful disease, it too often happens that an ill timed sense of shame, or dread of discovery, deters him from applying to those who, from education and respectability can alone befriend him. He falls into the hands of ignorant and designing pretenders, who, incapable of curing, filch his pecuniary substance, keep him trifling month after month, or as long as the smallest fee can be obtained, and in despair leave him with ruined health to sigh over his galling disappointment; or, by the use of that deadly poison, Mercury, hasten the constitutional symptoms of this terrible disease, such as affection of the Head, Throat, Nose, Skin, etc., progressing with frightful rapidity till death puts a period to his dreadful sufferings by sending him to that undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveller returns.

ENDORSEMENT OF THE PRESS

The many thousands cured at this institution within the last eighteen years, and the numerous important Surgical Operations performed by Dr. Johnston, witnessed by the reporters of the "Sun" and many other papers, notices of which have appeared again and again before the public, besides his standing as a gentleman of character and responsibility, is a sufficient guarantee to the afflicted.

Skin Diseases Speedily Cured.

Persons writing should send that portion of the Advertisement which describes Symptoms; also, be particular to enclose a Postage Stamp to be used on the reply and direct in the following manner: Dr. J. M. JOHNSTON, of the Baltimore Lock Hospital, Baltimore, Maryland. May 23, '65.—

The Great Destroyer has come!

Appearance of the Asiatic Cholera in the United States!

THE ZINGARI BITTERS

The Only Sure Antidote for Disease!

As a Preventative it is Infallible!
As a Cure it is Certain!

The appearance of the Asiatic Cholera in the United States has given rise to the just apprehension of all classes. The National Congress has appointed a special committee to ascertain what means are necessary to insure the proper quarantine at all the ports on the Atlantic coast will the authorities in the great commercial cities on the seaboard are actively engaged in enforcing such sanitary measures as will secure the cleanliness and promote the healthfulness of the communities in their charge. These proceedings are all laudable. Cleanliness and temperance are the first great essentials necessary to safely guard against attacks from the Cholera, but greater than all these efforts of Congress, more potent than the proceedings of municipal bodies, and infallible beyond all doubt is the Great Zingari Bitters,

as a sure preventative of Cholera. The discoverer of the component part of this Bitters, an eminent Egyptian physician, had much experience in Egypt, where the Cholera rages with tremendous virulence. He had long seen and felt the want of some remedy which would strike at the root of the disease and so prevent much of the suffering which the human family has been compelled to endure from this scourge. The result of his thoughts and labors at length presented themselves in the production of the wonderful

ZINGARI BITTERS.

It was not long before this Bitters was recognized and accepted in all parts along the Mediterranean coast, in the seaports of Spain, among the semi-civilized tribes of Africa, and by the oldest practitioners of the old world as the only sure and certain preventative or cure for the Cholera. The ZINGARI BITTERS acts on the organs of excretion and secretion, keeping up a perfect balance between them. It is compounded entirely of roots and herbs, so nicely concocted that every organ is acted upon and set in tone. Its taste is pleasant and its effects prompt and lasting.

For travelers who are subject to all the changes of climate and water, the ZINGARI BITTERS is a companion that should never be left behind. It is for sale by all the druggists in the United States.

It is 22 miles from Alexandria, and the house is within three minutes walk of the Station. The location is one of the most healthful in Fairfax County, Virginia or indeed in the State.

The Dwelling House contains 8 Rooms, an ample Hall, good Pantries, and a large Cellar. There is also a Kitchen containing four Rooms, a Tenant House with four Rooms, two large Barns, a Stone Dairy House, 2 fine Springs of excellent Water, two Corn Cribs, capable of storing 250 barrels of Corn; a Tool House, Smoke House, Stables, Sheds, &c. The Barns will hold at least 100 tons of Hay. The improvements could not be made for less than $10,000 at this time.

This desirable and valuable property will be sold for $12,000, one-third in cash, and the balance in three annual installment, with interest. The owner's reason for selling is that he wishes to remove to the City of Westminster, Md., to engage in the practice of the law, which is his legitimate profession. He would take suitable property in Westminster as payment in part for the Farm. For further information address or call upon
