Mr. Hearst Predicts Defeat Of Al Smith On Rum Question

"Paris, Aug. 29, 1928.

"Editor the Brooklyn Eagle, Brooklyn, N. Y.:

"Apparently the Democratic party is endeavoring to make its opposition to prohibition the dominant issue of the campaign. I doubt, however, if the Democratic party can make prohibition the dominant issue and, furthermore, I do not believe the party could win on that issue even if it could make that issue dominant. I say this notwithstanding the fact that I believe prohibition is proving itself a failure in America just as it has proved a failure in every other country in which it has been tried. Nevertheless, a vast majority of the people of America are temperance people and have not as yet lost faith, or at least hope, in prohibition as a temperance measure.

"There is a popular belief that prohibition was imposed upon the country during the war, while a majority of our voters were unable to register their disapproval. But the plain facts are that more than two-thirds of the 'local option' districts of the United States were dry long before the war and that the dry Federal act was but the national and natural expression of that dry local option majority. The people of these same districts are still dry and are not going to change Constitution or legislation until they have lost faith in prohibition as a remedy for the liquor evil. I believe that day will arrive, but I do not think it has arrived.

"My second reason for not believing that opposition to prohibition can be made a dominant or successful issue in this national Presidential campaign is that every intelligent person knows that the President has absolutely nothing to do with making laws or altering the Constitution. The President is an executive officer. He executes laws which are made by Congress and Congress must make laws in accordance with the Constitution else the Supreme Court nulifies them by declaring them unconstitutional. This is not merely elementary, it is rudimentary. It is within the knowledge of every pupil of a primary school. The Constitution of the United States has prohibition written into it by a vote of three-fourths of the States of the Union. The President of the United States is solemnly sworn to uphold the Constitution. As long as prohibition is in the Constitution, the President must uphold it just as he must uphold every other provision of the Constitution. Otherwise he would be a perjurer and a traitor and should be impeached and would be impeached.

"When Mr. Raskob asks Mr. Hoover what his attitude will be in regard to prohibition if he is elected President, Mr. Raskob is talking nonsense and knows it. At least I hope for the sake of General Motors that he knows it. What can any President's attitude be towards prohibition as long as it is in the Constitution? He must either uphold the Constitution, as he swears to do, or he must defy the Constitution. And how can we elect any man President of the United States who would declare that he would defy the Constitution? And how do we know that if he would defy the Constitution in one respect he would not defy it in other respects?

"There is enough defiance of law by private citizens. Must we also have defiance of the Constitution by the President to please Mr. Raskob? Let us all be sincere in these important matters and, if we can't be sincere, let us at least be sane. The President is compelled to uphold the Constitution and if the people do not like what is in the Constitution, they (the people) must change the Constitution. The President cannot change it. Congress cannot change it. No Federal official can alter it in any respect. The only way the Constitution can be changed is by a vote of three-fourths of the States of the Union. A vote of three-fourths of the States of the Union put prohibition into the Constitution and only a vote of three-fourths of the States of the Union can take it out. The question of prohibition must be fought out in the States. The people of the States, the Legislatures of the States, have the power to take prohibition out of the Constitution. There is no other power.

"The President can only talk, and it is to Mr. Hoover's credit that he refuses to talk nonsense and refuses to talk treason. Not so one erestwhile Presidential candidate, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler. Dr. Butler has aligned himself with Tammany Hall and the liquor interests because he does not like Mr. Hoover's attitude on the liquor question.

"What is Mr. Hoover's attitude? Mr. Hoover has declared that he will uphold the Constitution and enforce the law. A good thing we did not gratify Dr. Butler's elaborate aspirations, or rather jackaspirations, and

ARTISTIC MEMORIAL ON DISPLAY

Joseph L. Mathias, memorial merchant of this city, has just received an unusually beautiful and artistic memorial which will be exhibited prominently in his memorial display-yard at Main and Center streets. This memorial was especially designed for Mr. Mathias and because of its artistic value was exhibited at the National Convention of the Memorial Craftsmen of America, held in the Stevens Hotel, Chicago, Ill., where it won the blue ribbon in the design competition. This memorial is the largest to enter Mr. Mathias' immense stock, measuring almost thirteen feet in width. It is of the exedra type of design and embodies a polished granite seat. The entire memorial is luxuriously polished and neat sand-carvings embellish its front. The design of this memorial is protected by copyright. This memorial is a real work of art and is a fitting representative of the advanced stage of mechanical perfection that has been attained in the quarrying, designing, and finishing of modern memorials.

ROOP REUNION

The second annual reunion of the Roop families was held Sunday at the Meadow Branch Church of the Brethren, near this city, with an attendance greater than that of last year.

Elder William E. Roop delivered the morning sermon at the 10:30 o'clock service which was largely attended by the congregation and many visitors.

The speaker for the occasion was Redmond I. Roop, an attorney-at-law of Christianburg, Va., and a descendant of Henry Roop, who came to this country from Germany. Mr. Roop is a prominent attorney of Christianburg and an active worker in the churches and schools in that place. He had learned of the reunion only a month ago, but came prepared to give an interesting account of his ancestors as follows: Henry Rupe, as it was first spelled, came from Germany in the early 17th century, having lived along the Rhine river, and landed in Baltimore. He later married Catherine Null and lived in Maryland and very probably in this county. In 1796 he moved his family to Virginia and settled on Buffalo Creek and established a mill and made his living there for several years when he later moved to Montgomery county where he purchased large tracts of land. Three other brothers went to North Carolina, Ohio, and another went farther west.

The vote was unanimous for retaining the same officers: President, J. D. Roop, Jr., historian, H. G. Englar; secretary and treasurer, Anna Roop, and publicity, Jesse Weybright, and all received a vote of thanks. The speaker Redmond Roop was given a rising vote of thanks for his talk. It was also decided that the reunion be held annually the first Sunday in September, the meeting place to be announced. The benediction pronounced by Elder Snader, closed the reunion for 1928.

TO THE CHRISTIAN WOMEN OF CARROLL COUNTY

We are told by our officials that only one-third of our women are registered. Do you love your boys and girls? Do you love your neighbor as yourself? The second great command Jesus gave you. If you do you will register October 2nd or 9th so you can protect that boy and girl and neighbor of yours on November 6. All we have gained for peace and temperance will be held or lost that day! It's going to mean a world of difference to the youth of our land whether Herbert Hoover or Alfred Smith goes to the White House. Don't lament afterwards. Now is the time to act. And women it's no more embarrassing or unladylike to register or vote than it is to go to the grocery or market. We say, "there are so many men there." So there is at the Court House when we go to attend to our business there, but none of them ever harm us. If our officials were wise they would place women at one precinct and thus remove this objection.

Then another excuse is "Women never used to vote." Women never used to have electric lights, running water in the house, furnaces, radios, etc. If you want to live in "The used to be" get out your candles and polish up your old stoves. If you will not use one advance you have no right to use only those that add to your own comfort and pleasure. If you do you are very selfish

There never was a Presidential election that concerns womanhood and youth as the outcome of this one will. Oh! women think!
