Kind Words For Mr. Cannon.

When Congress is about to adjourn it is customary for the floor leader of the minority to offer a resolution thanking the speaker of the House for his fairness and courtesy Once the customary resolution had to be offered by a representative of the majority and the members of the minority failed to vote for it, but, instead, had some rather hard things to say of the speaker.

That, however, was in the days of Hon. Thos. B. Reed, who, by his arbitrary decisions and methods, had earned for himself the title of "Czar" from the minority, who lacked so little of equalling Mr. Reed's side in power and numbers that he was forced to do many things never done before in order to carry off the palm for the Republicans. It may be remarked in passing that Mr. Reed is said to have been much affected by the speeches of some of the more conservative of his opponents, notably that of the late Hon. Wm. L. Wilson, for whom he cherished a profound regard and great respect.

When the House adjourned on Thursday Hon. John Sharp Williams, the floor leader of the Democrats, offered the resolution commending the speaker's course and accompanied it by a brief speech in which he expressed his personal feeling for Mr. Cannon. The address and the resolution were applauded by both Democrats and Republicans, not a single voice being raised to protest against the passage of the measure. Mr. Cannon is one of the most popular as well as one of the more prominent figures in the United States at the present time and he fully deserved the tribute which his Democratic colleagues paid him.

A Hero.

The heroic act of John Schmidt, a Cincinnatti laborer, may well cause the more analytical of us to reflect that the word "hero" is too common nowadays, too often indiscriminately applied.

A few days ago Schmidt, with his fellow laborers, was working on a large building. He was holding a rope which was swinging a workman several stories above the pavement, when a plumber working higher up accidentally overturned a vessel of molten lead. The seething stream struck Schmidt's head and face, burning his flesh to the bone. Had he let loose of the rope he could have brushed the blistering liquid from his face, but, though stung to the soul by the agonizing pain, he did not forget that if he released the rope the man it held would be dashed to death on the stones below. So while the molten lead ate out his eyes and rendered him forever blind, he held the rope and saved a life.

As an act of quiet and mighty heroism this has few equals. It is more than probable that not one man in ten thousand, standing in Schmidt's place at the time, would have had the presence of mind to remember that another life was in his hands, and the unflinching nerve to stand by the responsibility. —Exchange,

A Startling Test.

To save a life, Dr. T. G. Merritt, of No. Mehoopany, Pa., made a startling test resulting in a wonderful cure. He writes: "A patient was attacked with violent hemorrhages, caused by ulceration of the stomach. I had often found Electric Bitters excellent for acute stomach and liver troubles, so I prescribed them. The patient gained from the first, and has not had an attack in 14 months." Electric Bitters are positively guaranteed for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Constipation and Kidney troubles. Try them. Only 50c. at J. H. Bradshaw's Pharmacy.

Good For Salisbury.

The citizens of Salisbury have come to the conclusion, at which the majority of our citizens long since arrived, that it is best for the moral and financial welfare of that place that the sale of liquor should be excluded from their borders.

The people of Salisbury had for a short time a taste of the blessings of a town free of saloons and, it is said, that all who were not in the business were greatly pleased with the result of the experiment. Some persons have had the idea that the sale of whiskey added greatly to the prosperity of Salisbury, but the consensus of opinion on the part of those who observed the state of affairs during the city's temporary freedom from the traffic was that never in its history had it enjoyed so great a degree of prosperity as during that period.

We hope that the wisdom of the city's choice will be demonstrated in every way and her citizens will never have occasion to repent their action in this matter. Certainly from a religious standpoint they have chosen well and we hope and trust they will not find their course redound to their temporal detriment.

Red Skirts Forbidden

A metropolitan exchange the other day contained an article setting forth the fact that the Pennsylvania road had issued an order to its track walkers to arrest any and all women found walking on or near its tracks clad in conspicuous red skirts. The reason assigned for this order was that the engineers of fast passenger trains often catch a glimpse of the flaming skirts of foreign women who are engaged in picking up coal along the tracks and take the same for danger signals. They stop their trains at a cost of time and wear and tear of machinery, throwing the schedules out of gear and producing much the same effect on the tempers of the railroad officials as do red rags when flaunted in the faces of certain beasts of the field. The action of the road is certainly practical, but lovers of the beautiful and the picturesque must deplore its results. The women will not keep off the tracks, that is not to be expected, for a free lump of coal to a poor Bohemian must be as attractive as an article on a bargain counter to a more fortunate member of hersex. Consequently they must exchange their red robes for others of a more sombre hue to the detriment of their personal appearance and that of the landscape in general. It seems a pity that the Pennsylvania people take so unsentimental a view of the matter, but they have the whip hand and in this generation the love of the beautiful must give way to the quest of the dollar.

Maryland Exhibit Shipped.

The agricultural exhibit from Maryland to the St. Louis fair was shipped from the Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station at College Park on Monday. Prof. William L. Amoss, Director of Farmers' Institute, has charge of it, and Mr. Shaw, one of this year's graduates of the college, will assist him in explaining it at the fair, after the college closes in June.

The things shipped include and represent the oyster, crab and fruit industry from the Eastern shore; wheat and all kinds of corn from Frederick and Carroll counties; the dairying business and various kinds of hay from Western Maryland, and all kinds of vegetables and fruits representing the canning industry from Southeastern Maryland, the Eastern Shore and Baltimore city.

The said Laura Wesley Woolford died, intestate, on or about the 12th day of March, 1883, leaving surviving her her said husband, William Washington Woolford, and the said W. Guy Woolford, Joseph Nelson Woolford, Edward Harrington Woolford and Ida Archer as her only children and heirs at law. That all of the parties to the suit are adults over the age of twenty-one years. That the said Samuel Augustus Craig, Maggie Craig, John W. Craig, Benjamin A. Craig, Lenora Craig, Annie V. Cook, Levin P. Cook, Edward Harrington Woolford, Ida Archer, James Archer and William Washington Woolford reside in Baltimore City, State of Maryland, that the said W. Guy Woolford, Isabel Woolford and Joseph Nelson Woolford reside in Seattle, State of Washington, and that the said Susan Allen Woolford resides in Beaufort, State of North Carolina.

That administration of all and singular the personal estate of the said Benjamin J. Bell has been lately granted by the Orphans' Court of Dorchester county, Maryland, to Emerson C. Harrington and W. Irving Mace, of said county and State, who, in virture thereof, have possessed themselves of the said personal estate of the said Bell, and that said personal estate is not sufficient to discharge all the just debts due and owing by the said intestate, Benjamin J Bell, at the time of his death.

That the real estate of which the said Bell died, seized and possessed, consists of a farm or tract of land situated on James Island, in No. 4 or Taylors Island Election District of Dorchester county, Maryland, it being the property upon which the said Bell resided at the time of his death.

The bill further asks that the personal estate, now in the hands of the administrators, be applied to the payment of the claims of the said Clarissy Wroten and other creditors of the said Benjamin J. Bell, so far as the same will extend; and that any deficiency in said personal estate be supplied by a sale of all, or such part as may be necessary, of the real estate of their aforesaid debtor.

It is, thereupon, this 12th day of April, A. D. 1904, ordered by the Circuit Court for Dorchester county, sitting as a Court of Equity, that the complainant, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Dorchester county, once a week for four successive weeks, before the 9th day of May next, give notice to the said W. Guy Woolford, Isabel Woolford, Joseph Nelson Woolford and Susan Allen Woolford, non-residents of this State, of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 24th day of May next, to show cause, if any, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.
