SATURDAY .....NOV. 27, 1880.

A Farmer Should Know.

As a general thing the farmer is liable for all the public injury his hired man may cause while actually employed by him. If he sends him into a lot to burn old brush, and he for any purpose whatever, leaves it and it runs into his neighbor's lot, destroying his fence and injuring his crops, the farmer is liable for the damage caused by the wanton neglect of his man. If he sends a hired man on the road with a team, and he by negligence runs into another vehicle and injures it, or the persons who may be in it, the farmer is liable for the damages; but should the hired man leave the road he was directed to go and travel another road for his own pleasure and profit, then the farmer is not liable for the damages should any accident occur. If a hired man, in going to or from the lot with a scythe, and by its careless handling or carrying he injures a passer-by, the farmer is liable for the damages. If in cutting wood the hired man cuts down a tree in another lot, the owner is liable for trespass and damages, although he distinctly showed him the boundary, and though the man may have cut the tree with malicious intent. Should the hired man, from maliciousness, run into a team, even if it block his way, yet the farmer must pay the damages, though done contrary to his positive orders. In all these cases the farmer can compel the hired man to pay him back, if he has anything to pay with; but this is rarely the case unless the farmer keeps back his wages and only settles when his time expires.—American Cultivator.

A good deal of humor is just in the shrewd simplicity of a reply. A London tourist met a young woman going to the kirk, and, as was not unusual, she was carrying her boots in her hand trudging along barefoot. "My girl," said he, "is it customory for all the people in these parts to go barefoot?" "Partly they do," said the girl, "and partly they mind their own business."

A MINISTER, while marrying a couple recently, is reported to have been rather disconcerted on asking the bridegroom if he was willing to take the young lady for his wedded wife, by his scratching his head and saying: "Yes, I'm willing; but I'd a much sight rather have her sister."

"EYE-PEEPING" is a new game. It is played thro' a screen pierced by two holes large enough to admit the eyes. The performing portion of the company remain behind the screen, while those in front make guesses as to who are the owners of the peep eyes.

THERE is romance in figures. A young man met a girl, 1er, married her, and took her on a wedding 2er.

A TOWN in Kansas bears the name of Beer Cask. A good place for a brewery.

MALTBY HOUSE,

BALTIMORE.

Recognizing the fact that the relationship existing between the counties of Maryland and the City of Baltimore is such that residents of the Counties have occasion to visit the city frequently during the year; in consideration of these facts and the liberal patronage extended the "Maltby" in the past, I deem it but a matter of justice that some discrimination should be made in their favor. I have therefore concluded to feeling confident that the same will be fully appreciated by them, and at same time merit and secure an increased share of their patronage. Assuring them that nothing will be left undone that can add to their comfort during their stay.

Reduce Price of Board to $2 per Day
