

Commissioned Officers of the Troop — produced by the long absence of Captain Barney, with the uncertainty of his return to this country — The resignation of Lieutenant Smith, and the appointments of Cornet McKim, as Aid de camp, to the Major General — By which events the best interests of the Troop, are jeopardized, and a longer continuance in the same state, is deemed highly detrimental to its prosperity, and respectable standing — In order therefore to prevent the total failure of the Troop, which without Commissioned Officers must take effect

The propriety of a complete reorganization of the Troop, being suggested, as the most proper step to relieve it from embarrassments which if longer suffered to exist, may become insurmountable, —

On Motion made and seconded, "That it is essential to the prosperity, and the well being of the Troop, that a complete reorganization of the Troop, should take place"

The President retired, and Mr. Lemuel Taylor being called to the Chair — It was resolved in the affirmative
