CHESTERTOWN - MAY 31, 1890

Letter from Western New York.

DEAR EDITORS:—After many days I again attempt to write you a few items that may be of interest to the readers of your paper among whom I count many friends, regretting that some very near and dear to me who read my former letters have fallen asleep and seek news no longer through a secular sheet, but if at all through celestial agencies. It was always my ambition to settle and live in the land of my nativity, but fate seems to have decreed otherwise,

And while others enjoy their home,
Among strangers I'm destined to roam.

Steuben county is one of the richest and most beautiful counties in Western New York. Its valleys and hills lend a picturesqueness to its national scenery that is not surpassed by any part of the country that I was ever in. Its hills often tower high above the domiciles with pure cold water gushing from every crevice, the pure atmosphere that sweeps over these elevated regions, the total absence of malaria and mosquitoes make it a country pleasant to dwell in.

It is a good county for peaches, but a poor one for doctors, as there is little sickness and few deaths. Last week we buried a man 86 years of age and I am writing in the presence of one 91 years old. There are many through here who are on the shady side of man's allotted time. The residents here are all old settlers and one sees little of the floating population which is characteristic of a new county and often seen in an old one. The farmers are thrifty and prosperous, nearly all owning their homes, while there are few mortgages and little land in the market, the price ranging from $40 to $100 per acre.

No county can boast of finer stock than is found in this section. Some of the fastest horses in this country are owned by men residing here. Six agricultural fairs are held in this county alone. More attention is paid to stock raising and less to grain than further south. Farmers are just seeding their oats and preparing ground for corn. Fruit trees are just blossoming and peaches (what few there are) are yet unhurt. Hemlock, pine and maple are the natural products of the forests, the former having nearly all been converted into lumber, the latter being left to be bled every spring and its sap rendered into sugar syrup.

Though this section is strongly Republican there is a general complaint against the administration and many Republicans say they hope they will have the opportunity to vote for Grover Cleveland in '92.

The Soldiers' Home of this State is located here. It is a fine institution and well supported. At present there are about 1,000 inmates.

The public school system is excellent, and the "marms" that teach some of them make a fellow wish he was a boy again.

Our town is located on an eminence that gives it a grand view of the surrounding country combining as it were the advantages of country and city life, and the contrast between this place and the one we left in Virginia to come here is as great as between those places made prominent in the book that adorns the center table of so many parlors and the shelves beneath last year's newspaper, and were it not for the long winters we might truly claim residence in Paradise. H. K. MILLER,

Pastor First Baptist Church,
Towellsville, New York.

Does Advertising Pay?

This is a very important question to business men, and one that only business men can answer. We have the assurance from thousands of them who largely advertise that it does pay, if judiciously pursued, and many of them have given their testimony in its favor. If the reader will take up any of the city papers from day to day for years, he will find the columns filled with the announcements of leading business houses. They do not come before the public at long intervals, but regularly, daily changing their advertisements with the variation in their stocks, qualities and prices of goods, thus not only attracting attention to what they have to sell, but arousing the desire of buyers to examine what is offered, thus making customers and popularizing these places of business. This class of men will tell you in this day of competition that it would be impossible to do business or secure anything like an average trade if they did not invite custom by giving in detail a clear statement of what they have got to sell.

On the other hand, thousands of men who have started in business with fair capital, plenty of push and a knowledge of trade have gone to the wall simply because they "hid their lights under a bushel," in failing to compete with their neighbors in having the buying public know where they were, what they were selling, and what inducements they had to offer. A man may have the best stock of goods in the market, but if he fails to invite custom or make known the inducements he can offer he is sure to drop behind in the race, while his sharper neighbor is reaping a rich harvest.

A HORSE'S QUEER APPETITE.—Jackson Benner, of West Gardiner, is the owner of a horse blessed with a queer appetite, according to the Home Journal. The animal lately dined off a bee hive, eating 20 pounds of honey and a large part of the bees, and a few days later captured and swallowed every one of a brood of 10 handsome chickens. Such a horse as that should be punished by having to always wear an overdraw check-rein.

A NEW YORK girl says: "The lucky color for women has changed this year, and instead of wearing a bright yellow garter, as we did a year ago, to bring us good luck and a sweetheart, it is now the correct thing to get a bow of royal purple ribbon, tied in a true lover's knot, and wear it on the breast, so that it moves with every heartbeat."

A DAY or two ago a colored man of Rockingham county, North Carolina, struck at a cat, when the enraged animal flew at him and fastened its teeth in his wrist. The cat held on so tenaciously that its head had to be severed before its grip relaxed. The man became ill at once and soon died.

DON'T bow to a lady because she has bowed to you—unless you are a brazen-fronted masher.

THE scientists say an absolute vacuum cannot exist, and yet the dude lives.

A CHURCH FAIR PHENOMENON—the longer a man stands the shorter he gets.

PROTECTION to home industries—a lock and key on the pantry door.

A WOMAN'S TRAIN has wrecked many a man.

THE YELLOW FEVER—the love of gold.

When Girls are Engaged.

You have a little band around the third finger of your left hand in which is set a turquoise, and when it was put there you remembered that the Hindoo said: "He who hath a turquoise hath a friend." Now, that's what you have in one you love best and whose wife you are going to become—a friend. He is your sweetheart, your lover it is true, but because to you his heart seems best worth having, his love the richest gift you can possess, you will not vulgarize, as many girls do, the tie that binds you. It is true you go with him to hear some wonderful music, or look at some fine pictures, but I hope it is not true that when you are at a party, or in your own home, you two pair off and make yourselves objects for silly chatter or idiotic jesting.

He can love you with his whole heart, but he must not make you an object of ridicule. He can think you the most unselfish girl in the world, but he must not show his own selfishness by expecting you to devote your evenings exclusively to him, ignoring those who are at home. Let him come and be one of them—there's a dear five minutes when he can speak to you, when he can kiss you on the lips that he knows are only the gates to sweet, pure speech, and when he can whisper the lovely nothings that mean so much to you both. Then, too, don't let him feel that he must give up all his friends for you; don't accept valuable presents from him, and don't assume an air of proprietorship with him. Tell him nothing about your family affairs for the secrets of the household don't even belong to the man you are going to marry. Guard yourself in word and in deed; hold his love in the best way possible; tie it firmly to you with the blue ribbon of hope, and never let it be eaten away by that little fox who destroys so many loving ties and who is called familiarity.

I am satisfied that Cancer is hereditary in my family. My father died of it, a sister of my mother died of it, and my own sister died of it. My feelings may be imagined, then, when the horrible disease made its appearance on my side. It was a malignant Cancer, eating inwardly in such a way that it could not be cut out. Numerous remedies were used for it, but the Cancer grew steadily worse, until it seemed that I was doomed to follow the others of the family. I took Swift's Specific, which, from the first day, forced out the poison, and continued its use until I had taken several bottles, when I found myself well. I know that S. S. S. cured me.

TAKE NOTICE

Tax-Payers of the Fifth District!

THE TAXES ARE NOW DUE; the tax-book for the Fifth District is in my hands and I am ready to receive the amounts due for 1889. All who have taxes to pay will find it very much to their interest to pay promptly. The law is so strict that I am not allowed to indulge even though I were so inclined. For the accommodation of tax-payers I will be in Chestertown on the first Tuesday in each month; at Fairlee on the first Monday in each month; at Rock Hall every Saturday afternoon, and at home at other times. WM. H. COLEMAN.
