POETRY.

TRODDEN FLOWERS.

BY TENNYSON.

There are some hearts that, like the lofty vine,
Clinging to sunkindly rocks and ruined towers;
Spirits that suffer and do not repine—
Patient and sweet as lowly trodden flowers,
That from the passer's heel strike
And give back odorous breath instead of sighs.

But there are other hearts that will not feel
The lowly love that haunts their eyes and ears;
That wound and faith with anger worse than steel,
And out of pity's spring draw idle tears,
O Nature, shall it ever be thy will
Ill things with good to mingle, good with ill?

Why should the heavy foot of sorrow press
The chilling heart of unencomplaining love—
Meek charity that shrinks not from distress,
Gentleness, loath her tyrants to reprove?
Though virtue weep forever and lament
Will one hard heart turn to her and relent?

Why should the reed be broken that will bend,
And they that dry the tears in other's eyes
Feel their own anguish welling without end,
Their manger darkened with the smoke of sighs?
Sure love is some fair Eden of his own,
Will flee at last, and leave us here alone.

Love weepeth always—weepeth for the past,
For woes that are, for woes that may betide;
Why should not hate and ambition weep at last,
Envy and hatred, avarice and pride?
Fate whispers sorrow, sorrow is your lot,
They would be rebels—Love rebelleth not.

MISCELLANEOUS.

New Publications.

CASSELL'S ILLUSTRATED FAMILY BIBLE.—This work is published twice a month, at 15 cents, each number containing 32 quarto pages.—Part VI reaches the XVII chapter of Leviticus, and, like preceding issues, is elegantly embellished. Besides the regular body of the Bible, each number contains copious explanatory notes.

CASSELL'S POPULAR NATURAL HISTORY.—The fifth number of this publication is before us, and is of an intensely interesting character. It is also published in numbers, on the 1st and 15th of each month, at 15 cents, on clear paper and bold type, by the same firm, Cassell, Petter & Galpin, New York. Persons wishing to subscribe can see specimens by calling at our office.

AMERICAN FARMER.—The July number is the first of a new volume of this old and favorite agricultural journal. It manifests no symptoms of senility, but possesses, in ample measure

That which should accompany old age—
As honor, love, obedience—troops of friends.

Published monthly at $1 per annum by Worthington and Lewis, Baltimore.

BLACKWOODS MAGAZINE.—June, 1860. Contents: The Schoolmaster at Home; Night; Milton; Captain Speke's Adventures in Somali Land; Norman Sinclair; Scottish National Character; Dornitian and Turbot; Universal Suffrage in Savoy and Nice; The Fight for the Gold; The Balance of Party; Index. Price $3 a year. Price of Blackwood and any one of the four Reviews, $5; the four Reviews and Blackwood, $10. For sale, the Edinburg Review, complete from its commencement to the present time. Address L. Scott & Co, 54 Gold street, New York.

THE COSMOPOLITAN ART JOURNAL is a quarterly, containing contributions from some of the most eminent writers of the country, in all departments of literature, and is one of the most popular magazines now issued. It is expensively illustrated, rendering it an ornament to every centre-table and library. Subscription, $3, which entitles the person paying that amount to a splendid engraving, and a certificate of membership in the annual premium lists, which, for this year, will be unusually valuable and attractive. Address C. L. Derby, 548 Broadway, New York.

FARMER AND GARDENER, published monthly in Philadelphia by A. M. Spangler and Wm. Saunders, at $1 per year. For some unknown cause to us a year or two ago the Farmer cut our acquaintance, but having repented of its sins, we gladly welcome it to our exchange list. The contents of the Farmer will prove exceedingly interesting to its numerous readers, who will know its worth and reliability as an agricultural and horticultural periodical.

THE GENESEE FARMER, a monthly journal of agriculture and horticulture, published at Rochester, N. Y. It is the cheapest agricultural paper in the world, only 50 cents a year, and it attains an unrivaled circulation.

New Counterfeits.—Between the first of June and the present time, as we learn from an advance copy of Peterson's Counterfeit Detector for July, as many as 58 forged bank notes have been detected in circulation.—These are new forgeries. It was full time for engravers and banks to unite and endeavor to stop this continued fraud. Petersons' list of new counterfeits shows that banks in all parts of the Union are thus drawn upon. If the system continue, who will take paper money?

HIGHER.

Higher! it is a word of noble meaning—the inspirations of all great deeds—the sympathetic chair, that leads link by link, the impassioned soul to zenith of glory, and holds its mysterious object standing and glittering among the stars.

Higher! lisps the infant that clasps its mother's knees, and makes its feeble essay to rise from the floor—it is the first inspiration of childhood—to burst the narrow confines of the cradle in which the sweetest moments have passed forever.

Higher! earnestly breathes the student of philosophy and nature; he has a host of rivals, but he must eclipse them all. The midnight oil burns dim, but he finds light and knowledge in the lamp of heaven, and his soul is never weary when the last of them is hid behind the curtains of morning.

And higher! his voice thunders forth, when the dignity of manhood has invested his form and the multitude are listening to his oracles, burning with eloquence, and ringing like true steel in the cause of freedom and the right.—When time has changed his locks to silver, and world-wide in his renown; when the maidens gathering flowers by the road side, and the boy in the field, bow in reverence as he passes, and peasants look to him in honor, can he breathe forth from his heart the fond wish of the past.

Higher yet! He has reached the apex of earthly honor, yet the spirit burns as warm as youth with a steadier and paler light, and it would even borrow wings and soar up to high heaven, leaving its tenement to mould among the laurels he has wound around it, for the never-ending glory to be reached only in the presence of the Most High.

Large Petition

Rev. Dr. Fuller opened the second day's session of the Baltimore Convention with prayer, and petitioned that the hearts of the delegates might be "purified from envy and malice, and ambition and selfishness." If his request had been granted, the members would hardly have been able to recognize each other.

☞ It will afford sweeter happiness in the hour of death to have wiped one tear from the cheek of sorrow than to have ruled an empire.

A Speculation.

The following incident actually took place in Baltimore, a few years since — As an evidence of the truth of the event it is said that the companions of the young woman were not long in discovering that one of their number had suddenly left their ranks.

"How do you sell these flowers?" said a good-looking stranger of one of the Southern States to a pretty little damsel in the market, who had hitherto been compelled to sell pinks, posies and similar notions honestly to maintain herself and family.

"Twenty-five cents, sir," said the maiden, holding up to the gaze of the stranger a sweet-scented bunch.

"Cheap," said the gentleman.

"Indeed they are," said the maiden. "So much so that I cannot possibly conceive how you can make a living at the business."

"Ah, sir," said the pretty damsel, "the times are so hard that we are compelled to do the best we can. By economy, sir, we manage to get along. Did those who live in glittering palaces but know how severe is the lot of the poor and dejected, we might, perhaps, get a little more for our labor. But alas! sorry I am to be compelled to say it, truly, justice is blind, and dim indeed is the vision of opulence."

Here the stranger, touched by the powerful remarks of the pretty flower-girl, was seen to drop his head and let fall a tear of sorrow. Recovering, however, he continued as follows:

"Here, my pretty one, why not turn your attention to something more profitable?"

"I know not what, sir," said the girl.

"Why not turn your attention to speculation?"

"But I know not what kind, sir," said the girl, "and if I did, I am not possessed of the capital."

"Oh!" said the gentleman, "there are some kinds of speculation in which to meet success a capital is not required."

"Name it, sir."

"Marriage."

"Sir," said the little maiden, "my chances in that kind of a speculation are poor—poor indeed."

"Perhaps not as poor as you imagine."

"I have now on my hands a dear father and mother to support by my little earnings, and to marry a youth as poor as myself would only be heaping misfortunes on our already overburdened shoulders."

"But, perhaps, in the search you might fall in with some one who has more of the world's treasures than yourself."

"But to get him," modestly articulated the girl.

"Twere an easy task, if he loves you."

"But where shall I find him? Which way shall I look?"

"Here, my pretty one," said the gentleman, at the same time throwing his eyes upon the young girl in such a manner as to leave no doubt on her mind that she was adored by the stranger.

* * * The couple became more intimate with each other. The stranger bought the flowers of the maiden, and as a compensation, he gave her a fortune of a hundred thousand dollars; with a written contract that himself should be thrown into the bargain.

They are now man and wife, the aged parents are comforted in their declining years, the maiden is not obliged to vend her nosegays, and the stranger, doubtless blesses the day he visited the City of Monuments, and went to buy the blue-eyed maiden's charming flowers.

Ugly Men.

In the eastern part of Ohio there resides a man named Brown, now a Justice of the Peace, and a very sensible man, but, by common consent, the ugliest individual in the West, being long, gaunt, sallow, and awry, with a gait like a kangaroo.

One day he was hunting, and on one of the mountain roads he met a man on foot and alone, who was longer, gaunter, by all odds than himself. He could give the Squire fifty and beat him. Without saying a word, Brown raised his gun, and deliberately levelled it at the stranger.

"For God's sake, don't shoot," shouted the man in alarm.

"Stranger," replied Brown, "I swore ten years ago that if ever I met a man uglier than I was, I'd shoot him, and you are the first one I have seen."

The stranger, after taking a careful survey of his rival, replied:

"Well, captain, if I look any worse than you do, shoot. I don't want to live any longer."

The Tornado.

The Iowa City Reporter has the following summary of the great storm:

Hardin county.—Killed, 7; wounded 27; houses destroyed, 37; estimated loss, $75,000.

Linn county.—Killed, 18; wounded, 35; houses destroyed, 18; estimated loss, $150,000.

Cedar county.—Killed, 3; wounded, 13; houses destroyed, 8; estimated loss, $15,000.

Clinton county.—Killed, 75; wounded, 150; estimated loss $400,000.

Jones county.—Killed, 9; wounded, 30; houses destroyed, 8; estimated loss $30,000.

Besides the above, there is to be counted the loss of life and property at Albany and other places in Illinois.

The Iowa City Reporter counts up from the most reliable data, one hundred and two persons killed in that State by the tornado, sixty five houses destroyed other than those blown down at Camanche and in Clinton county, while the estimated amount of property reaches about $600,000. The number wounded in Iowa reaches 205.

☞ "Ah! how doth you like my moustache, Mith Laura," lisped a dandy to a merry girl.

"Oh, very much. It looks like the fuzz on the back of a caterpillar!"

Punctuation Puzzle.

The following paragraph, extracted from the Portland Transcript, is a capital illustration of the importance of punctuation. There are two ways of pointing it, one of which makes the individual in question a monster in wickedness, while the other converts him into a model christian. Let our readers exercise their ingenuity on the problem and see whether they can discover its two-fold solution:

"He is an old and experienced man in vice and wickedness he is never found opposing the works of iniquity he takes delight in the downfall of his neighbourhood he never rejoices in the prosperity of his fellow creatures he is always ready to assist in destroying the peace of society he takes no pleasure in serving the Lord he is uncommonly diligent in sowing discord among his friends and acquaintances he takes no pride in laboring to promote the cause of of Christianity he has not been negligent in endeavoring to stigmatize all public teachers he makes no exertions to subdue his evil passions he strives hard to build up Satan's kingdom he lends no aid to the support of the Gospel among the heathen he contributes largely to the evil adversary he pays no attention to good advice he gives great head to the devil he will never go to Heaven he must go where he will receive the just recompense of Reward."

A Highwayman Outwitted.

"Stand and deliver,' were the words addressed to a tailor travelling on foot, by a highwayman, whose brace of pistols looked rather dangerous than otherwise.

"I'll do that with pleasure,' was the reply, at the same time handing over in the outstretched hand of the robber, a purse apparently well stocked; 'but,' continued he, 'suppose you do me a favor in return. My friends would laugh at me were I to go home and tell them I was robbed with as much patience as a lamb; s'pose you fire your two bull-dogs right through the crown of my hat; it will look something like a show of resistance.'

His request was acceded to; but hardly had the smoke from the discharge of the weapons passed away, when the tailor pulled out a rusty old horse-pistol, and in his turn politely requested the thunderstruck highwayman to shell out everything of value, his pistols not omitted, about him.

We grieve to see that Ex-President Tyler has turned fire-eater in his declining years. He has declared, through the press, that he is for disunion in the event of the election of either Mr. Bell or Mr. Lincoln or Mr. Douglas to the Presidency, and that in either case he will fight for a funeral! He is particularly fierce against Mr. Bell. We know but one way to escape so serious a catastrophe, and that is: for the next President elect to give the Ex President the English mission, unless Mr. Buchanan can be persuaded, in the meantime, to send him to Sardinia. The country is evidently in danger.

☞ Prentice says the Democratic party may well sit upon "two stools." It isn't merely a two-headed concern Nor! It has now two tails and two bodies as well as two heads, but unlike the Siamese twins they are not united by either ligament or affinity. They are ready to fly at each others throats and tear each other to pieces. It is idle mockery to speak of the success of either of these factions. Reasonable men everywhere must perceive that a vote for either Douglas or Breckinridge is only a vote in favor of Lincoln.

☞ The two Democratic Conventions seem to have been guided more by the demerits than the merits of the men whom they have selected as their candidates. One nominated Douglas, who has done more than any other man in the nation to promote the ruin of the Democratic party. The other nominated Breckinridge, of whom it has been said, with truthfulness, that he has done less for Democracy, and received greater favors than any man in the party.

☞ A Western paper, chronicling the lamentable occurrences of a staging attached to a church being blown down, very feelingly says:

"We are happy to state that over twenty persons were brought suddenly to the ground safe, and one man, Mr. Wilkins, got his neck broke. Mr. W. was an estimable young man, and the father of a good many children, besides a large farm well stocked. He was fatally injured.

Smells of "Villainous Saltpetre."—Austrian troops are a-massing in the square that we heard so much of last year; Russian troops are concentrating on the Turkish frontier, and French troops are assembling in camp near the Rhine. There promises to be a fine time soon for the owners of saltpetre.

One of the most note-worthy facts connected with the break-up of the late Democratic party was this: An ancient Whig (General Cushing) presiding over the scene, and another ancient Whig (Mr. Russell, of the Old Dominion) was the oracle of dissolution on the wonder-occasion.

☞ By looking through certain kinds of glasses at a large object, you can see it in miniature. Now look through the glass of the Baltimore Convention, and you will see an exact picture, within a reduced compass of the Democratic party of the nation.

☞ An Indiana paper says, that a young lady in its neighborhood was severely injured a few days since, by receiving a kick in the fore part of the back, from a vicious cow she was milking.

What is larger for being cut at both ends? A ditch.

Westminster Female Institute.

THE last half of the Spring session of this Institution, in charge of Doctor and Mrs. Jones, will commence on the 7th of May, and close June 29th, 1860. The course of instruction is comprehensive and thorough, embracing all the studies usually taught in first class Seminaries. It is the aim of the Principals to furnish the best possible facilities and advantages for the cultivation of the minds of the pupils.

Music tuition will be spared to render the course of instruction at least equal to that of any other School in the county.

Young ladies will be received at any time in Boy Scholars, and be will be charged from date of entrance to the close of the term.—A limited number of Boarding pupils will be received into the family of the Principals, where they will receive every necessary care and attention.

Arrangements have been made for the continuance of the Male Department.

The Principal respectfully solicits the attention of parents, who desire a thorough Academical education for their sons, to this School.

A class for young Ladies and Gentlemen who propose to devote their ages to the business of teaching, will be formed, as every opportunity is afforded to prepare themselves for that most honorable and responsible vocation.

Willoughby's Patent
GUM SPRING & GUM FEEDER
DRILL.
MANUFACTURED BY
E. WAGONER.

The Best Drill ever heard of!

IT Sows all kinds of Grain perfect, from one peck to four bushels without choking the Machine. The quantity can be changed when in motion, by a slide. It will sow Wheat, Buckwheat, Rye, Oats, and Barley without choking by white caps, white heads or straws. This Drill feeds by two vertical rubber cylinders revolving together. The spring drag bar is very useful in rough land, stumpy or rocky. It will pass over any thing not over fifteen inches high without breaking of pins or anything else. The hoe will pass over and fall in its proper place. I also build them with Guano or other fertilizer sowers attached, which all farmers who use any of those manures ought to have, as they will save one half of the manure and have more grain, as it sows direct with the grain. This attachment is warranted to saw correct without choking or clogging, and will saw from fifty pounds to any number of pounds that is wanted to be sown by a Drill.

Persons wanting an Attachment of this Fertilizer Sower put on their Drills, will please be as early as possible, as I have a great deal of this kind of work to do.

For further particulars, address E. WAGONER, Westminster, Carroll County, Md.

SHRINER'S
Balsamic Cough Syrup,
For Coughs and Colds, Croup, Bronchitis, Asthma, Spitting of Blood, Bleeding of the Lungs, Pain and Weakness of the Breast, Difficulty of Breathing, Hoarseness, Whooping Cough, &c

Letter from Dr. Garry, formerly of Clearspring, Md.

BERKLEY SPRINGS, Va., Aug 23, 1859.

W. E. SHRINER,—DEAR SIR:—During my residence in Clearspring, I was in the habit of using your preparations in my practice. I then formed so high an opinion of them that I wish to have them in use among my patients here. With this view I have induced Jonathan Castler to accept an agency, and would like you to establish one here.

Yours, truly,
M. M. GARRY, M. D.

Five Years Experience.

JEFFERSON, York Co., Pa., July 18, '59

Mr. W. E. SHRINER—Dear Sir: I have been keeping your "Balsamic Cough Syrup" for sale for the last five years, and it has given it an universal sale for cough.

It is one of the most popular Medicines in use in our neighborhood. Our sales therefore have been large, especially last winter, having sold at retail at least six dozen bottles. I commenced using your medicine, seldom laid down in bed for fear of strangulation. I suffered much from pain in my breast and had a severe cough, both of which were getting daily worse. We had a bottle of your Syrup in the house, got for a child that had the croup, and I commenced using of it, and in my joy began to feel better. I continued using the Syrup until I had used eight bottles, and am now well. I attribute the cure entirely to your Syrup. We had previously used your Syrup for Croup and Whooping Cough. The Croup it always cured, and Whooping Cough it mitigated very much.

Very truly yours, WM. BRIGHT.

Prepared by W. E. SHRINER,
Westminster, Md.
And sold by all Store Keepers.
