WESTMINSTER, MARYLAND.

W. L. W. Seabrook, - Editor.

Entered as the Postoffice at Westminster, Md., as Second-class matter.

SATURDAY, JUNE 2, 1888.

Memorial Day was universally observed throughout the entire country, and few soldiers' graves, however isolated, failed to receive the tribute of generous floral offerings.

The municipal election held in Martinsburg, W. Va., on Monday, was hotly contested. C. O. Lambert, independent democrat, was re-elected mayor over H. T. Cushwa, the democratic nominee, by eight majority. The republicans elected four of the five councilmen. The council will stand six republicans and four democrats.

It is said by some of the Democratic newspapers that the State ticket recently nominated by the Republicans of Alabama is falling to pieces. Half of the candidates have declined and the other half are expected to follow the example. The information may be correct but if so it only indicates that the nominees realize the utter hopelessness of a contest against the well known methods of their opponents.

Out of 188,728 votes cast for governor at the recent Louisiana election, the Democratic candidate was credited with 132,298 and the Republican candidate with 56,430 of the ballots. We do not suppose there are any well informed people so credulous as to believe these returns represent the real strength of the parties. In some of the parishes the Democratic majorities exceeded the whole voting population. We hope it will not be considered waving the bloody shirt to allude to these little irregularities.

The United States Senate, on Monday, adopted a resolution to consider the Bayard-Chamberlain Canadian Treaty in open session. The Democratic Senators opposed the motion and threatened to filibuster against it, but a little wholesome discipline wrought an effectual change in their purpose. The Republicans simply declined to consider other executive business until the resolution was disposed of. The Democrats are anxious to postpone discussion of the treaty until December.

It is amusing to note the tergiversations of Democratic newspapers that make a pretence of favoring the instrument, but are impressed with the importance of deferring action upon it until after the Presidential election. They are sure that those horrid Republican Senators only want to manufacture campaign material against Mr. Cleveland, a degree of moral turpitude to which immaculate Democrats could not possibly descend.

After all, however, there would seem to be no valid reason why the people should not be fully informed concerning the results of a Convention in which either a pro-English anti-American spirit, gross carelessness, or lamentable ignorance marked the action of the administration, if what has been alleged of some of the provisions of the treaty is correct. The people should be fully informed if the President, whose re-election is sought, and his Cabinet advisers are incompetent to deal with questions that involve important American interests. And that is about the appearance of the whole matter at this time.

Statistics, if reliable, should never be illogical. The Advocate asserts that the supporters of Mr. Lincoln—meaning, we suppose, mind soldiers of Republican proclivities as well as those who voted for him—"did not constitute a third of the armies that preserved the Union," and quotes what it calls "official figures" in support of the allegation. If the proposition be correct, who then fought the battles of the Nation by which its dismemberment was prevented? It is said that more than ninety per cent. of the Union soldiers were native born. Accepting the figures as correct it would appear, therefore, that the Republicans and foreign born soldiers, according to the Advocate's estimate, did not constitute more than forty-three per cent. of the Union forces. That would leave fifty-seven per cent. to be credited to the Democratic and other parties.

Now, when it is remembered that the National Convention of the Democratic party in 1864 declared the war for the Union a failure and demanded a cessation of hostilities; that Clement L. Vallandigham ran as a Democratic candidate for governor of Ohio—as a pronounced friend of the Southern cause and received a large vote as such; that the administration of Mr. Lincoln was constantly embarrassed and opposed in its efforts to suppress the rebellion and restore the national authorities, together with many other inexorable facts going to show that the organization recognized as the Democratic party during the war was opposed to its prosecution, there would seem to be a hole somewhere in the Advocate's saucepan.

Undoubtedly many patriotic Democrats attested the full measure of their devotion to the cause of human liberty by taking up arms in its defence; and many gave their lives to the just and righteous cause. All honor to them we say. They fought for the government, not because they belonged to the Democratic party, but in spite of it. Their party, as an organization, did not sympathise with their action, but party could not outbalance country when placed in the scales against it. Many of these Democrats were driven by the attitude of their party to vote for Mr. Lincoln in 1864; few of them we believe voted for Gen. McClellan.

But history will hardly give the credit of saving the Union to the Democratic party, notwithstanding many individual members of the organization participated in the successful effort. It was a Republican administration, supported by the party that brought it into power and that merged into its ranks many who neither voted for Mr. Lincoln, nor for a Democrat, in 1860, that conducted the war for the Union to its final triumph. Vastly more than a third of those who constituted the armies of the nation in 1864 were Republicans, whatever they may have been in 1860. Hence the Advocate's assertion quoted at the beginning of this article is undoubtedly an error. Let the matter be fully and fairly understood.

Positive Declination of Mr. Blaine.

Mr. Blaine has written a letter to Whitelaw Reid, editor of the New York Tribune, which no longer leaves a doubt of his determined purpose to withhold his name from consideration as a Presidential candidate by the Republican national convention. The letter is as follows:

PARIS, MAY 17, 1888.

Whitelaw Reid, Esq., Editor New York Tribune.

MY DEAR SIR:—Since my return to Paris from Southern Italy on the 8th inst., I have learned (what I did not before believe) that my name may yet be presented to the national convention as a candidate for the presidential nomination of the republican party. A single phrase of my letter of January 25, from Florence, (which was decisive of everything I had the personal power to decide,) has been treated by many of my most valued friends as not absolutely conclusive in ultimate and possible contingencies. On the other hand, friends equally devoted and disinterested have construed my letter (as it should be construed) to be an unconditional withholding of my name from the national convention. They have in consequence given their support to eminent gentlemen who are candidates for the Chicago nomination, some of whom would not, I am sure, have consented to assume that position if I had desired to represent the party in the presidential contest of 1888.

If I should now, by speech or by silence, by commission or omission, permit my name, in any event, to come before the convention, I should incur the reproach of being uncandid with those who have always been candid with me. I speak, therefore, because I am not willing to remain in a doubtful attitude. I am not willing to be the cause of misleading a single man among the millions who have given me their suffrages and their confidence. I am not willing that even one of my faithful supporters in the past should think me capable of palttering in a double sense with my words. Assuming that the presidential nomination could by any possible chance be offered to me, I could not accept it without leaving in the minds of thousands of these men the impression that I had not been free from indirection, and therefore I could not accept it at all. The misrepresentations of malice have no weight, but the just displeasure of friends I could not patiently endure.

Republican victory, the prospects of which grow brighter every day, can be imperiled only by lack of unity in council or by acrimonious contest over men. The issue of protection is incalculably stronger and greater than any man, for it concerns the prosperity of the present and of generations yet to come.

Were it possible for every voter of the republic to see for himself the condition and recompense of labor in Europe, the party of free trade in the United States would not receive the support of one wage-worker between the two oceans. It may not be directly in our power as philanthropists to elevate the European laborer, but it will be a lasting stigma upon our statesmanship if we permit the American laborer to be forced down to the European level. And in the end the rewards of labor everywhere will be advanced if we steadily refuse to lower the standard at home.

Yours, very sincerely,

JAMES G. BLAINE.

Defeat of Dr. Shaw.

Balloting in the Democratic Congressional Convention of the Second district resulted, on Wednesday, in the nomination of Herman Stump, of Harford county, and the consequent defeat of Dr. Shaw. The nomination was made by the votes of the delegates from Carroll and Harford counties and one vote from Cecil, and was accomplished on the 173d ballot. It was the first ballot on Wednesday morning, and was evidently the result of an understanding reached after the convention adjourned on Tuesday. Mr. Stump is a member of the Bel Air bar and a gentleman of fair ability and good character. The Baltimore American says he is a prosperous and wealthy farmer and a bachelor. He has been a State Senator and President of the Senate; but was defeated for a re-election to that body by E. M. Allen, a Republican. He is a relative of the Archer family.

Dr. Shaw, who will be retired by this action, at the close of the present Congress, is, we think, the ablest of the present Democratic representatives in the House from this State. His defeat is probably due to the opposition of the bosses, who preferred anybody else. His friends in the convention will find some comfort in the reflection that while they were unable to procure his renomination they were largely instrumental in preventing the success of J. Frederick C. Talbott, who was evidently the Ring favorite.

Mr. Blaine's Letter.

Mr. Blaine's letter, which we publish to-day, must be accepted as conclusive of his intention to decline the Republican nomination for the Presidency if it should be tendered him by the National convention. It is a manly and unequivocal expression of his attitude on the subject, and only a few, even of his most bitter enemies, pretend a doubt of its entire honesty and sincerity. It does infinite honor to the man and, while it is received with regret by his devoted adherents throughout the country, it will go far towards winning the regard of many who have been conscientiously hostile to him as a presidential candidate.

The Prohibition national convention, which met Indianapolis, completed its labors on Thursday, by the nomination of Gen. Clinton B. Fisk, of New Jersey, for President, and Rev. Dr. John A. Brooks, of Missouri, for Vice-President. The convention also declared in favor of woman suffrage. Whatever may be said of the Prohibitionists it must be admitted that they concede nothing to expediency. It is perfectly patent that woman suffrage is an issue that has few adherents, even among the the women themselves, except in a few limited localities. Unlike the Democratic party, too, which depends almost wholly upon southern votes, they did not hesitate to place a Confederate Chaplain on the ticket for the Vice-Presidency. The Democrats might sit at the feet of the Prohibitionists and learn courage and consistency.

The Democratic members of the House of Representatives are holding frequent caucuses on the Mills bill. They are not happy over it. Many of them are anti-protectionists in theory, but have some local interest that requires fostering, and so demand the protection for their own constituents that they are ready enough to deny to others. The bill is being amended to suit these gentlemen. The caucus, however, adopted a motion of Mr. Springer, pledging the members to vote against amendments which shall not be approved by the majority of the ways and means committee. Unfortunately for the integrity of the bill the caucus was slimly attended when the motion was passed.

It is now supposed that the St. Louis ticket will be Cleveland and Thurman, if the venerable Allen G. can be induced to swing at the tail of the Democratic kite. But for his great age Mr. Thurman, who is an able man, would better grace the head of the ticket; but, with the weight of seventy-five years on his shoulders, he should not be chosen for either station.

Among the very first candidates for the presidency and vice-presidency are the nominees of the union labor party. On May 18, at Cincinnati, as already reported, the party nominated Mr. A. J. Streeter, of Illinois, for President by acclamation, and Mr. C. E. Cunningham, of Arkansas, after protracted balloting, was nominated for Vice-President.

Yesterday was the brightest and most charming day of the season.

Destructive Storm.

Last Sunday night hail fell in Eastern Kansas, it is stated, to a depth, in some places, of three feet. The stones were in many instances as big as walnuts. The effect of hail of this quality and quantity, accompanied by fierce winds, was, of course, very destructive. Crops were ruined and cattle were badly injured. The cyclone to which the hail-storm of Kansas was due appears to have been of wide extent. In Eastern Ohio, Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia, rain and hail fell in torrents and the wind was very violent. At Bridgeport, Bellaire and Canton, Ohio, persons were killed or mortally hurt. Great damage was done to buildings, crops, fruit, &c. In part of Western Pennsylvania the hailstones were as large as hen eggs. Near Ravenwood, West Virginia, and at Charlestown, in the same State, persons were killed. Lancaster, Pennsylvania, reports the most destructive fall of hail in a century. The hailstones perforated roofs, broke through windows, mutilated trees and flattened the fields of grain. One man was killed, and ten others were seriously injured by a stroke of lightning at Milenburg, in Louisiana—Sun.

GENERAL NEWS.

The General Conference of the M. E. Church adjourned on Thursday.

Robert Corbett, the slayer of John Wilkes Booth, escaped from the insane asylum at Topeka, Kas., Saturday. He had been an inmate of the institution for over a year.

Gen. P. H. Sheridan is extremely ill at his home in Washington. The death of the great soldier is imminent. Action of the heart is becoming feebler, and, at last report the lungs were becoming more and more oedematous.

Henry M. Stanley, the great African explorer, about whose safety fears have been entertained for several months past, is reported alive and with his whole party in good health. The news was brought by deserters from his camp.

A dispatch from New Orleans, La., says: "At Milenburg, a resort on Lake Ponchartrain, within a few miles of this city, Monday, one man was killed and 10 others injured, it is feared mortally, by a lightning stroke.

A disastrous conflagration occurred at Tyrone, Pa., Sunday morning, during which an entire block, extending from the river to Juniata street, with the exception of the Boyer House, was destroyed. The total loss is forty thousand dollars.

The M. E. church General Conference, in session in New York, has, wisely we think, adopted a proposition to extend the limit of the pastoral term to five years. The limit of three years which is superseded by this measure, has, in many cases, been productive of un satisfactory results, and the church will undoubtedly be benefited by the change.

Fire broke out on Monday in Hume's block, Bellefonte, Pa., destroying that property and the First National Bank Building, including the postoffice, Hume's Opera House, the grocery store of A. C. Motler & Bro. and Jared Harper, W. W. Moyer's dry-goods store, Montgomery's clothing store, the Co-operative Store and Woodring's stationery store. Total loss about $75,000. Lightning caused the fire.

Organic union between the Northern and Southern General Assemblies of the Presbyterian Church was defeated in the latter body by a vote of 88 to 40. These two great religious organizations have been celebrating the Centennial of Presbyterianism in the United States, in their annual sessions, the first named in Philadelphia, and the other in Baltimore. Overtures were made by the Northern, or General Assembly as it is properly styled, to their Southern brethren, for organic union; but have been rejected as stated above.

The German Baptists of the United States, who had been in session for several days at North Manchester, Ind., adjourned Friday week. Their next annual meeting will be held at Harrisonburg, Va., on the line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, the first week in June, 1889. The grounds are one-quarter of a mile south of the town, and the citizens, with commendable energy, gave the grove free for their use, with waterworks, lights and police force. The next meeting will likely draw some ten thousand members of this order from the various Western States.

The heaviest hail-storm Chambersburg, Pa., has experienced for many years passed over that place at four o'clock Monday afternoon. The storm came from the South and was preceded by a strong wind, hail following and rain concluding the storm. The hailstones measured from five to nine inches in circumference, and in addition to breaking thousands of window-glass damaged vegetation and knocked down tall wheat. In the vicinity of the town several trees were blown down. Over eight hundred panes of glass were broken in the Taylor works alone. Several runaways occurred, horses being terrified by the big hailstones beating upon their backs. Several vehicles were broken and one collision occurred

MARYLAND NEWS.

Frank C. Norwood, late State's attorney for Frederick county, is critically ill.

Mary Geisbert, a young lady of 20 years, committed suicide at her home in Frederick, on Saturday last, by taking laudanum.

Edward O'Donnell, a farmer, died at his residence near Simpsonville, Howard county, on the morning of the 28th ult., aged 70 years. His death was the result of an injury received about a year ago.

Jesse Lee Bennett, aged about 58, brother of the late Frank W. Bennett, the auctioneer of Baltimore, died at his farm near Reisterstown, on Friday of last week, of a complication of dieases. The deceased leaves a widow and three children, one daughter and two sons.

The members of the First Maryland Veterans held their twenty-seventh annual reunion at the Maltby House, Baltimore, on Tuesday night. About sixty members were present. Officers were elected, as follows: President, Geo. W. Seipp; vice-president, Joseph A. Russell; treasurer, Saml. P. Kneller; secretary, David L. Stanton; historian, Joseph W. Kirkley; chaplain, James W. Hughlett; representative to the Union Veteran Association, David L. Stanton.

A meeting was held in St. Vincent's Catholic church, in Baltimore city, on Sunday evening last, at which the pastor of the church, Rev. Edward Didier, presided, and addresses were made by ex-Judge Fisher, John C. Rose, John K. Cowen, Summerfield Baldwin, Rev. J. S. Miller and other Protestants. The object of the meeting was to inaugurate measures to suppress the dens of iniquity and low dives with which portions of East Baltimore are infested. We are glad to see Catholics and Protestants joining hands in this good work.

Elkton, Cecil county, was visited by three heavy thunder-storms Tuesday night inside of five hours. The first was accompanied by hail-stones as large as marbles and almost square in shape. The hail cut off many young plants and did considerable damage to hot-houses. On the farm of Mr. Entwhistle, near Elkton, the hail broke through hot-house sash three panes of glass thick. During the third storm lightning struck the barn on the farm of Thomas W. Bryson, Jr., about 3 miles from Elkton. The barn, together with three tons of hay and a lot of harness, was entirely consumed. Loss about $600; no insurance.

About one o'clock Sunday morning a fire broke out in in the paint shop of the burial case works in Mechanicstown, Frederick county. The building is a total loss, but through the efforts of the Guardian Hose Company the main shop, in which all the costly machinery is located, was saved, although not more than six feet distant frem the paint shops. This is the hose company's first experience, and they saved much more property than the entire cost of their equipment. It is believed that the fire originated spontaneously, as it broke out in that part of the building where the paints, varnish, oil and turpentine were stored.

General John W. Horn, whose term as warden of the penitentiary expired on Thursday, was pleasantly surprised Wednesday evening. While making a round of the institution to take leave of the convicts a delegation approached him and presented a pretty gold watch-chain pendant with a finely-cut Italio. Around the rim were engraved the words: "To General John W. Horn, Warden, by the Inmates of the Penitentiary as a Token of Esteem, May 31, 1888." The general was completely taken aback, but when he had recovered his speech he gave the delegation some practical, well-meant advice and bade them a hearty farewell. General Horn says that during the next month he shall take a needed rest, and after that he will probably go into business.

Frederick city was the scene of a terrible accident on Monday evening last. A fire occurred in the cellar of Chas. E. Zeller's grocery store, corner of Market and South streets, and an alarm was sounded which speedily brought the fire department and other citizens to the scene. The fire was communicated to a barrel of gasoline, which exploded with terrific force, blew out the front wall of the building and completely demolished the rear portion of it. The large plate glass windows were shivered and the flying fragments inflicted many wounds upon the persons of the firemen and spectators. A boy named Poole was killed and about one hundred persons injured, some of them very seriously. Several of the firemen were in the cellar when the explosion occurred and were severely burned.

Sergt. Geo. W. Feiger, of the signal office in Baltimore city, has prepared the following interesting summary of May weather: While the present month is considered unprecedentedly cool, cloudy, and rainy, we do not have to go back many years to find its parallel. May 1882, was similar; much cool and cloudy weather prevailed, with frequent rains. Rain fell on twenty-three days, against fifteen so far of the present month, and one wet period lasted from the 4th to the 16th, rain falling on every day during that time. The rainfall was less than has fallen this month, but it was much more generally distributed. Fifteen days were cloudy and six clear, against fourteen cloudy and three clear during the present month. Comparing the average temperatures of the first twenty-seven days of the two months, we find that in 1882 the temperature was below normal on twenty-two days, being 5 degrees or more below on sixteen, and 10 degrees or more below on seven days. The maximum and minimum temperatures were 83 and 38, respectively. During the present month the temperature has been below normal on seventeen days, 5 degrees or more below on twelve, and 10 degrees or more below on five. Highest and lowest temperatures, 80 and 41.
