A Short Review.

The government of the United States, under Republican administration, suppressed a rebellion of gigantic proportions at a cost of well nigh five thousand millions of dollars, and when the war ended was in debt to the extent of two thousand seven hundred millions of dollars, much of it bearing interest at six per cent. in gold, and the remainder at 7.30 per cent. in currency. Under the administration of this same party the debt has been reduced far below a thousand million of dollars and the highest rate of interest to 4 per cent., on bonds which, with fourteen years to run, command a premium of 12 per cent. The currency of the country, which was immensely depreciated by the prolonged struggle for the nation's life, under Republican administration was restored to par, and every dollar issued by the government made as good as every other dollar. Under the administration of this same party, the populatio n and wealth, and the material prosperity of the country were developed beyon d any precedent in the history of the world.

All this was done without any extremely violent financial crisis occurring, and in the face of Democratic opposition that ridiculed the idea of resumption and declared it impossible that the government could redeem its pledge to pay its gold-bearing indebtedness in that coin.

In the face of these historical facts the people, by their votes in November last, repudiated the policy under which these wonderful results had been achieved, and resolved to withdraw the power to shape the policy of the country from the Republicans, and delegate it to the Democrats. The country was then wonderfully prosperous, but a change is already manifest. Business failures have increased at an alarming rate; banks are closing their doors; the volume of business is being contracted; gold is flowing out of the country, and financial disaster threatens. Democrats may not admit that the cause producing these effects is Democratic supremacy in the government and the threatened substitution of Democratic policy for that of the Republican party, but there seems to be no other explanation of the unfortunate fact. For the sake of the people it is to be hoped the consequences yet to flow from this act may not be fairly illustrated by the story of the man who was well but wanted to be better and took medicine and died.

Income Taxes.

When the expenses of a mighty war to save the nation from disruption rendered extraordinary methods of increasing the income of the government necessary, the Republican party did not hesitate to levy a tax on incomes, among the other means adopted to meet the emergency. It was, however, one of the most unpopular of the special taxes imposed, because it bore very unequally upon the people. Men with supple consciences evaded it by making false returns; others, more tender of conscience, perhaps, and unwilling to commit perjury, refused to make returns at all, but concealed as carefully as possible the sources of their incomes from the assessors, who, in making arbitrary estimates, were thus often misled and named amounts far below the sums properly taxable. It will be remembered that Mr. Samuel J. Tilden, the Democratic candidate for President in 1876, was accused of taking advantage of this privilege and defrauding the government out of large sums. Suits were actually instituted against him, subsequently, to recover these sums, but were dismissed on technicalities. On the other hand, men in business, desiring to make a fine showing and to maintain their credit, it is said, often made returns of their incomes far in excess of the actual amounts received by them, and paid the increased taxes thus imposed rather than reveal the actual condition of their financial affairs. The law was a promoter of perjury. These considerations induced the abolition of the tax as soon as it could be done after the war.

But it is essentially an English institution, and the Democrats who have adopted English ideas on the tariff question, seem also to be enamored of this method of taxation, although they were loudest in its denunciation when it was imposed as a war tax. It now has not a few advocates in that party, and there is strong talk of incorporating it as a feature in the proposed new revenue law to be passed by the Democratic Congress. It will probably be a necessity here, as it is in England, if the tariff shall be reduced and wages come down, as they must, to meet the new order of things.

The gates of the Columbian Fair were opened to visitors on Sunday last and upwards of 140,000 people paid to enter the grounds. Nearly fifty thousand more were deadheaded, making an aggregate of nearly a hundred and ninety thousand visitors. A State court has granted an injunction restraining the commissioners from closing the gates on Sunday, and taking the ground that there is nothing in the law of Congress appropriating five millions of dollars in aid of the Fair, upon condition that the gates should be closed on the Sabbath, that overrides any existing law of the State of Illinois. It now becomes the duty of the courts of the United States to see that the law of Congress is enforced. To say the least of it, bad faith is being practiced in the premises. Chicago took the money of the government upon the condition specified and should be held to a strict performance of the contract. It is said that a lot of shows, differing but little from variety theatres, were in full operation during the whole of Sunday last. This fact alone should determine every christian man to keep outside of the gates. If the christian sentiment of the land is to be treated with contempt let the christian people boycott the Fair.

The body of Jefferson Davis was removed from its resting place in Louisiana and reinterred at Richmond, Va., this week, with imposing ceremonies.

The Troublesome Chinese Question.

The Geary law, requiring the deportation of unregistered Chinese, is likely to prove something of a boomerang. The Chinese government is fully acquainted with the entire proceeding and will probably, as already intimated, adopt measures of retaliation. It has already taken steps that indicate such a purpose. A census of all Americans in China has been ordered, and every citizen of the United States residing in the Flowery Kingdom, whatever his occupation may be, will be located and registered. There are, it is true, no laborers among them, and as the Geary law applies to laborers only, our government might technically claim that the expulsion of American citizens other than those belonging to the laboring class would be an extreme measure. But the government of China will not, probably, consider mere technicalities in dealing with the question. The Geary law was a concession to the hoodlums of the Pacific States, who are intensely hostile to Chinese labor. Nineteen-twentieths of the American people, probably, entertain no antipathy to Chinamen in any sphere or occupation. But Chinese cheap labor is inimical to the interests of a certain laboring element in California and other Pacific States, and Democrats vied with Republicans in voting for the law requiring their registration, with onerous conditions, or their deportation from the country. The strongest kind of Democratic free traders did not hesitate to protect California laborers by this method, while protesting against the principle of protection in other directions.

But everybody, except, possibly, the Pacific coast hoodlums in whose interest the Geary law was passed, failed to consider the consequences to Americans in China, in the event of the enforcement of this law. The hoodlums don't care for consequences to anybody but themselves, and are sublimely indifferent to the fate that may overtake Americans in China, as a result of enforcing the deportation of Chinese laborers from the United States.

Perhaps it is fortunate that Congress failed to provide the means of such deportation. The inability of the President to enforce the law offers opportunity for a breathing spell and may give time to modify, by future legislation, some of the more objectionable features of the law. The government of China is evidently anticipating some such action, and will take no overt step against citizens of the United States within its jurisdiction, pending the action of the government of this country. Should the President determine to enforce the extreme requirement of the Geary law, even in a limited number of cases, China may be expected to pursue a course of vigorous retaliation, perhaps even to the extent of non-intercourse commercially.

The worst feature of the case, however, will be the dangers to which Americans in China will be exposed at the hands of the rabble. As the Chinese on the Pacific slope are practically at the mercy of the hoodlums, who threaten mob violence if the Geary law shall not be enforced by the President, so the American missionaries, merchants and tradesmen in China will be exposed to the murderous assaults of the bigots of that country, and many a precious American life may fall a sacrifice to the passions engendered by what the people of China regard as the cruelty of America.

It is a perplexing problem and President Cleveland may well hesitate and reflect deeply before precipitating the consequences likely to flow from carrying the Geary law into effect. And yet, if he determines to hold the matter in abeyance, it will be well to provide for the protection of the Chinese in California and elsewhere from the wrath of their enemies, whose disappointment will be keen, and who will scarcely hesitate to visit violence upon the objects of their hatred, unless proper repressive measures shall be adopted.

A copy of a letter addressed to the Advocate, over the signature "American," as a reply to the strictures of that paper, last week, on the Patriotic Order of the Sons of America, is published in another column, by request. It appears in the SENTINEL anonymously, but, we are informed by the writer, has been sent to the Advocate and its author is therefore known to the editors and it will not be regarded by them as an anonymous attack, a proceedure which, we think, is rarely, if ever justifiable. We have not been led to change our own views of the order under discussion, by the Advocate's criticism, and may refer to the subject editorially in the future.

The desecration of the battlefield of Gettysburg by a trolley passenger railway company is provoking vigorous protests from the press of the North generally. It is a shameful proceeding and if there is any power to undo what has already been done and to restore the field as nearly as possible to the condition it presented before the work of constructing the road was commenced, it should be immediately invoked. A gentleman who visited the battlefield last week, stated that he found a force of men excavating and blasting rocks in the vicinity of Devil's Den, one of the most picturesque spots on the field, absolutely destroying some of the most prominent landmarks. No spot in the world seems too sacred to be untouched by the vandal hands of the money-grabber.

The announcement that Ex-Secretary of the Treasury Charles Foster, of Fostoria, Ohio, had made an assignment for the benefit of creditors was an event of the closing days of last week that startled financial circles and elicited expressions of sympathy all over the country. Mr. Foster was engaged in numerous enterprises and many men were employed by the concerns with which he was connected. Most of these will lose their places. Mr. Foster's liabilities are large, but he made an earnest effort to tide over the difficulty. Stagnation in business, consequent upon the uncertain financial policy of the administration and the avowed purpose to change the economic system of the government and substitute free-trade for protection, made it impossible to obtain the money to meet accruing obligations by collection, or by loans from the banks, and the man who has built up Fostoria, given employment to hundreds of men and helped many others in business, was obliged to succumb to the pressure. He is not the first and it is much to be feared will by no means be the last who will suffer by the policy threatened by the Democratic party.

Contempt for the Soldiers.

The following telegram from Washington, under date of the 27th inst., reveals something of the indifference of President Cleveland for the memory of the men who laid down their lives that we might have a country at all, to say nothing of the contempt, expressed by his conduct, for the survivors of the struggle for the maintenance of free government:

WASHINGTON, May 27.—President Cleveland and some member of his Cabinet, probably Secretary Carlisle, will leave Washington on Tuesday for Hog Island, Va., to spend Decoration day.

When a committee of the G. A. R. visited him a few days ago to invite him to attend the strewing of flowers on the graves of the dead heroes at Arlington, Mr. Cleveland let the committee wait in the anteroom, and finally sent back word that he was too busy to see them.

The recurrence of the memorial anniversary is probably an unpleasant reminder to the Chief Magistrate, of the fighting by proxy in which he engaged under the constraint of the law requiring military service in person or by substitute; but he might, at least, have the grace to treat the war veterans with common courtesy. He may be assured that they did not seek the presence of Grover Cleveland, the man, at the spot where they honored the memory of their comrades who fell in the conflict, but Grover Cleveland, the President of the country the heroes who lie beneath the silent mounds died to save; and whatever may be his personal sentiments concerning the cause for which they died and for which their living comrades fought and suffered, he owed at least, to these men, the grace of official courtesy, if nothing more. He went to Hog Island.

Alexander Russell Webb, an American convert to Mahomedanism, proposes to establish Musselman colonies in the southern portion of this country, for the purpose of propagating Islamism here, as well as to provide comfortable homes for the followers of the prophet. Now is the time to arrest this movement. The population of the United States is already sufficiently heterogeneous in race and religion without the introduction of a new element. We have laws excluding Chinese immigration and are, just now, in something of a ferment concerning the deportation, under forms of law, of many of those already here. Mob violence is threatened if the law shall not be carried into effect. It is more than probable that the presence of numerous Mahomedans in the South would eventually beget hostility and disturbance, and that they would prove an undesirable element of the body politic. Better to keep them out than be forced to thrust them out after they shall have secured a lodgment upon American soil.

A Letter to the Advocate.

TANEYTOWN, MD., MAY 31ST, '93.

Editor Advocate.—DEAR SIR:—As you accepted the opportunity in your last issue to maliciously attack the Patriotic Order Sons of America, and by implication, all American Societies, I hope you will grant me space for a brief reply. My note to you requesting a notice of the organization effort which will be made in Westminster in June, was sent to your paper as well as to the other papers in your city, and was not intended to call forth more than a simple news item. However, as you have in your wisdom seen fit to attack us, thereby giving us a splendid advertisement, I feel like thanking you for your course; and, had your article been simply an honest criticism, and not a gross misrepresentation, no further notice would be necessary on my part. You published several extracts from the pamphlet sent you, which contains the principles of the order in extenso. I am sorry that you only published just enough to best suit your purpose, and not more, or the whole of it, as there is not a sentiment in it to which every American citizen cannot subscribe if he be worthy of the name. I hope that you will kindly publish the following extracts:

Next to the love for the Creator, we believe that patriotism is the highest and noblest affection of the human soul.

We believe that the institutions of no country are safe without patriotic citizens, and that none will so jealously guard and protect them as those who are born and reared under their influence.

We cordially welcome all of those foreigners who come to this country with the honest desire of becoming loyal American citizens, and who sincerely disavow any and all allegiance to foreign Potentates and Governments, and who honor and revere our national flag.

It is non-sectarian and non-partisan. Its membership includes men of all political beliefs, and each is free to exercise his privileges according to the dictates of his conscience only. The discussion of partisan politics in the Order is prohibited by the constitution, the choice of party being left to each individual, believing that he will insist that the first and only duty of that party shall be the welfare of our country.

By disseminating sentiments of loyalty and patriotism; by establishing a fraternal feeling of devotion to country amongst all Americans, we hope to make it impossible for anyone to live under the protection of the "Stars and Stripes" who does not honor and revere it, and who would not be willing to give up his life in defence of the principles of freedom and justice, which it represents.

Efforts have been made to drag the P. O. S. of A. into entanglements with various political parties and societies, but have not been successful. We have no quarrel with any man on account of nationality or religion, but we wish to accord equal justice to all honest American citizens. We ask that Americans be allowed fair play on their own native soil, and we seek by educating public sentiment to advance the idea of "Americans for America" rather than to insist upon "America for Americans."

Do you dare to assert that an organization with such principles "is threatening to the peace and order of society?" Do you think so little of the heritage of liberty bequeathed to us by our forefathers, to be afraid of criticism for jealously guarding it? Is it not better to err on the side of American Patriotism, to boldly guard our institutions, rather than by a too free and mistaken hospitality lower the standard of our greatness as a Nation? Do you believe that intelligent people who "fully inform themselves" as to the character of our society will say with you that it is "a modified form of know-nothingism?"

Mr. Editor you may answer these questions as best suits you; we are frank to say, however, that with all due respect to you as editor of a leading organ of this county, that we firmly believe that there is "a considerable number of persons in Westminster" who will not agree with you, should your answers be in accord with your last week's article. The chief aim of our order is to develop a spirit of enlightened patriotism in the hearts of its members, and through their influence, in the country at large. We do not claim perfection for our American ideas and institutions, but we do claim that they suit us as Americans, and that we do not wish them changed, except so far as they may be strengthened and developed; and we would take it very kindly if our citizens of foreign birth, many of whom have not been in America long enough to speak its language, much less understand its institutions, will just drop the idea that they have a mission to perform here in reforming our ideas and customs to conform them to those of the land of their birth. Enough has been said to indicate the character of our order. We believe that the unprejudiced observer will not agree with you that there is some dangerous aim connected with it because it is "secret."

The feature of secrecy is wholly Ritualistic, and there is not a thought in our initiatory, or general work, which is not fully and openly expressed in our platform of principles. The intimation that the P. O. S. of A. is dangerous and unnecessary, particularly because it does not admit foreigners, is simply preposterous, and in my estimation an admission that membership in it is desirable.

I am aware that many persons have conscientious objections to secret organizations of all kinds, and I will admit that their scruples are entitled to respect, but when the "secret" feature is scarcely noticed by you, and you denounce us chiefly because of our Patriotic American principles, thinking people will be apt to ask the question, Has not the Adeocate some special reason for its action? This is not a political subject yet it looks as if a political reason might be given as a solution to the question.

AMERICAN.

Baltimore met with a great misfortune, on Sunday, by the destruction of the large sugar refinery at Curtis' Bay, with all its new and expensive machinery. The fire started among some waste about six o'clock Sunday morning, and soon passed beyond control, although every possible effort was made to arrest the flames. The loss will approximate a million and a half of dollars, and may be even more than that. The insurance on the plant was only three hundred and sixty thousand dollars. The refinery may be rebuilt, but the chances are against it.

A large Chinese population in America is not desirable. Laws to exclude the introduction of Chinese laborers are proper and should be rigidly enforced. It would be a pitiable confession of imbecility on our part to plead that this cannot be done without the passage of laws to deport those already lawfully here, unless they comply with some onerous and absurd requirements in the nature of an ex-post-facto proceeding. The Geary law should be modified.

Gov. McKinley, of Ohio, visited the General Synod of the Lutheran Church at Canton, Ohio, on Saturday evening last, and, it is said, never received a more cordial greeting than that accorded him by the members of that body.

Wm. Pinkney, one of the condemned murderers of Mr. Francis M. Bowie, of Prince George's county, who walked out of the jail at Upper Marlborough, in broad daylight, on Thursday of last week, is still at large.
