UPPER MARLBORO, MD (Planter's Advocate)

The Planter's Advocate was established September 3, 1851 and published until October, 1861.

The Planter's Advocate was founded by Thomas J. Turner in 1851. He remained editor and proprietor of the paper until October, 1861. A note in the St. Mary's Beacon, Leonardtown, October 31, 1861, indicates the Planter's Advocate had been banned from the mails. An obituary printed in the Prince George's Enquirer, January 6, 1882, for Michael J. Slayman, states Turner fled the area to escape arrest by Federal authorities. The Prince Georgian succeeded the Planter's Advocate in 1862.

Publication frequency: weekly

Issues of the Planter's Advocate are from the collections of the Enoch Pratt Free Library and the Maryland Historical Society. Issues from the Pratt were deposited there by the publishers of the Enquirer-Gazette, Upper Marlboro.

1853, Jan. 5-1853, Dec. 28.
Mutilated: Nov. 30; Dec. 28.
MdHR M 3596