REPUBLICAN TICKET.

FOR PRESIDENT,
WILLIAM McKINLEY,
OF OHIO.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT,
GARRET A. HOBART,
OF NEW JERSEY.

Hon. George L. Wellington has been elected Maryland member of the Republican National Committee, vice James A. Gary resigned.

The Advocate says "everybody wants a sound and stable currency," but it is obvious that some people want a currency that would have only soundness and stability at half its face value.

A gold dollar will purchase enough silver to coin two 412 grain silver dollars. Owners of silver mines want the government to coin two dollars out of a dollar's worth of their metal, for which they can then demand two dollars in gold. The process would be a short cut to national bankruptcy and dishonor. Hard upon that would come the depreciation of silver coin to its bullion value. Farmers, workingmen—everybody who produces anything, or works for wages, would be forced to receive a half dollar for a dollar's worth of his products or for a dollar earned by labor. Why anybody but the owner of a silver mine, or a debtor who wants to liquidate his obligations with fifty cents on the dollar, can want free silver coinage is one of the unsolvable mysteries.

An Illustration.

A story is told which aptly illustrates the certain depreciation in the purchasing power of silver money that would follow free coinage. A visitor from the East to California invited a friend to take a social glass with him in a saloon. He tendered a silver dollar in payment of the fifty cents, the cost of the drinks, and received in change a Japanese silver coin of the same size as his dollar, containing fully as much of the metal, and intrinsically of the same value. The difference in the purchasing power of the two coins lay in the fact that the Government of the United States is under pledge to maintain the silver coined here on a parity with gold. To do this, with the silver now in circulation, the government has borrowed several hundred millions of dollars in gold during the last three years, and a premium on the more precious metal has only been averted by this process. If the coinage of silver were free the goverment could not borrow gold enough to maintain a sufficient reserve against the stream of silver coins that would flow, with ever increasing volume, from its mints. If by any possibility it could do so for a time, the process, in the end, would terminate in national bankruptcy and dishonor. No greater peril than unlimited silver coinage ever threatened the nation. All good citizens, regardless of party, should stand in solid phalanx against it.

For Sound Money, Not Party.

Action that might be regarded as remarkable, from a politician's standpoint, was taken by a number of business organizations of Baltimore, pending the proceedings of the Republican National Convention at St. Louis, this week. These organizations are composed of members of both the leading parties and others, but party affiliations were put aside and they united in appeals to the Maryland delegates to stand firmly for sound money. Several of these appeals, with response by Hon. George L. Wellington, are appended:

President Ramsay, of the Chamber of Commerce, sent to Hon. George L. Wellington, chairman of the Maryland delegation at St. Louis, the following telegram:

"As representing large business interests of the State of Maryland, this exchange calls upon its representatives at the republican convention to cast their votes solidly and unequivocally for a maintenance of the present gold standard."

Congressman Wellington replied as follows:

"Telegram received. Maryland will vote solidly and unequivocally for the maintenance of the present gold standard."

Messrs. William H. Perot, David L. Bartlett and Joseph H. Rieman, vice-presidents of the Board of Trade, sent Hon. James A. Gary, delegate at large at St. Louis, the following telegram:

"The Baltimore Board of Trade, representing the business interests of the State, regardless of party, urge the Maryland delegation to insist on adoption of straight gold platform.

"Business men as a body would support republican ticket against a free-silver democrat."

The last paragraph is significant and embodies a warning to the Democratic party that Maryland cannot be carried on a free coinage platform.

The board of directors of the Woman's College of Frederick has re-elected Prof. Joseph H. Apple, president for the ensuing year, and all the old faculty with a few exceptions. Miss Jennie M. Thomas, of Frederick, becomes instructor in elocution. Miss Bessie A. Wentz, of Bethayres, Pa., has been elected principal of the primary department, and Miss Jones has been advanced to the preparatory department. Miss Mary Noss, of this year's class of graduates, has been retained as assistant in the scientific school.

Of the 247 passengers and crew of the British steamship Drummond Castle, which was sunk off Brest, France, Tuesday night, only three persons, all seamen, were rescued. Bodies of the 244 persons drowned are being recovered almost hourly.

The Court of Appeals has decided that F. Albert Kurtz is entitled to the office of state insurance commissioner.

THE Republican Convention

McKinley and Hobart.

PROTECTION AND SOUND MONEY.

No Straddling.

The Platform and Ticket for Victory.

The Republican National Convention which met at St. Louis on Tuesday completed its work on Thursday evening and completed it well. The platform adopted is sound to the core on the two leading issues before the people—protection and honest money—and is straightforward and unequivocal on every other question of importance. A conclusion was not reached on the currency plank without an energetic fight on the part of the free coinage men, but the convention was overwhelmingly in favor of sound money and opposed to debasing the currency of the country by opening the mints to a deluge of silver which would inevitably end in such a result.

Some of the soundest Republicans on all other issues announced their determination to sever their connection with the party unless their demands for the acceptance of free coinage were gratified, and twenty-three of them, headed by Senator Teller of Colorado, carried their threats into effect by leaving the convention. Senator Pettigrew, of South Dakota, went with them, although the party in that State, through the convention that sent him as a delegate, had declared for the gold standard. His action was a surprise, but his defection causes only regret, not apprehension.

On a test vote 818½ of the delegates were found to be in opposition to free coinage and 105½ in favor of it.

After the adoption of the platform the convention proceeded to the nomination of candidates for President and Vice-President of the United States, and Major William McKinley, of Ohio, was chosen for the first place on the ticket by more than a two-thirds vote, and Garret V. Hobart, of New Jersey, for Vice-President by a substantial majority. There was only one ballot in each case, and each nomination was made unanimous by action of the convention. All the Maryland delegates, except Gen. Felix Agnus, voted for McKinley. Gen. Agnus remained stedfast to Speaker Reed. Ex-Mayor Milton Schaeffer wired the SENTINEL that the nominations were received with great enthusiasm. The ballots were as follows:

President—McKinley, 661½; Reed, 84½; Quay, 61½; Morton, 58; Allison, 50; Cullom, 14; Black, 4.

Vice-President—Hobart, 533½; Evans, 277½; Bulkley, 39; Walker, 24; scattering, 13; absent, 29.

Following is the full text of the platform, except a few comparatively unimportant paragraphs:

The Platform.

The Republicans of the United States, assembled by their representatives in National Convention, appealing for the popular and historical justification of their claims to the bitter fruits of four years of Democratic control, as well as the matchless improvements of thirty years of Republican rule, earnestly and confidently address themselves to the awakened intelligence, experience and conscience of their countrymen in the following declaration of facts and principles:

For the first time since the Civil War the American people have now witnessed the calamitous consequences of full and unrestricted Democratic control of the government. It has been a record of unparalleled incapacity, dishonor and disaster. In the administrative management it has ruthlessly sacrificed indispensable revenue, eked out ordinary current running expenses with borrowed money, piled up the public debt $262,000,000 in time of peace, forced an adverse balance of trade, kept a perpetual menace hanging over the redemption fund for pawned American credit to alien syndicates, and reversed all the measures and results of successful Republican rule.

In the broad effect of its policy it has precipitated panic, blighted industry and trade with prolonged depression, closed factories, reduced work and wages, halted enterprise, and crippled American production, while stimulating foreign production. Consideration of public safety and individual interest demand that the government shall be rescued from the hands of those who have shown themselves incapable of conducting it without disaster at home and dishonor abroad, and shall be restored to the party which for thirty years administered it with unequal success and prosperity.

PROTECTION.

We renew and emphasize our allegiance to the policy of protection as the bulwark of American industrial independence and the foundation of American development and prosperity. This true American policy taxes foreign products and encourages home industry; it puts the burden of revenue on foreign goods; it secures the American market for the American producers; it upholds the American standard of wages for the American workingman; it puts the factory by the side of the farm and makes the American farmer less dependent on foreign demand and price; it diffuses general thrift, and founds the strength of all on the strength of each. In its responsible application it is just, fair and impartial, equally opposed to foreign control and domestic monopoly, to sectional discrimination and individual favoritism.

WILSON LAW DENOUNCED.

We denounce the present Democratic tariff as sectional, partisan and one-sided, and disastrous to the Treasury and destructive of business enterprise, and we demand such an equitable tariff on foreign imports which come into competition with American products as will not only furnish adequate revenue for the necessary expenses of the government, but will protect American labor from degradation and the wage-level of other lands. We are not pledged to any particular schedule. The question of rates is a practical question to be governed by the condition of the times and of production. The ruling and uncompromising principle is the protection and development of American labor and industry.

The country wants a right settlement, and then it wants rest.

LIBERAL RECIPROCITY.

The Republican party renews its pledge for the protection of all American industries against foreign competition, and declares its faith that the supremacy of the United States among the nations is the result of such a policy. We believe in liberal reciprocity and just relation, and demand the application of the golden rule of commerce to all future legislation affecting the tariff and the foreign trade. We believe the repeal of the reciprocity arrangements negotiated by the last Republican administration was a national calamity, and demand their renewal and extension on such terms as will equalize our trade with other nations and remove the restrictions that now obstruct the sale of American products in the ports of Europe, and secure new markets for the products of our farms, forest and factories.

We favor restoring the early American policy of discriminating duties for the upbuilding of our merchant marine and the protection of our shipping in the foreign carrying trade, so that American shipping, the product of American labor employed in American shipyards, sailing under the Stars and Stripes, and manned, officered and owned by Americans, may regain the carrying of our foreign commerce.

FINANCIAL PLANK.

The Republican party is unreservedly for sound money. It caused the enactment of the law providing for the resumption of special payments in 1879. Since then every dollar has been as good as gold.

We are unalterably opposed to every measure calculated to debase our currency or impair the credit of our country. We are, therefore, opposed to the free coinage of silver except by international agreement with the leading commercial nations of the world, which we pledge ourselves to promote, and until such agreement can be obtained the existing gold standard must be preserved. All our silver and paper money now in circulation must be maintained at parity with gold, and we favor all measures designed to maintain inviolably the obligations of the United States, and all our money, whether coin or paper, at the present standard, the standard of the most enlightened nations of the earth.

We condemn the present administration for not keeping faith with the sugar producers of this country. The Republican party favors such measures of encouragement and protection as will speedily lead to the production on American soil of all the sugar which the American people use, and for which they pay to other countries more than $100,000,000 annually.

THE FOREIGN PLANK.

The foreign plank contains a declaration for the protection of American citizens abroad; reaffirms the position of the party in favor of the Monroe Doctrine; endorses the administration of President Harrison on the attitude of this country toward Hawaii; demands protection for American missionaries in Armenia; expresses sympathy for the Cubans in their war for independence, and takes a position in favor of awarding to them belligerent rights.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

Civil service reform is approved, and the extension of the principle wherever practicable. The use of public money for sectarian purposes and the union of church and state are opposed. A declaration is made in favor of arbitration between employes and employers, but no specific legislation is demanded.

A declaration is made in favor of liberal pensions, and the present administration is denounced for dropping from the rolls without examination deserving soldiers.

The building of the Nicaragua Canal by the United States government is favored.

Sketches of the Nominees.

MAJOR WM. MCKINLEY.

The McKinleys came originally from the western part of Scotland. During the religious persecution they, with hundreds of other Covenanters, fled to Ireland. From Ireland two of them—brothers, James and William—came to this country about a quarter of a century before the battle of Bunker Hill. James was only a boy at the time. He settled in York, Pa. There he married. His son David fought under Washington in the Revolution. David McKinley was the great-grandfather of the Ohio statesman. After the colonies had secured their independence David returned to Pennsylvania and lived there until after the war of 1812, when he moved to Columbiana county, Ohio. He founded the Buckeye branch of the family.

Poland, where the Major was born, January 29th, 1843, is the southwesternmost township in the original Western Reserve.

Company E, of the Twenty-third Ohio, was Poland's contribution to the Union forces. Wm. S. Rosecrans was the colonel of the regiment; Stanley Matthews, afterward justice of the Supreme Court, was the second officer. McKinley enlisted as a private, but when Gen. Rutherford B. Hayes took command of the regiment McKinley became a staff officer. For good work at Antietam Governor Todd, of Ohio, directed the young man's advancement to the grade of lieutenant. Afterward he was brevetted major by President Lincoln.

The regiment was ordered to Washington, and after a short rest there joined McClellan's army and took part in the great battle of Antietam, where McKinley won his first honors. After that bloody experience it went back to the mountains of West Virginia. An order came to hurry on to Pennsylvania. It was obeyed with memorable alacrity. On the trip breakfast was eaten in Pennsylvania, dinner in Maryland and supper in Virginia.

Early in June the Twenty-third joined General Hunter's command. At Lynchburg they encountered the enemy, but the Confederates had been heavily reinforced from Richmond, and they were obliged to retreat. The fighting was done in a dense thicket, impervious to the sunlight. The men were without food or sleep for two days. In July came the battle of Kernstown, near Winchester, in which the national forces were defeated, after a well-contested fight from early in the morning until late at night. The Twenty-third lost in this engagement over one hundred and fifty men and officers. The Union forces were commanded by General Crook and the Confederates by General Early, who had been menacing Washington.

At the age of twenty-two McKinley found himself back in Ohio, his military career over and civil life again confronting him. He entered the law office of Judge Charles E. Glidden. He supplemented office work with a brief course at the Albany Law School. In 1867 he was admitted to the bar. Canton, where he opened his law office, was then a place of about 5,000 inhabitants. It is now a flourishing manufacturing centre of between 30,000 and 35,000 inhabitants. He was nominated and elected district attorney as a republican, served two years and was then defeated.

After his defeat he devoted himself to business, and in a few years had built up a lucrative practice. He married Miss Ida Saxton in 1871.

He was nominated for Congress in 1876, and for fourteen years afterwards represented the district of which Stark county was a part; not the same district, for the democrats gerrymanded the district four times, and once successfully. The first was in 1878, when McKinley was put in a district that had 1,800 democratic majority. He carried it by 1,300 votes. In 1882 another attempt was made to beat him. He escaped defeat, but by a narrow margin of eight votes. In 1890, Stark county was put in a district with Wayne, Medina and Holmes. A year before this district had given Campbell, the democratic candidate for governor, 2,900 majority. McKinley entered the list against Lieutenant-Governor Warwick, and came within 363 votes of beating his opponent. He polled 2,500 votes more than had been given Harrison in 1888. This defeat in 1890 took him out of Congress, but made him Governor of Ohio the following year.

Major McKinley, as one of the delegates at large from Ohio in 1884, favored the nomination of Mr. Blaine for the presidency. Four years later he indignantly refused to allow any votes to be cast for himself for President.

Major McKinley became acquainted with the tariff and as chairman of the committee on ways and means had charge of the high tariff bill of 1890, which bears his name. In the Ohio State campaign of 1891 he opposed the free coinage of silver.

Major McKinley's home life is very happy, despite the fact that his wife is an invalid. Mrs. McKinley was Miss Ida Saxton, daughter of James and Mary Saxton, of Canton, Ohio. She received an excellent education when a girl, spent some time abroad, and became her father's assistant in the bank, where it was said that her pretty face attracted bouquets and bank notes to the window. "She must be trained," said her father, "to buy her own bread if necessary, and not to sell herself to matrimony."

Mrs. McKinley spends most of her time in a cozy apartment on the second floor, and much of her leisure is devoted to crocheting those dainty little slippers which have so many times brought sunshine into gloomy hospital wards in various parts of the country. It is said that she has knitted over four thousand pairs of these slippers in her twenty years of invalid life. In appearance Mrs. McKinley is of medium height, with brown hair and large deep blue eyes. Although an invalid she makes and receives calls and often goes on shopping tours. Mrs. McKinley cares little for dress, although her toilets are always in excellent taste.

GARRET A. HOBART.

Garret A. Hobart, nominated by the republican party for the vice-presidency of the United States, was born at Long Branch, N. J., in 1844. He graduated from Rutger's College before he was twenty years old and studied law with Socrates Tuttle at Paterson, being admitted to the bar in 1866.

In 1872 he was elected a member of the New Jersey House of Delegates, and was re-elected and chosen Speaker. He declined an election in 1875, and in 1877 he was elected Senator from Passaic county. He was re-elected to this position and served in the office from that time until the expiration of the year 1882, being president pro tem. of the body for the last two years of which he was a member.

In 1884 he was nominated by the republican caucus of the Legislature for United States Senator, but was not elected, as the Legislature was democratic and John R. McPherson was chosen. In 1884 he became a member of the national republican committee.

He is the president of the Passaic Water Company, the Acquackanonk Water Company, the Paterson Railroad Company's consolidated lines, the Morris County Railroad and the People's Gas Company. He is a director in several national banks, including the First National Bank of Paterson and the Paterson Savings Institution. He is also on the directory boards of the New York, Susquehanna and Western Railroad, the Lehigh and Hudson River Railroad, the Barbour Bros. Company, the Barbour Flax Spinning Company, the Pioneer Silk Company, the Edison Electric Illuminating Company, the American Cotton Oil Company, and some forty or more additional corporations. With many of these concerns he holds the position of legal adviser.

Mr. Hobart is a resident of Patterson, where he has a beautiful home, which is the centre of the social amenities of the city.
