Severe on Mr. Gorman.

Referring to Senator Gorman's prospective chairmanship of the Democratic State Central Committee the Hagerstown Mail, Democratic, says, among other things:

"If Senator Gorman takes this position there will be a general and indignant outcry throughout the State. The objections to him are numerous and sufficient. The record of his past management alone is sufficient to show the utter folly of keeping him in the position, which he has never ceased practically to hold since 1872. His methods have dissipated a clear and honest democratic majority of 25,000 in the State until now the party is fighting for its life, with one-third of Baltimore city, the democratic stronghold, in the hands of the enemy. Under the management during this time ballot boxes have been looted, fraud has been triumphant and election officers sent to the penitentiary.

Under this management legislatures have been nominated and "elected" in Baltimore city in defiance of the public will until it was a public scandal, and the legislation of the State has been in the control of a corrupt and vile lobby.

Independence of thought in the party has been crushed out and the design has been that no one could be considered a democrat who refused to carry the mark of the Beast upon his forehead.

The defalcation in the treasury, the disgrace to the State and to the party, has been the direct outcome of the methods of party management for the past eighteen years."

"Mr. Gorman has the reputation of being a great political manager.

This reputation is not based upon his success in leading the democratic party of his State to victory, for we have shown that under his management it has met defeat and disgrace."

The "Original Package" Decision.

Another of our occasional correspondents, "O. T. B." of Flemingsburg, Ky., sends us a criticism of the "original package" decision of the Supreme Court of the United States. It will be found on the first page of the SENTINEL. We are constrained to say that its chief merit lies in the interesting description it gives of the effect of prohibition in Fleming county, Ky., of which Flemingsburg is the county town. In that respect it will be read with pleasure by all who are glad to hear of substantial progress in the subjugation of intemperance and the liquor traffic. We are not able to see, however, that as an argument it presents any forcible reason against the legal propriety of the decision it assails. That decision is not at all in the line of the Dred Scott case. It deals solely with an abstract constitutional question. The court may have erred in construing that question; but there is not the slightest evidence of, or reason for supposing that, any element of party interest entered into its consideration. Under previous decisions of the Supreme Court the right of the States to regulate or prohibit the manufacture or sale of alcoholic liquors was declared to exist, in brief, as a police right. To the ordinary mind the "original package" decision would seem, in a measure, to circumscribe a recognized police power on the part of the State; but there are many nice distinctions and refinements of the law that are a puzzle to the minds of the best informed and most learned members of the legal fraternity. Some lawyers acknowledge the decision of the Supreme Court, in the case under discussion, to be perfectly sound and tenable, while others denounce it as at variance with former decisions conceding the police power of the States to regulate or prohibit the sale of liquor.

While a layman may bitterly regret the conclusion of the court on the subject, it hardly seems the province of those unlearned in the law to practically stigmatize the decision as the result of improper influences and of partisan bias. In fact the opinion represents the judgment of both Republican and Democratic members of the court.

As we understand the decision it simply declares, in substance, that no State has the right or power to prohibit, by statute or by organic law, the transportation into or the sale, in it, in original packages, of alcoholic liquors. A good deal can be said, on both sides of the case, but it is not our purpose to discuss it. The Supreme Court may, or may not have made a mistake in its construction of the law. That is not in the province of a layman to decide; but we feel it our duty to say with emphasis that the motives of the court should not be impugned and its members practically stigmatized as corrupt and unworthy. The theory advanced by some that, under the decision, an original package may be made so small as to contain only a single drink of liquor, is preposterous. An original package, in the sense of the commercial phrase, must be of sufficient size to be shipped singly.

Undoubtedly the decision is a severe blow against prohibition, and is to be deprecated; but if it be in consonance with the provisions of the National Constitution, the fault lies not in the decision but in the instrument construed. It is, certainly, an unlooked for effect of the constitutional limitation placed upon the States concerning interstate commerce.

The Baltimore American says "President Harrison has a son of whom he may feel proud. In the burning of the great exposition building at Fort Worth, Russell B. Harrison did brave and efficient service in preventing a fatal panic. He stood under the burning rafters commanding order and begging the strong not to crush the weak. He did not move from the place of danger until all had escaped, and then he aided in saving valuable records. No wonder Texas is praising his bravery."

Two little grandsons of Mr. Charles W. Johnson, of Frederick, were killed by lightning in Ross county, Ohio, on Monday.

Let Justice be Done.

Under this caption the Hagerstown Mail of last week admits that the charge made by the Republicans that the Democratic campaign fund shared in the proceeds of the Archer defalcation is given some coloring by recent disclosures. The Mail speaks out boldly and says:

"The latest revelations in the Archer matter are more sensational than any since the original disclosure.

It seems that the Mutual Fire Co. of Harford county held $10,000 of Treasury Relief bonds. Mr. Archer desired to purchase them for the sinking fund. He first thought the amount was $8,000. He drew up a check for that amount which he got the comptroller to countersign. After finding that the amount was $10,000 he drew another check for something over $2,000.

But instead of paying for the bonds with these checks he abstracted B. & O. car trust bonds from the State's strong box and paid for the bonds he had bought with them. Then he asked Mr. Cairnes, the secretary of the insurance company, to endorse the checks "in order to keep his accounts straight."

The checks thus endorsed were in Mr. Archer's hands available as cash.

This transaction took place during the last campaign, and one of the checks bears the endorsement of the Treasurer of the State Central Committee.

This gentleman can doubtless explain how his endorsement got on the check, and the quicker he does so the better, for as the matter now stands it has a very ugly look for the managers.

Another check of $5,000, obtained by Mr. Archer in the same way, to buy Treasury Relief bonds, was used by him to pay off his individual notes in the Mechanics' National Bank and to redeem bonds already belonging to the State, which had been pledged by him as collateral security.

These discoveries swell the amount of the defalcation considerably beyond the generally accepted amount of $132,000.

Up to this time we have been unable to learn how Mr. Archer spent so much money. The attempt to attribute it in any degree to an extravagant family does gross injustice to a noble woman, whose entire patrimony, we learn, is swept away in the general ruin. We can hear of no speculating, no gambling, no extravagant habits, no payment of old debts except the appropriation of one trust fund to make another good.

The republicans do not hesitate to charge that the money went into the democratic campaign fund in Baltimore city, and the facts we have already given and the further fact that the disclosure was made just after and not until the failure to realize anything from the lobby, gives some coloring to the charge.

The democratic party should not rest day nor night until the matter is thoroughly investigated, and if it is unhappily true, then punish the rascals. If the money was used for that purpose others besides Archer must be implicated in it or have been privy to it.

If they are the welfare of the party demands their punishment and disgrace."

"The First Gun."

The above phrase is a favorite with some of our Democratic journalistic brethren, in its application to primary Democratic victories. We beg to borrow it as appropriate to the reverberations that come rolling over the mountains, valleys and plains that lie between this longitude and the Pacific Slope. This time it isn't a Democratic gun, but the loud, resonant and ringing echoes of Republican artillery announcing a Protectionist victory in far away Oregon, the first State to elect a Representative to the Fifty-Second Congress. The news it tells is the re-election of Hon. Binger Herrman to Congress by seven or eight thousand majority; the election of an overwhelming Republican majority of the members of the State Legislature, and of all the Republican candidates for State officers, by four to six thousand majority, except Thompson for Governor. The latter was probably defeated by his Democratic competitor. Of course some local cause must have operated in bringing about that result, so that the election is a triumphant and glorious victory for the protective system, and an emphatic endorsement of the McKinley Tariff bill. Democratic predictions of disaster in this battle are shown to have been about as baseless as the usual prognostications in that direction, and the tidal wave, about which Democratic editors were writing a few weeks ago, must have lapped the shores of the Pacific and broken in gentle impotence before it got a fair start. The deluge of free-trade is not yet. The latest returns show Herrman's election by upwards of nine thousand majority, fully three thousand more than any State candidate. The Democratic candidate for Governor has upwards of three thousand majority. Could the endorsement of Protection be more emphatic?

The Census and the Numerators.

The census bureau, after using the press as a gratuitious medium of advertising and as a means of obtaining statistics and information, has very kindly repaid the favors thus obtained by notifying the enumerators to withhold all knowledge concerning their operations from press agents, local news gatherers and newspapers and others generally. What the necessity for this order may have been we are not informed, but it is safe to say that anybody fit to be a census enumerator would not divulge anything improper to be told. We are able to say, in a general way, that these officials in this county have been having a warm time of it since they commenced operations. The difficulty, however, has been with the temperature of the atmosphere and not with the temper of the inhabitants.

Very little, if any objection has been made to the official catechism, and people respond slowly or promptly, according as they catch the meaning of the inquiries. It is safe to say that the enumerators are compelled to supplement the official questions, in many cases, with a good many of their own, before getting the information desired and required. In the main the work in this county is progressing satisfactorily and will probably be completed on time. The compensation to the enumerators for trudging around the country, under a burning sun, with the thermometer up in the nineties in the shade, isn't extravagant and these officials are not really enjoying a bonanza.

It Is Constitutional.

The Democratic party of Alabama, in convention assembled at Montgomery, on the 31st ult., resolved "that any interference on the part of the Federal government in the election of our Senators and Representatives in Congress is an usurpation of power unwarranted by the constitution."

If the Democrats of Alabama and other Southern States would cease their own usurpations of power and unwarranted interference with the individual rights of legal voters, the necessity for Federal interference in the elections held, for the purpose of selecting Representatives in Congress, would not exist, and there would be no disposition to provide for holding such elections under officers other than those appointed by the States. But the wholesale disfranchisement of a large body of legally qualified voters, makes the exercise of the just and constitutional powers of the government, in providing machinery for the selection of Representatives in the National Congress, an absolute duty; and, however much the enactment of a Federal election law may be deprecated as centralizing in its tendency, it is clearly constitutional.

The framers of the constitution were far seeing statesmen, but it is possible that in this respect they bulided better than they knew. It is just possible that they foresaw that the time might come when local injustice and outrages upon the rights of voters, and so wrongs upon the whole country, might make it necessary to place the election of National Representatives under machinery provided by Congressional legislation. But, whether done by design or inadvertence, the clear constitutional right is given to Congress to make such provision, and the declaration of the Democratic State convention of Alabama, quoted above, is the purest buncombe. The gravest feature about the whole business is the deplorable wrongs against voters that make this Congressional action necessary.

General Synod Reformed Church.

The General Synod of the Reformed Church of the United States met at Lebanon, Pa., on the 28th ult, and at latest advices was still in session. Maryland is represented in the body by Rev. J. S. Keiffer, D. D., of Hagerstown; Rev. J. G. Noss, of Silver Run; and Rev. S. S. Miller, of Boonsboro. Mr. G. S. Griffith, of Baltimore, is one of the lay delegates. One of the most important subjects under consideration was a proposed union with the Dutch Reformed Church in America. Three years ago a joint committee was appointed to consider the question and on Friday of last week Rev. T. G. Apple, D. D., chairman of the Reformed delegation, made the report of the committee, giving the results of many sessions of long and serious discussions. Dr. Apple in making the report said, in substance: "Our delegation started out with the purpose of reaching an organic union, but they soon found that for good reasons this was impossible on the part of the Dutch brethren, because their General Synod is so vitally related to their institutions, endowments, legacies and other interests that its dissolution would have been most serious. Hence the joint committee agreed upon a federal union, in a new judicatory over both our General Synods, one that will have charge of certain general interests; and they resolved: that while they prefer a closer union yet, as this cannot now be had they approve the plan of a federal union, and suggest the appointment of a commission of sixteen by each Church to elaborate the plan, and ask that the officers of Synod be authorized to call a special meeting of Synod, at the call of this commission, to perfect the union."

After favorable remarks on the report by prominent members of the Synod it was adopted by a rising vote, unanimously, and with much enthusiasm.

Maryland to Massachusetts.

A Southern woman—Miss Mary B. Shellman, of Westminster, Md., sent a large box of wreaths and flowers to the Woman's Relief Corps, of Massachusetts, with which to decorate the graves of Massachusetts soldiers. The flowers were received by Mrs. Harriet Reed, the department treasurer, and were used in decorating graves in Mt. Hope Cemetery. The gift was accompanied by the following letter from Miss Shellman:

"'With malice toward none, with charity for all,' I lay at the feet of the defenders of the Union these wreaths of Maryland flowers as a tribute to Massachusetts valor. A true daughter of the South, loving my native state with an undying love, but recognizing her as one link only in the chain which unites us in one grand, common country, I give my tears, saddened with regret for the mistaken cause for which so many of my kindred valiantly laid down their lives, I lay the laurel of victory on the grave of my country's defenders. Maryland soil, wet with the blood of some of her bravest and best, Maryland, my Maryland, clasping in her arms and shielding on her breast the sacred dust of many a loyal son, brings, with the springtime, her offering of sweetest flowers, Marguerites from the meadow and laurel from the mountain, and weaving them into garland with gentle hand and throbbing heart, lays them tenderly on the graves of the brave and valiant sons of Massachusetts"

It is reported that a train of two cars, filled with officials of the B. & O. R. R., went through a trestle somewhere east of Wheeling on Thursday night. A special train with surgeons was sent out from Wheeling to the scene. No particulars could be obtained.
