About 500 acres are cleared, well ditched & drained and under good fence, cultivated in a farm The canal cut by act of Assembly for ditching and draining the Long Marsh, passes through a considerable part of the above land and gives sufficient fall for draining about 400 acres of low grounds, well adapted to produce Timothy grass of the best quality. The roads from Centreville to Dover and from Greensborough to the head of Chester, intersect each other nearly at right angles about the middle of this farm, on which are orchards containing about 1000 apple trees of the choicest fruits, from which more than 800 gallons of brandy have been distilled in one year.
