Is it Disintegrating?

It was rather fortunate than otherwise that the Farmers' Alliance movement culminated so promptly in the organization of a so called People's party, as it has given those Republicans, in Kansas and other Western States, who were inveigled into it, an opportunity to learn that their brethren of the Alliance in the South propose to make their fight within the lines of the Democratic party and to use the new party to defeat the Republicans. Unless counteracted the movement would undoubtedly have that tendency. There are said to be evidences of its disintegration, however, and a dispatch to the New York Herald says that "thousands of the Republicans in Kansas now believe that they have been hoodwinked by Brothers Polk and Livingston, and that the Republican leaders were right last year when they warned them not to be caught in the Southern Democratic trap. When only thirty-two out of the 1,400 delegates at the Cincinnati Convention came from the entire Southern States, as compared with the 400 from Kansas alone, the ex-Republicans who went into the movement in that State last year began to open their eyes. * * * The failure of scores of sub-alliances to hold meetings, and the refusal on the part of hundreds of members to pay in their regular dues and assessments, is attributed directly to the refusal of the Southern Alliance men to comply with their pledges of last year and renounce their affiliation with the Democratic party, and indorse the action of the Cincinnati Convention."

The New York Tribune alleges that this is "understating the reaction against the Alliance at the West." It is to be hoped these statements are correct. The economic legislation of the last Congress has had but little time in which to demonstrate its value and advantage to the country, but in that short period it has become manifest that the apprehensions, created by a system of false representations, were entirely unfounded, and that the law is working the best results in the development of home industries, without adding to the cost of living. To arrest these operations by overthrowing the new law would be a national calamity, but that is just what Democratic success means. It would be gratifying to know that the issue is to be made squarely between the Republican and Democratic parties, on the real merits of the case, without a side diversion to help or hinder the cause of either. With the disintegration of the new party threatened, at this early period of its existence, that condition may be anticipated and the Republicans, in that case, need not fear the result.

It Might be a Costly Compliment.

The action of the Democratic convention on Monday last, in this county, in authorizing Mr. Frank Brown to appoint the delegates to the State convention, was a great compliment to that gentleman. Mr. Brown is the county's choice for the gubernatorial nomination, to be sure, and the convention gave great emphasis to the fact by its action; but the convention to whom his delegates will be accredited will also nominate candidates for Comptroller, Attorney General and Clerk of the Court of Appeals, and in investing him with authority to appoint them, he was also practically empowered to that extent to name his associates on the ticket, if nominated for Governor himself.

In the event of a close contest in the State convention the action of the county convention might raise a very interesting question as to the validity of the appointment of the delegates named by Mr. Brown. The county convention was called for the purpose of selecting five delegates to the State convention, not to delegate that duty to an individual. Its having done so might be made the pretext for depriving the county of representation at all, if to do so should suit the purposes of the State managers. In that event the compliment would prove a costly one indeed.

According to the judgment of the Democratic convention of Carroll county Senator Gorman is worthy to receive any honor within the power of the Democratic party to bestow, because of his services in defeating the so called force bill. It might be in the order to inquire what honor should be given him for his vote for free silver, and for the result of his party leadership in producing a defaulting State Treasurer—the first in the history of the State—who was at the same time Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, a Governor who was ignorant of a simple constitutional duty and a Comptroller who neglected his because he had full confidence in the integrity of the fiduciary officer referred to, not to speak of sundry flagrant outrages on the ballot in Baltimore city, Howard county and elsewhere in the State, committed by his henchmen. The fact is that if the political offences attributed to Mr. Gorman by prominent Democrats were commited by him, a lifetime of the most meritorious acts would not outweigh them or render him worthy any honor at the hands of a pure party.

The Democratic county convention, which met in this city on Monday last, reaffirmed the principles of the party as summarized from the constitution by Thomas Jefferson. Principle is one thing; practice is another. It can hardly be claimed that the Democratic party has adhered very closely to the line of political doctrine laid down by Jefferson, either nationally or locally. For instance, the Democratic party has not been distinguished for its devotion to "the preservation of the General Government," or by "a jealous care of the right of election by the people," nor has it always advocated "the honest payment of our debts and sacred preservation of the public faith." These are cardinal Jeffersonian precepts, with which the party that assumes to follow his teachings and statedly reaffirms his principles, has been lamentably at variance in practice.

Electric Executions.

About the only advantage of the execution of criminals by electricity, over the old method by hanging, would seem to be in the absence of the physical contortions usual in the latter. Persons who have been well nigh dead by strangulation have declared that no great amount of physical torture attended the process. The mental anguish of a condemned man, in the act of preparation for his execution, doubtless far outweighs the mere physical torture inflicted by hanging, except in cases where the executioner commits some almost unpardonable blunder. From the published accounts of the executions at Sing Sing, on Tuesday, it would appear that the criminals had to pass through just as trying an ordeal in being brought to the final act of execution as they would have done if the method used had been the scaffold. The process of fastening to the death chair until the condemned wretch became powerless to move a muscle, as minutely described in the daily newspapers, appears to have been painfully tedious, and, if accurately represented, must have been more trying than simply having the hands and feet tied and a rope adjusted about the neck. The killing, however, was much more expeditious than by hanging. It must be said that as long as men will commit capital crimes they cannot expect to escape the horrors attendant upon the infliction of the just penalty of their offences; but it is to be hoped that if the electric method of execution becomes general the country may be spared the minute description of such events that marked that occurred at Sing Sing on Tuesday. A brief paragraph or two, including an official certificate of the execution, by authorized physicians, would embody all the information necessary to be known on the subject, and a morbid public desire to obtain more should not be gratified.

Hannibal Hamlin Dead.

Ex-Vice-President Hannibal Hamlin died suddenly in Bangor, Maine, on Saturday night. He went to the room of the Tarratine Club during the afternoon, where he was taken ill and became unconscious. Mrs. Hamlin and other members of his family were sent for, and he rallied somewhat, but the reaction was temporary and he died at a quarter after 8 o'clock.

Mr. Hamlin was a native of Maine, where he was born August 27th, 1809. On account of the death of his father he was unable to obtain a collegiate education and took charge of the farm until he arrived at the age of twenty-one. Then he learned printing, studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1833. He was a member of the Maine Legislature from 1836 till 1840, when he was a Democratic candidate for Congress, but was defeated. He was again a candidate in 1842 and was successful. In 1844 he was re-elected to Congress and in 1848 was chosen to fill an unexpired term in the United States Senate and to a full term in 1851. He was opposed to the extension of slavery and when the Republican party was organized identified himself with it and was elected Governor of Maine, and resigned his seat in the Senate to be inaugurated in 1857. He only held the office a few weeks, however, as he was again chosen Senator, serving until January, 1861, when he resigned to become Vice-President on March 4th following. He was collector of customs at Boston during the Johnson administration and in 1869 was again selected to the Senate and served twelve years, after which, for a brief period, he was Minister to Spain.

He has passed away at a ripe old age, leaving a public and private record unsullied by a single questionable act. His memory will be honored as that of a man who faithfully discharged every duty and maintained a pure and upright character to the end of his life.

Fatal Railroad Accidents.

A terrible railroad disaster occurred at Ravenna, Ohio, at 3 o'clock, A. M., on the 3rd instant. At the hour named an express train was standing at the railroad station at that place adjusting some defect in a coupling, when a fast freight train dashed into its rear. A day coach was completely telescoped and two sleepers set on fire and burned. Nineteen persons were killed outright and twelve badly injured, some of them fatally. Many of the victims were badly burned. Most of them were glass-blowers, who had been employed at works which had suspended operations. The accident was attributed to the negligence of a flagman who failed to flag the approaching train promptly, but even then might have been averted if the freight train had been provided with airbrakes.

Another dreadful accident occurred at 8 o'clock Saturday morning, on the Kanawha and Michigan Railroad, 8 miles from Charleston, West Va. A passenger train, filled mostly with members of the Order of United American Mechanics, laborers and their wives, out for a holiday, was derailed on a trestle and dashed to the bottom of a ravine about thirty feet. Thirteen persons were killed and fifty or sixty injured, some of them fatally. The accident was caused by the burning of ties at the approach to the trestle.

The scenes of horror in connection with both these accidents were indescribable. Both might have been avoided by the observance of proper precautions and something should be done to prevent the recurrence of such disasters. In fact all the means that human judgment can devise should be employed for the protection of human life exposed to the dangers of railroad travel.

"Electrocution," says the New York Tribune, "is a dreadful word, whatever the quality of the thing described may be; but we suspect that the only way to keep it out of the dictionaries is to repeal the law which brought it into existence, and we fear it is too late even for that heroic treatment." We suppose the Tribune's conclusion is correct, but the fact is very much to be regretted. Some learned philologist should invent a better word and relegate this clumsy expression to the shades of oblivion.

Charles Smith, aged 23 years, son of John Smith, of Woodsboro, Frederick county, fell under the wheels of a wagon loaded with a hundred bushels of wheat, on Friday of last week, and was crushed to death. No one saw him fall and the cause and manner of the accident are unknown and mysterious. His entire left side was crushed. He was a nephew of James M. Smith, of Woodsboro.

A Visit to Atlantic City.

NEW WINDSOR, MD., JULY 8TH, '91.

MR. EDITOR.—I must give you a little account of a very pleasant little trip to one of the great seaside resorts, Atlantic City, N. J. I say great, because it lives without the many visitors who go there during the warm weather. It is a city of itself, nicely built, with fine streets, drives, street cars, electric lights, fine stores, banks, &c. But during the summer months it is doubled and trebled in population. I do not find fault with any one who goes there, and, more than that, I think everybody ought to go at least once in a lifetime. This was our second visit and I won't say that we won't go again. Our party consisted of nine persons—Mr. Geo. E. Emmons, his wife (nee Jennie Smith,) children, Edith and Mary—Miss Ada Smith, myself, Mary, John and Marie.

We arrived there at 5 o'clock Friday, P. M., and there were plenty more who got there the same day. We went directly to the Hotel Aldine, Pacific Avenue, between Ohio and Michigan, and a very homelike, comfortable place it is, pleasantly located near the beach, and they treated us nicely and fed us well, and how we did enjoy it. It did me good to see our party eat. I don't know how it suited the proprietor, Mr. Eastman, but I believe it did him good to see us enjoy ourselves. There were 150 others there who seemed to enjoy the good things as much as we did.

We bathed, we walked, we boated, we rode on the electric car, the razzle-dazzle, the toboggan, the gravity, the merry-go-rounds, and we patronized the shooting gallery, &c., &c.; in fact almost everything and every place that would please the children, of course. Sunday night we attended church; and a very good sermon we heard. Monday we hired a sail-boat and went out to sea, not very far. A very old boatman—Monroe by name—took us, and he said the sail was 15 miles, and we have no right to doubt his word. Some of the party were very well satisfied to come in again as they got, oh, so very sick! and the children wanted "to go home!" We caught sea bass and flounders, quite a nice lot, and the children were pleased as well as the older ones.

There were 778 car loads of people landed at Atlantic City from Friday until Sunday, P. M., (official reports Pa. R. R.,) and when they were scattered over the place it was not crowded; but when you were on the electric car, (Atlantic avenue) you thought they were all there; when you were at the inlet you thought they were all there, and when you were on the Board walk, (5 miles long and 25 feet wide,) you thought they were all there. One thing I noticed, they were all in good humor, and all trying to see who could have the most fun.

We had a good time, and now we are home again; Mary is at the bread-tray baking, and is going to have boiled cabbage for dinner, as I saw her cutting it in the garden. I found everything right at the Bank, and Walter Getty said he got along first-rate. We hope to make another 5 per cent dividend at the end of the next six months, and to go again to the seashore if we live.

N. H. BAILE.

P. S.—I forgot to say it is a city without a cemetry, so I guess if you die and must be buried, you must hunt some other place than there.

Maryland G. A. R.

Department Commander of the Maryland G. A. R., Col. Joseph C. Hill, has, in general orders, announced the appointment of Messrs. George K. Graham, James H. Downs, Frank Nolen, Wm. C. Clay and John Bowers as a committee to carry into effect the following resolution adopted at the fifteenth annual encampment of the Department:

"Resolved, That the Annual Encampment of the Department of Maryland, G. A. R., be held on one of the battlefields of the war, if possible, for a period not exceeding one week, to commence on and to include Grand Army Day, September 12th; and that a committee to take charge of the details be appointed."

Three students of the Catholic College at Woodstock, Baltimore county, on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, were killed by lightning on Friday night of last week, at St. Inigoes, St. Mary's county. A number of the students were summering at a villa belonging to the Jesuit Society, which is their usual place of resort during vacation. Finding the roof leaking in the dormitory where they slept they were endeavoring to find a dry place for their beds, around one of which a group of them were standing, when the lightning struck and prostrated them all. Three were killed and several others were injured by the shock. The killed were John B. Lamb, of Boston, William J. Holden, and James Walters of New York.

Jacob Gray who carried the mail between Monkton, Baltimore county, and Fallston, Harford county, was found dangling to his road cart, several days ago, dead. His face and chest were crushed from contact with stones in the road and one leg was broken. It is supposed his horse took fright and ran away and that he fell out of the cart, his leg catching in the shaft. Mr. Gray was a cripple. He resided in Shawsville, Harford county, and leaves a family.

The National Anniversary was celebrated at Pen-Mar in grand style. It is estimated that ten thousand persons were on the grounds, nearly three thousand of whom went from Baltimore by the Western Md. Railroad, requiring fifty-six coaches to carry them, under the general management of Mr. Thomas E. Jenkins. In the afternoon a meeting was held of which General R. H. Carr was chairman. Speeches were made by Mayor Davidson, of Baltimore, and others.

The United States cruiser Charleston, having in charge the Chilian insurgent vessel Itata, arrived at San Diego, Cal., Saturday morning. Some interesting details of the surrender of the Itata are given. Captain Schley, of the cruiser Baltimore, made the demand in these words: "In the name of the United States I confiscate this vessel and her cargo." The vessel was surrendered at once.

The Maryland National Guard went into camp at Lorelcy, near the Relay House, on the B. & O. R. R., on Thursday and will remain until Saturday next, 18th inst. Trains for the camp will run from Camden Station in Baltimore at 5.05, 7.05, 8.50, 9.25, A. M., 13.50, 3.35, P. M., and 5.00, P. M., special.

Four murderers were executed by electricity in Sing Sing prison, N. Y., on Tuesday morning. This time the method was entirely successful and death appears to have been instantaneous. The men were executed singly, the first one at 4.42½ and the last at 6.06, A. M.

A terrific hailstorm occurred in Lancaster county, Pa., on Friday night of last week, which proved very destructive to growing tobacco and fruit. Hail still lay on the ground, in places, several inches deep, on Saturday morning. York county also had a similar visitation.

Monroe county (Ind.) White Caps whipped Luther Jones three weeks ago for alleged ill-treatment of his wife. He left the county, but has been brought back home in a dying condition, and his case has just been made public.

A terrible cyclone occurred at Baton Rouge, La., on Monday. The State penitentiary, which is located in that city, was partially wrecked and ten of the convicts were killed and thirty-five injured.

A great Lutheran reunion will take place at Highland Park, near York, Pa., on the 15th inst., of the congregations in that vicinity. Distinguished clergymen will address the multitude, which, it is expected, will be very large.

A Competitive Examination

FOR A

Free Scholarship at Western Maryland College.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the State Scholarship at Western Maryland College, due to Carroll county, is vacant, and that in compliance with the law creating the same, a competitive examination of the candidates therefor will be held at Central Hall House, in Westminster, on MONDAY, JULY 20TH, beginning promptly at 9 o'clock, a. m. By an act of the General Assembly of Maryland, the College is enabled to furnish the holder of this scholarship tuition, board, fuel, lights and washing free of charge. The appointment is made by the Board of School Commissioners, by and with the advice and consent of the Senator for the county. The beneficiary thereof is required to give bond to the State, with approved security, that he (or she) will teach school within the State for not less than two years after leaving college.

As the tenure of the scholarship by any one student is limited to four years, it is desirable that competitors be able to pass an examination for the Freshman Class. Such examination would cover English and Latin Grammar, Geography, Arithmetic, History of the United States, and Algebra to Equations of the Second Degree. Financial condition and personal merit will be considered, along with scholastic proficiency, in making the selection.

By order of the Board of County School Commissioners.

E. O. GRIMES, President.
JAMES A. DIFFENBAUGH, Secretary.
