SATURDAY, JULY 5, 1902.

It is said the Pennsylvania Railroad Company is behind a movement to induce the government of the United States to take steps to secure control of the telegraph system of the country, the purpose being to embarass the Goulds in their efforts to secure an outlet for the Wabash Railroad system at tidewater at Baltimore. The scheme is alleged to be a gigantic one. A bill was introduced by Senator Penrose, of Pennsylvania, on Friday last, providing for the acquisition of telegraph lines by the government, which is said to be a part of it. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company's contract with the Western Union Telegraph Company expired recently, and was not renewed. Evidently everything that the Pennsylvania can do to embarass the Goulds and their associates in their purpose to secure a tidewater terminus for the Wabash system, will be undertaken, but if Mr. Penrose's little bill is really a part of the scheme the country must be made to understand it and the effort must be thwarted. The Pennsylvania Railroad must not be permitted to throttle competition in that fashion.

An automobile race from Paris to Vienna ended on Saturday last after a most remarkable run, the winner, M. Renault, making the entire distance, 782 miles, in 15 hours, 14 minutes and a fraction less than 9 seconds, an average of 51½ miles per hour. When it is remembered that the road lies over lofty mountains, with long and steep ascents and long and preciptous descents, often along the margin of deep precipices, the adventure seems nothing short of foolhardiness, involving great peril to the contestants. But this is not all. The road is a highway along which many people travel in vehicles or on foot and it is almost miraculous that no collisions occurred and that nobody was injured. Automobile racing at this frightful speed is fraught with immense danger to the public and should not be tolerated in any civilized country unless the contestants maintain private roads for the purpose. A man may have the moral right to risk his own neck in a sport as perilous as this, but even that may be questionable; he certainly has no right to endanger other lives in this reckless fashion. Running automobiles on public highways at a greater average rate of speed than is maintained by the swiftest railroad trains is a wonderful feat, but it should not be repeated.

Independence Day.

Perhaps no event in human history has had a farther reaching influence than the act of the Continental Congress, at Philadelphia, on the 4th of July, 1776, by which the United Colonies were declared to be Free and Independent States. That influence has been felt in every civilized country of the globe and the individual man has had his personal rights and liberties enlarged to a greater extent by it than through any other agency. It is eminently proper, under these conditions, to make much of the anniversary of the day on which the great act was consummated and to observe it with patriotic fervor.

But it should be a time of thoughtful reflection as well. Its meaning should be carefully studied, and the abuses which selfish men have introduced into the methods by which the government is conducted should be sternly suppressed by the people. Corrupt politicians should be repudiated and the pure government established by the fathers should be maintained in its purity. The kind of independence declared did not include the right to pack primaries and loot ballot boxes, and, if these things continue, another declaration of independence will become necessary—the independence of the masses of the people from the domination of political machines.

Becomes a Republican.

A special from Parkersburg, W. Va., to the Baltimore Morning Herald of Saturday last says Ex-Governor Wm. A. MacCorkle, of that State, has become a Republican. The special referred to is as follows:

"Give me no more democratic administrations," said William A. MacCorkle, the last democratic Governor of West Virginia. "I've had enough of them. Republican power has brought my state the greatest prosperity it ever experienced. Everybody who wants to work can find work, and those who have money are getting good interest on their investments."

When asked why he did not want to see any more democratic administrations, he replied: "Because they always cause a fear of upsetting things; they disarrange business and clog the wheels of industry. The recent republican administrations have brought with them confidence and subsequent prosperity." Governor MacCorkle filled the office of Governor from 1892 to 1896, and is a law partner of the Chiltons.

The Ex-Governor in these utterances gives expression to a fact so plain and apparent that it cannot truthfully be denied. The only Democratic national administrations since 1861 were those of President Cleveland from 1885 to 1889 and 1893 to 1897, and both brought financial and business disaster upon the country. There are prominent Democrats in this city who privately acknowledge as much and do not hesitate to say that they regard the national policy of the Republican party as more advantageous to the country generally than the policy pursued by the Democrats when in power. But party ties hold them fast and they maintain an active relation to the party organization against their own better judgment. Governor MacCorkle sets them an example it would be wise as well as truthful to follow.

A Pugnacious Senator.

The United States Senate should adopt a stringent rule, with a severe penalty for its violation, for the government of Senators whose pugnacious tendencies prompt them to commit physical violence upon their fellows, in the Senate chamber, whether during a session of the body or after adjournment. A few months ago the country was disgraced by Senator Tillman, who attacked his colleague from South Carolina while the latter was on the floor addressing the Senate. It is true Mr. McLaurin had used unparliamentary language, under great provocation, however, and the Senate included him in the resolution of censure subsequently adopted.

And now the country has been treated to another exhibition of brute violence by Senator Joseph W. Bailey, of Texas, who in the Senate chamber, but not while the body was in session, made a savage attack upon Senator Albert J. Beveridge, of Indiana. The occasion of Mr. Bailey's violence was the use of language by Mr. Beveridge, in debate, which the former regarded as an insult. Mr. Bailey had severely criticised the American Ambassador to Mexico, Mr. Clayton, whom he charged with failing to protect Dr. Scott, an American citizen, whom he said had been unfairly dealt with by the Mexican courts in relation to certain mining interests. He said the ambassador should be recalled and that Judge Penfield, the Solicitor of the Department of State, to whom he extended his criticism, should be retired.

Mr. Beveridge defended Mr. Clayton and Judge Penfield and characterized the attack on them as unwarranted. This Mr. Bailey construed into charging him with slander and after the Senate adjourned approached the Indiana Senator, who was seated in a chair, and having declared the language an insult demanded that it be withdrawn. Mr. Beveridge disclaimed any intention to insult the Texas Senator, but declined to withdraw the expression which the latter regarded as objectionable. Thereupon Mr. Bailey rushed upon Mr. Beveridge and seized him by the throat, overturning a desk in the attack. Other Senators and Senate officials, however, rushed to the spot, seized the irate Texan by the arms and forcibly dragged him away. The Indiana Senator's necktie was torn from his neck, but he apparently received no bodily injury. He made no resistance to the attack. In fact there was no opportunity to do so. But in a physical bout he would be no match for his antagonist, as he is a small man while Mr. Bailey is something of an athlete.

The affair was by no means creditable to the assailant. Apart from his physical superiority to the assailed, he placed an extreme construction upon the language to which he objected. Men may differ in opinion as to whether certain facts, or suppositions justify the use of strongly condemnatory language. Mr. Beveridge might justly have supposed that Mr. Bailey was mistaken as to the facts upon which the attack upon Mr. Clayton and Judge Penfield was predicated. He gave Mr. Bailey the assurance that no insult was intended and that should have been satisfactory. If it was unparliamentary the Senate should have been called upon to expunge it from the record and to censure its author. In playing the bully to redress a fancied wrong Mr. Bailey has not measured up to the standard that should characterize the conduct of an American Senator.

The State Normal School.

A committee appointed by the Legislature to investigate the condition of the Maryland State Normal School has made a voluminous report of its proceedings to the Governor. In the report the committee is unsparing in its condemnation of the management of the institution, which it characterizes as only a high school and not one of the best of that class. No branch of the school escapes unfavorable criticism, even the financial management coming in for grave censure on account of the lax methods pursued and the failure, in one case, to report peculation by an employee of the school.

The committee says that the school, as now organized and conducted, has—

"1. No training, or practice, school.
"2. A school, nominally, for observation, but in reality, worthless in that respect.
"3. No department in the science of education, including:
"(a) The psychology of education.
"(b) The philosophy of education.
"(c) The history of education, and
"(d) Child-study.
"(e) The art of governing schools."

These defects, if the conclusions of the committee be valid, are radical and indicate that the State is paying liberally for something that it utterly fails to obtain under the administration of the present principal, Rev. E. B. Prettyman. There is really nothing very surprising in this. Mr. Prettyman was appointed to succeed Prof. M. A. Newell, a thoroughly competent educator, not because he possessed special qualifications for the place, but because of his devotion to the interests of the Democratic bosses and machine politicians. Occasional intimations were dropped during Governor Lowndes' administration that the school was not as efficient as it should have been, but for some inexplicable reason no investigation was made and the Governor failed to take advantage of his prerogative to appoint such trustees as would have insisted upon a change.

Now the board itself comes in, by inference at least, for a share of the censure expressed by the committee, which finds other things to condemn besides those already mentioned. Among the defects, other than these, to which the committee adverts is the failure to throw around the young women who have attended the school from the counties any protection whatever. The report says:

"The great preponderance of testimony shows that there is no supervision whatsoever exercised by the Normal School authorities over the boarding places of such young women. These girls coming to a large city, from the seclusion of their country homes, between the ages of 16 and 19, inexperienced and unsophisticated, are without attention or protection of any sort."

Discord among the faculty and lack of discipline are also charged by the committee and systematic withholding of information in relation to the condition of the school is alleged.

"There are" say the committee, "no formal reports rendered by the principal to the trustees of the school, and never any publication of its condition and affairs to the people. When asked about this the principal referred us to one single line, very scant and limited in its scope, relating to the Normal School, extending horizontally across a page in a table of statistics referring to a large number of schools and colleges receiving donations from the state. Neither its trustees nor the public are ever advised of the conduct and condition of the institution."

Numerous recommendations are made by the committee, showing that the investigation was thorough and exhaustive. Among these recommendations are the appointment of a new board of trustees, the reorganization of the school under another head, and necessary additions to the curriculum to render the purposes of the institution effective. It is also suggested that the principal shall not be a member of the board of trustees and that the Governor, while remaining, ex-officio, on the board, shall not be its president.

Against the report and findings of the committee, on the other hand, it is alleged that the State Board of Education has assumed all responsibilsty for the Normal School and the manner in which it has been conducted, and has appointed a committee of three, consisting of Messrs. Joseph M. Cushing, John C. Rogers and Clayton J. Purnell, to prepare a statement in reply to the report of the investigating committee. It will deny all the charges of the committee and as it refused to submit the books of the board to the committee's inspection, will attempt to justify that action. As, however, its statement will be in the nature of its own defence the people will want facts and proofs, not unsustained assertions. Presumably the motive of the legislative committee was to get at facts, without prejudice, and its indictment of the management of the school must be held to be impartial until it shall be controverted by undeniable evidence.

King Edward of England is rapidly improving and his recovery is now regarded as assured.

On Tuesday corn jumped as high as 78 cents on the Chicago Board of Trade on bad crop reports and an aggressive bull movement.

The offer of the Fuller Syndicate to pay $35 a share for outstanding stock of the Western Maryland Railroad will hold good until fall, the certificates to be deposited with the banking house of Townsend Scott & Son. There are still about 1,600 shares that are not owned by the syndicate.

The corner-stone of the Grace Memorial Reformed Church, Washington, D. C., was laid on Tuesday afternoon. The ceremony was rendered one of wide interest from the fact that it was performed by President Roosevelt, who is a worshipper with the congregation of the church referred to while in Washington.

Admiral Dewey testified last week before the Senate Committee on Philippine affairs that in his opinion Aguinaldo engaged in the insurrection against American authority for "money and loot." The admiral said he saw Aguinaldo at least fifty times, and evidently formed a very poor opinion of the Filipino leader, from his observations of the man.

Trainmen on the Northern Central Railroad, between Williamsport, Pa., and Elmira, N. Y., report that on Tuesday afternoon of last week two inches of snow fell along the line of the road, between Penbryn and Roaring Branch. A freight train ascending the mountain got stalled in the snow and the train hands indulged in a snow ball battle before it started onward.

The first session of the Fifty-Seventh Congress was terminated at 5.30 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon. The hour agreed upon for adjournment, by the two houses, was 3 o'clock, but President Roosevelt, who was notified to that effect, was engaged at that hour in laying the corner-stone of Grace Reformed Memorial Church and so notified Congress. In defference to his wishes the later hour was then agreed upon.

The Western Maryland Railroad was finally transferred to the Fuller Syndicate on Friday of last week and the city directors were at once superseded by a board elected by the new owners. The new directors are: Messrs. Winslow S. Pierce, Edwin Gould, Fairfax S. Landstreet, John M. Hood, S. Davies Warfield, W. H. McIntire, Henry B. Henson, George R. Gaither, Leon Greenebaum, Lawrence Greer. The Washington county directors also retired and the syndicate is now in full and absolute control of the road. Indications point to a great future for the Western Maryland under its new owners, and it is believed that Baltimore will be greatly benefited by its development as a section of a far-reaching trunk-line system, with that city as its tidewater terminus.

THE SAME OLD STORY.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and retold by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of pleurisy and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by all druggists.

CAUTION!

This is not a gentle word—but when you think how liable you are not to purchase for 75c the only remedy universally known and a remedy that has had the largest sale of any medicine in the world since 18 s for the cure and treatment of Consumption and Throat and Lung troubles without losing its great popularity all these years, you will be thankful we called your attention to Boschee's German Syrup. There are so many ordinary cough remedies made by druggists and others that are cheap and good for light cold purposes, but for severe Coughs, Bronchitis, Croup—and especially for Consumption, where there is difficult expectoration and wearing cough at the nights and mornings, there is nothing like German Syrup. Sold by all druggists in the civilized world. G. G. Green, Wholesale Agt., Woodbury, N. J. Sold by W. Sc.tt Zepp, Druggist.

The members of Harmony Grove M. P. Church of Gist will hold their annual festival in the grove adjoining the church on Saturday afternoon and night, July 12th.

M. a great Reunion Programme will be held in the large Auditorium (seating over 5,000) people, and music and speaking of the most interesting character will be rendered. It is expected that this will be a great rally day for the Presbyterians. Low rate excursion tickets will be on sale to Pen-Mar and full information can be obtained from local ticket agents.

"The way to gain a good reputation is to endeavor to be what you desire to appear." That is precisely the manner in which Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has gained its reputation as a cure for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough. Every bottle that has ever been put out by the manufacturers has been fully up to the standard of excellence claimed for it. People have found that it can always be depended upon for the relief and cure of these ailments and that it is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all druggists.
