IT WILL BE COL. HERR.

It has been generally understood here that the new postmaster of this city will be appointed upon the recommendation of Hon. Robert Garrett, lately Republican candidate for Congress in the Second District, and it became known yesterday that he had decided to name Col. Samuel K. Herr for the appointment. Col. Herr was not an applicant for the place, but his name was suggested when it became known that Mr. Garrett had concluded that, in consequence of the friction and strong feeling existing between the supporters of known candidates, it was better to select a new man for the place and that Col. Herr was that man. The colonel was greatly astonished when informed of this decision and was not prepared to accept, but it is now understood that, urged by his friends and with the assurance, from all quarters, that his appointment will be generally acceptable to the people, has consented to do so. The announcement that he was to be named was generally received with enthusiasm by the Republicans who believe that his appointment will go far towards healing the dissensions which have existed in their ranks. The Democrats concede that no better man could be selected.

Col. Herr scarcely needs a word of praise and commendation from this or any other source. He was a brave and thoroughly efficient soldier in the Civil War, having enlisted as a private and served with such distinction that he rose to the rank of Lieut. Col., by brevet, at the close of the war. He was but 21 years old when the war ended and had been on the staff of Gen'l. Crawford, who commanded the Pennsylvania Reserves, during a year or more. In the faithful performance of duty, whether as a soldier or a private citizen, he has never been surpassed by any man.

PROSPERITY CONTINUES.

Somehow the financial disaster and adversity in this country long predicted by Democratic politicians refuse to materialize. Prosperity still smiles upon the land. Farm products are in demand and bring remunerative prices; the wages of labor are better than ever before; merchants, as a rule, find their sales satisfactory and bad debts few. There are but few classes of citizens who do not participate in the general prosperity. The laborer is especially a beneficiary of this condition as his labor is in demand. So pronounced is this state of affairs that, while national law forbids the immigration of laborers under private contract, it has been decided that the State may make contracts and import laboring men to be employed by her citizens, and an effort is being made to bring farm hands into the country for employment. The demand is largely for German laborers, of this class, especially for Maryland and South Carolina.

But it is not only farm labor that is in demand. The railroads find it no easy matter to procure crews to man their trains and the men employed are, as a rule, overworked, a fact which furnishes a fertile cause for many of the railroad wrecks which have been so numerous during the last year or two. The demand for skilled labor is also greater than the supply and railroads are short in their equipments and unable to handle the vast quantity of freight demanding transportation, because they cannot have engines and cars manufactured with sufficient celerity to meet this condition.

Now, none of these things presage a change from prosperity to adversity, and the hope that this state of affairs might be reversed, which has so long made sick the hearts of the Democratic politician, seems no nearer fulfilment than it was half a dozen years ago. There is one thing, however, which would produce such a reversal, and that would be the election of a Democratic President and Congress. That is the thing to be done if the people are weary of prosperity.

A BOSS-RIDDEN PARTY.

Mr. I. Freeman Rasin, Baltimore's Democratic boss, who had been in apparently vain quest for candidates for mayor and other offices, to be voted for at the municipal election in May, is indisposed and his physicians have ordered him to desist from taking further part in the business. It is presumable, however, that he had decided upon his men before he decided to retire from exercising his prerogative as party dictator, as Ex-Governor Frank Brown, who has also been engaged in candidate hunting, has announced the selection of a ticket to be supported by the adherents of the organization and, as a matter of course, nominated. This ticket is as follows: For Mayor, Mr. J. Barry Mahool; President Second Branch City Council, Mr. George N. Numsen; Comptroller, Mr. Harry F. Hooper. From reports, generally, nothing can be said in derogation of these gentlemen, except that they are willing to become the representatives of the Democratic machine. They will not become candidates by the untrammeled will of the Democratic voters. The Democratic party of Baltimore is boss-ridden and there is little doubt that the ticket named will be successful at the primaries.

Probably the other aspirants for nominations will withdraw from the contest. Mr. W. Cabell Bruce, one of them, had already made public his withdrawal when Gov. Brown's ticket was announced. Mr. George Stewart Brown, another of the aspirants for the Mayoralty nomination, shows fight, but will probably retreat under fire. State Senator Linthicum, who has made a gallant contest, may also find it convenient to subside, as he cannot fail to realize that his party is thoroughly dominated by the boss spirit. There are many Independent Democrats in Baltimore, but the character of the men selected by the bosses will probably make them acquiesce in their action. The men who dominate the Democratic machine are cunning politicians and have been able, on numerous occasions, to "pull the wool" over the eyes of the Independents. It will be no surprise if they shall do so again.

The pension appropriation bill, which carries $145,000,000, was passed by the United States Senate on Monday, after having been amended to make it available to pay pensions to claimants under the act of February 6, 1907, known as the Service Pension Law.

MR. LANDSTREET DENIES IT, BUT IT'S TRUE ALL THE SAME.

The New Oxford, Pa., Item, of recent date, had this to say about the variation of passenger trains from the time schedule, on the Western Maryland Railroad:

"The Western Maryland Railroad is at present and has been for some time conducted in a very ridiculous manner, so far as the mail and passenger service is concerned. Mail and passenger trains are being run at any old time—the rats evidently having gnawed the schedule. It is a very common occurrence for trains to be from one to three hours late, and persons who desire to travel on the road are obliged to while away the time about the depot as best they can. And again persons who desire to go any distance by rail, either east or west, are obliged to drive to Hanover by private conveyance and take the Northern Central in order to make connections at other points. The 6 P. M. train from Highfield for Baltimore did not arrive here on Saturday evening until 8.20 o'clock. When it did arrive the man in authority had evidently been taking a nap, as the Hanover mail pouches were thrown off here and the New Oxford mail carried on through, consequently our people did not receive their Saturday evening mail until 10 A. M. Monday. The long-talked of trolly roads from Hanover, York, etc., would indeed receive a great share of the patronage, if built on the ground instead of on paper, under existing circumstances."

According to the Baltimore Evening News Vice-President Landstreet and General Manager Robertson both aver that they have no knowledge of any complaint on the subject and Mr. Landstreet added that he believed "the trains to be moving promptly." If sincere in that declaration he must be remarkably ignorant of the condition of the passenger service on the road. Mr. Roberts is quoted as saying that "the train sheets do not show any serious delays." Perhaps he does not consider a little matter of half an hour's delay between this city and Baltimore at all serious, but there may be two opinions on that point. Delays for that length of time and longer, if not frequent, are at least more than occasional. The experience of the writer on two recent trips to Baltimore was that, on both occasions, the trains ran behind schedule time going and coming. Returning on the second trip the train due in this city at 5.02 P. M. did not arrive until about 5.45. This is not told for the purpose of disparaging the officers or employees of the company. The service, as far as train crews are concerned, is unexceptionable. The men composing the crews, from engineers to brakemen, are courteous. The trouble is that the road, in its present condition, has more business than it can promptly handle. It is gradually getting into better shape and in the not very far distant future may be expected to maintain schedule time except upon rare occasions. The SENTINEL hasn't much sympathy with such articles as that quoted from the New Oxford Item.

WHO IS STIRRING UP WAR?

From the Methodist Protestant.

Is it wise to suggest the probability or possibility of war between the United States and Japan or any other nation on the globe? We understand from a recent utterance of a brave man that sooner or later it will be only "Hobson's choice" with us whether we fight Japan or not. I hope Japan will not become very uneasy about the matter. I rather fear that encouraged by the utterances of the hero of the Merrimac, and the fears of Robly "Bob" Evans for the lack of anthracite for the use of our war vessels that Japan will try to quiet Uncle Sam by singing the old nursery song:

"Hush-a-by baby, don't you cry,"
We won't whip you bye and bye,
Only be good, and we won't even try—

All this talk about stormy weather tomorrow may do very well for the weather bureau, for mere talk, however reckless, will have no appreciable effect on the weather; but not so with foolish and reckless talk about war. The forecast of Hobson and the prudent (?) suggestion of Evans have a direct tendency to produce the storm against which they would provide.

Is it a fact, that the only way to prevent the violation of treaties is always to be strong enough to compel their observance? Is it a fact, that the only reason why one nation does not seize the property and maltreat the people of another nation is that she is not strong enough to do it? If so, our civilization has carried us but few steps beyond the bounds of barbarism.

H. C. CUSHING.

Westminster, Md., Feb. 10, 1907.

It may be taken for granted that this country has no designs whatever upon the integrity of the Japanese Empire, nor to seize any property belonging to it, though possessed of the ability to acquire the power to do so. Let us be assured, therefore, that it is not "a fact that the only reason why one nation does not seize the property of another and maltreat the people of another nation is that she is not strong enough to do it."

Japan is a pugnacious little empire and disposed to be aggressive. She is undertaking to dictate to this country upon certain lines and is demanding privileges which, from the very nature of our government, it is not within its power to grant. Many people believe that the government at Washington has already gone farther than it should have done in an effort to induce the school authorities of California to admit Japanese children, of the lower class, into the public schools of that State. This certainly indicates anything else than a purpose or desire to poach upon the rights of Japan.

The trouble is that the little empire seems disposed to force its demands and being possessed of a powerful navy might, if they shall not be conceded, resort to force in an effort to compel compliance on our part. The situation is such as to lead thoughtful statesmen to realize the importance of providing a navy strong enough to cope with that of Japan, or any other country. There is no probability that the United States will, for the present at least, declare war against Japan. It is, however, not so absolutely certain that that country will not become the aggressor. The best way to preserve the peace is to be thoroughly prepared for war—an opinion that is trite, to be sure, but none the less true.

Talking about war and its consequences, too, may help to avert it. It gives time to think and estimate the waste and woe of such a contingency and tends to prevent plunging into a conflict heedlessly and upon ill-considered impulse. It will have that effect if it shall induce the Federal authorities to provide the means of meeting menaces and threats with a force and condition strong enough to make it certain that no attempt to enforce such threats can be successful. By all means, "let us have peace."

Warren Beckwith, former football star and professional football player, who was recently divorced from Jessie Lincoln Beckwith, daughter of Robert T. Lincoln and granddaughter of President Abraham Lincoln, was married on the 21st ult., to Blanche Julia Cutler, of Aurora, Ill., after an elopement from the bride's home.

Mrs. Susan Little, mother of Col. Charles A. Little, commanding the First Maryland Regiment, with which Co. H, of this city, is connected died, on the 21st ult., in Cavetown, aged 76 years. She had been an invalid for 10 years. She was the widow of John Little, and is survived by three sons and four daughters.

PROSPERITY IN CARROLL.

Under the above caption the Baltimore American of Saturday last says:

"Mr. George W. Albaugh, of Westminster, who is one of the most successful merchants of Western Maryland, and who was at the Belvedere last night, remarked that the people of Carroll county were more prosperous than they have been for many years. He remarked that his business was of such a character that he was constantly brought into contact with persons from all parts of the county and was therefore in a position to judge, and he believed that there was never so much money among the mass of the people as now. He attributed this to particularly good crops last year, which put the farmers in good shape financially. He is enthusiastic on the outlook for another prosperous year and thinks 1907 will be a record-breaker."

Classing Mr. Albaugh as a merchant is not a strictly accurate description. He is a business man and financier, with many interests. He is certainly correct in portraying the prosperity prevalent in this county, but only partially so in attributing it to good crops last year. The crops were good, but not extraordinarily so. Good prices for farm products of all kinds had their share in making the farmers financially prosperous and enabling them to pay the phenomenal wages demanded by labor for farm work, which again served to augment and make prosperity general. After all, the general policy of the Republican party, enforced by a Republican administration, must be credited with the prosperous condition that prevails, not only in Carroll county, but throughout the country.

Interesting to Veterans.

An applicant for increase of his soldier's pension under the service pension act, passed recently by Congress, wrote to Gen. John R. King, pension agent at Washington, D. C., inquiring whether it was necessary for him to join the Grand Army of the Republic in order to assure the increase. In replying to the query in the negative Gen. King, among other things, wrote:

"I don't think, if I were you, that I would wait for a certificate of discharge from the Military Secretary before filing the application for increase. Fill in as much as you can, giving the number of your pension certificate and attach the inclosed memorandum. Your increase dates from the receipt of your application.

"As to the value of your membership in the Grand Army: First, General Grant once said that no man who is eligible could afford to die without becoming a member of the Grand Army. Sherman, Sheridan, and all of the great commanders were members. Second, every important pension law now on the statute books is there directly through the influence of the Grand Army, without which it would never have been enacted. The present law, under which you seek an increase, is a Grand Army measure, and would never have been passed without its indorsement and influence.

"I have been referred to the pecuniary advantages which accrue through membership in the order, and they are great, but to me there is a patriotic side, which outweighs them all—that is, the spirit of comradeship and fraternity it inspires. It is the touch of elbows which we valued so much 40 years or more ago; it is the fighting over of the battles and scenes of '61–'65; it is the story of our camp life and marches by day and by night, and last when the summons comes to join our comrades on 'Fame's eternal camping ground,' we will be laid away by our comrades, who, more than all save our immediate family, will mourn our loss. These, my dear sir, are reasons why you should be one of us."

A remarkable railroad accident, in which every one of 54 passengers on three Pullman cars was injured, but nobody killed, occurred on the Pennsylvania Railroad, seven miles east of Johnstown, Pa., at 12 o'clock last Friday night. The three coaches constituted the passenger cars of the train, except a combination smoker. It was the special 18-hour train between New York and Chicago and was running at high speed, to make up lost time, when the Pullmans were derailed and rolled down a sixty-foot embankment into the Conemaugh river. The cars were only partially submerged, thus saving the passengers from drowning. The wonder, however, is that nobody was killed by the tremendous shaking up experienced. Of course all were more or less battered and bruised and some seriously injured. The cause of their escape lies in the fact that the Pullman cars are very strongly built and did not brake and splinter as ordinary coaches would have done. The Pullmans were the only cars which left the track.

Messrs. George C. Winebrener and his son Roy, near Walkersville, were tried before Judges Motter and Henderson, in the Circuit Court for Frederick co., Wednesday, upon an indictment charging them with assaulting Mr. Chas. Cramer with intent to murder. The Winebreners were charged with going to the home of Cramer and assaulting him in the presence of his wife, who was also knocked down and hurt. Mr. Cramer was dragged for a considerable distance and, according to witnesses, was finally rescued in a semiconscious condition by citizens of Mount Pleasant, who threatened violence toward the Winebreners. The accused were adjuged by the court not guilty of assault but guilty of assault and battery. The case was so aggravated, however, that the Winebreners were each fined $100 and costs and the son was also found guilty of assault upon Mrs. Cramer and fined therefor $25 and costs.

Rev. John Dickson, for many years a bishop in the United Brethren Church, died last Friday night at his home in Chambersburg, Pa., in his eighty-eighth year. He was ordained a bishop in 1850 by Bishop Erb. Mrs. Madge Mateer, a missionary in China, and Rev. William A. Dickson, of Dillsburg, Pa., are among his surviving children.

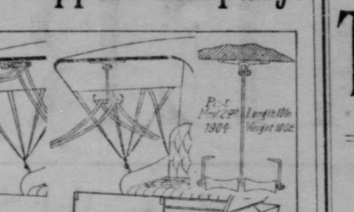
THE JARBOE Rein-Support Company.



Wanted at once, several hustling Agents to canvass Carroll, Howard, Montgomery and Frederick counties, for THE JARBOE REIN-SUPPORT.

Those owning Top Buggies preferred. It is a great

"MONEY-MAKER"
as well as a great
"TEMPER-SAVER."

Because of our confidence in the genuine merits of this article, we are making the following very liberal offer. Send us $1,00, for which we will send the rein-support postpaid; put it on your buggy, use it 30 days, and if at the end of that time you are not satisfied, return it to us and we will cheerfully refund your money. Could anything be fairer? Address

THE MILLER BROS. CO.

An Extraordinary

CHINA SALE,

with a "Purpose"

For Easter Gifts—China Closets—Birthday Tokens—Wedding Presents—or a suitable remembrance whenever giving is in vogue—our China is at home at unexpectedly low prices.

This spread of China has taken charge of our dry goods department and pretty well covered the space allotted—(an idea of its size.)

Upon seeing this showing of China, one is reminded of an apple orchard with the ground strewn with deliciously ripened fruit—an idea of what it's like.

Just about enough Plain and Fancy China at this sale to make a carload. Many dainty colors, varied shapes and sizes and kinds—an idea of its assortment.

One of East Liverpool's largest and most famous potteries has supplied us with much of the China for this sale—an idea of its quality.

Our planning ahead—unusual forethought—taste in buying have been exerted to their fullest in getting up this China Sale—an idea of its extremely low prices.
