More partisan legislation was jammed through by the majority of the General Assembly of Maryland, at its session which closed on Monday night, than has marked that body during the last ten or twelve years, strenuous as some enactments in that line had been during that time. Little respect was paid for the rights of the minority, the majority having determined, as one of the number put it, to pass what they pleased. Some good laws, of course, were enacted, but all legislation in connection with elections in the State was designed for the advantage of the party in power. The road bill is, probably, the most important of all the laws passed during the session, but that had to be tinkered in some measure for the benefit of Democratic politicians instead of having been made a purely business proceeding. Further comment on the measures passed will be made from time to time in these columns.

SPECIAL BOARDS APPOINTED.

Just before the adjournment of the Legislature on Monday night, Governor Crothers took the Senate by surprise with a message in which he deals generally with legislation, and names 16 special boards, which are to make certain investigations during the next two years and report to the Governor 60 days prior to the legislature of 1910. The commissions deal with taxation and revenue, state printing, educational appropriations, salaries of public officers, appropriations, insurance laws and insurance of public buildings, public health and hygiene, proper representation of Baltimore City, oyster navy, waterways and water powers of the State, farming, dairies and live stock, industrial and manufacturing plants, licenses for automobiles, pure food, and the modernizing and improving of the State Constitution.

Carroll county is represented on four of the boards, by Hon. Johnzie E. Beasman on the commission on appropriations, Hon. B. F. Crouse, on the commission on insurance, Guy W. Steele, Esq., on the commission on the Constitution, and Charles E. Fink, Esq., on the commission on salaries of public officers.

"PUBLIC SCHOOLS AS DEATH TRAPS."

The above startling head line stands above a two column article in the Baltimore American, of Wednesday last, in which it is declared that Building Inspector Preston told the City Council Committee on Public Institutions, on Tuesday, that if he were to go to work on the public schools buildings in the city of Baltimore, under the strict letter of the law, half of them would be torn down.

Mr. Benjamin B. Owens, supervisor of the school buildings for the School Board, told the committee that in many instances conditions in Baltimore, so far as public school buildings are concerned, were "shameful—worse than shameful." He declared it to be criminal on the part of the city to permit these conditions to exist, and said that he would not allow his children to attend some of the schools."

The language of Messrs. Preston and Owens is not too strong if their premises are well taken. It is "shameful and worse than shameful," it is "criminal" and worse than criminal for any city, large or small, to tolerate public school buildings or other places of public gathering that are a constant menace to the safety and lives of the people

The terrible calamity, in which a multitude of school children were burned to death in the fire that destroyed a school building in a suburb of Cleveland, Ohio, has aroused a tardy public conscience, and caused such scrutiny of such buildings as has never before been given.

The city of Westminster has reason to congratulate itself as well as the Board of School Commissioners, on the almost perfect safeguards that are provided in the graded school building, on Center street. Large and commodious school rooms open into broad hallways, the school building proper is only two stories high, from the second to the first floor a broad stairway on either side, with a single turning in each, with landings so broad that congestion is not possible, a lower hall extending from front to rear with wide double exits at either end, with swinging doors opening outward, reduce the danger from fire or panic to a minimum. In addition to these safeguards the pupils are kept in thorough training, and frequent tests have emptied the building of all its occupants in a minute and a half.

Are all public buildings in Westminster safeguarded as is the public school building?

At the annual meeting of the Westminster Fire Department, Mr. John Milton Reifsnider, State's Attorney for Carroll county, answered this question in the negative. His utterances on that occasion were brave and timely, recognized by those who heard them, as the "word in season," but as yet they have borne little fruit.

The following is a copy of the report of Mr. Reifsnider's address, made by the SENTINEL, with editorial comment thereon :—

Though Mr. J. Milton Reifsnider was not the last speaker, his address was recognized as "the word in season," demanding more than passing reference. Regretting the necessity for a serious word, while others were speaking in lighter vein, impelled by the conviction that some one should utter the thought to which he was about to give expression; declaring the department worthy of every eulogium, he asserted that Westminster needs more than a faithful, efficient, prompt and well equipped body of firemen. He expressed regret that when a few years ago an effort was made to secure from the Legislature a new City Charter, the Legislature failed to act favorably, and called attention to the fact that, in consequence of the then agitation, the Graded School building and other buildings had been equipped with fire escapes. He pointed out the fact that "this very night we might have been called upon to meet just such conditions as have brought heart rending sorrow to every home in Boyertown, Pa., a community very much like our own, and in which there are public buildings of similar character, and ours not even so well safeguarded as those of that town." Continuing, he said in substance: "I care not how efficient may be our fire department; nor how perfect a fire alarm system you may install; yet there are conditions prevailing here by which lives may be sacrificed. It behooves us to inaugurate a system that will tend to lessen the danger of fire; that will lessen the danger of loss of human life. Look over our town and see whether in our buildings we have safeguarded the lives of our citizens. The answer must be NO. I call on you to arouse a sentiment that should have been aroused years ago. If you do not do it you will wake up some day to find that you are called upon to do something that is impossible of accomlishment. Do not depend wholly upon the bravery and promptness of the firemen. Go to work and cut out the disease that is among us, and they will have less to do." Many congratulated Mr. Reifsnider on his timely utterances and expressed the opinion that the City Fathers should call for a "town meeting" to be held in the Firemen's Hall, to take steps looking to the inspection of all public buildings, that they may be rendered as safe as possible."

AMERICAN SENTINEL.
January 7, 1908.

Are the public buildings of Westminster safe?

If they are safe:
It is criminal to allege that they are unsafe.
It is criminal to awaken the fears of the people.
It is criminal thus to injure the reputation of the property of any man or corporation.

If they are unsafe:
It is criminal to permit their continuance in unsafe condition,
Let the subject be fully investigated and settled once and for all.

That the persent conditions have existed for decades without disaster is no assurance of future safety. The Cleveland school building and the Boyertown Opera House stood for years without causing loss of life. But the day of judgment came at last and innocent children suffered the penalty for the criminal carelessness of an entire community.

Lyceum Club Concert

The Lyceum Musical Club of Western Maryland College gave one of its delightful concerts in Alumni Hall, on Friday night, March 27th. The old saying that "a prophet is not without honor, save in his own country," does not apply to this organization. The Lyceum Musical Club is justly popular in this city, and the mere announcement of a concert is sufficient to attract a large audience. The program arranged was comparatively brief, but the audience would not have it so. Each number was greeted with enthusiastic applause, that would not be silenced except by response on the part of the quartette, always ready with a new number and generous in its responses to the calls of the audience.

The following was the regular program:

PROGRAM.

PART I.

1. When Day Fades.....Parks
2. Mammy's Lil' Boy.....Parks
3. Tom, The Piper's Son.....Kendall
4. A Summer Lullaby.....Gibson
All For You (So'o).....Hardelot

PART II.

1. Thinking of You.....Parks
2. A Basket of Chestnuts.....Parks
3. Kentucky Babe.....Geibel
Selection from Penelope.....Walker

PART III.

1. "Jim".....Parks
2. Massa's in De Cold, Cold Ground.....Stephen Foster
3. Good-Night.....Parks
Accompanist, Miss Alice Rich

Responding to encores the quartette sang "Jolly Miller," "The Boy, the Tack and the Teacher," "Fishing on Sunday," "The Sunday School Scholar," "Dried Apple Pies" and several other selections. When Mr. Ashby sang "All For You," he made a great hit, and was loudly applauded. His rendering of "Little Boy Blue," as an encore, was much appreciated. The quartette is composed of Messrs. Ashby, of Oakland; Adkins, of Salisbury; Purdum, of Mt. Airy, and Brown, of Atlantic City, N. J. Their work compares most favorably with that of many well known professional quartettes. They will give one of their concerts in Frederick, April 10, and doubtless will have a large audience.

J. Howard Devilbiss had sale on Monday. He had an excellent sale. His horse brought $177.50. It was advertised in the SENTINEL.

Miller's Items.

On Wednesday evening of last week one of the most pleasant social gatherings of the season was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John K. Miller. The occasion was a birthday surprise party for the latter. About 7.30 P. M. the guests arrived, lined up on the outside as quietly as possible and then marched into the house, where they found Mrs. Miller busily engaged in sewing. She was greatly surprised, but after the shock realized that her friends all came to celebrate her birthday anniversary. All joined in lively conversation and merry laughter, and a very pleasant evening was spent. About 9.30, refreshments were served. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. John K. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. John Rinehart, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Miller, Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Wentz, Mesdames Henry Rinehart, Geo. Hare, Geo. Barber, James Rohrbaugh, Henry K. Miller, Wm. Maryland Day at Sweet Air.

The 274th anniversary of the founding of Md. Colony was celebrated, as suggested by the State Board of Education, on Wednesday, March 25th. The day was an ideal one and the program as suggested was carried out to the letter, besides much more that had been prepared by the school and its teacher, Mr. W. P. Barnes, who had been arranging for the occasion for some time previous. Among the chief features of the entertainment was an essay written by Matilda Shipley, a pupil of the school, upon the subject, Washington Resigning His Commission in the Senate Chamber at Annapolis, Dec. 23rd, 1783, which was a masterly piece of work for one so young, her age being only 12 years. Also a speech entitled, "Let Washington Sleep," by Ensor Aldridge and the landing of the "Peggy Stewart," by Dewey Pickett. Maryland Day is an anniversary that is looked forward to with much interest at Sweet Air, the pupils having been so imbued with the principles governing that day that they have learned to love it. The exercises opened by singing "America," in which the whole school joined. This was followed with remarks by the teacher on "What Maryland Day Means," select readings from Maryland's Four Hundred, First Decision on Stamp Act, Nucleus of Provincial Government and the Burning of the Peggy Stewart, by a select class of nine readers, who had organized themselves into a class not only to read but also a quiz class, and many interesting questions were asked the teacher as well as each other upon the history of Maryland.

Deer Park Aid Society.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Deer Park M. P. Church met at the home of Mrs. Richard Baker, Smallwood, March 27th. Before the meeting opened they had an old fashioned quilting. While the fingers were very busy, conversation never lagged. Everybody had something to tell someone else, and a great deal of merriment prevailed. About 3 o'clock the meeting was opened by the vice-president, and the usual business transacted in a quiet and systematic way. An invitation to hold the next meeting at the residence of Mrs. Painter was accepted, after which the meeting adjourned, just in time, for Mrs. Baker was waiting to ask all the members and visitors to the dining room to a very interesting supper. All seemed to enjoy it and the afternoon very much for the hospitality of the hostess extended to all alike. There were 22 member and 12 visitors present. The society has increased in membership this past year very rapidly its present number being 95. The society has had many sociable and profitable afternoons this winter meeting at different times at the homes of Mrs. Fannie Buckingham, Mrs. Henry Wardenfelt and the parsonage. Each tried to see which could make it the most pleasant. The oyster supper held by the society in February was very well patronized and proved to be a great success.

M. C. I. Notes.

April fools were in order Wednesday.

We are expecting Elder D. O. Metz to preach in the chapel Sunday, April 5th.

Rev. W. P. Englar spent a few hours with us Monday.

The Bible Society will give a program Saturday evening, April 4th. All are invited.

Prof. R. W. Rogers expects to visit Prof. E. D. Naff in Baltimore over Saturday and Sunday.

Several of the students attended Mrs. Margaret Hoffman's funeral Tuesday. The services were conducted by Prof. John.

Mr. Henry Shriver is giving the driveway around the campus an artistic finish to make it correspond with the fresh green lawn.

Mr. J. W. Rohrbaugh, class '07, is with us again. Since last spring, he has been helping his father, who is a building contractor. Part of the time he spent in Norfolk Va.

The grip has laid hold on our weather prophet, Mr. Geo. Hicks. Prepare for local storms, accompanied with lightning and thunder.

Mr. Carroll Weaver, one of our former students, has secured a state certificate in the art of pharmacy and is now employed in Truitt's drug store, Baltimore, Md.
