SATURDAY, JULY 2, 1898.

The movement for the annexation of Hawaii to the United States, is not, as intimated by some newspapers, an incident of the war with Spain. In fact the Hawaiian question has not even a remote connection with the war, unless it be that annexation has been thereby delayed. It is something more than a probability that all this opposition to the acquisition of Hawaii and to the alleged policy of the government concerning the disposition to be made of the Spanish territory from which that country is about to be driven, has no better foundation than partisanship. If a democratic administration were prosecuting the war many of these opponents of territorial extension would be the loudest howlers for annexation.

The truth of history compels a denial of the assertion of the Advocate, last week, that no nation ever gained by the policy of "reaching out for foreign possessions." Great Britain is a very practical example to the contrary. She is one of the richest, most prosperous and most powerful nations of the earth, and yet, for centuries, she has been "reaching out for foreign possessions," until she has acquired them in every part of the globe. Spain's weakness has not resulted from such possessions but from her injustice toward her dependencies and her oppression of their inhabitants. She has maintained her home government by draining her foreign possessions to an extent without precedent. The United States should not follow the example of either Spain or Great Britain, but act as duty to God and humanity may dictate in relation to all foreign questions.

NOT CONSERVATISM.

The dogmatic denunciation, by certain prominent daily newspapers, of the supposed purpose of the United States Government to exercise some sort of supervision or jurisdiction over the Philippine Islands and other possessions of Spain which may be wrested from her control by the existing war, has been accepted by some people as the purest conservatism. It is nothing of the sort. These people have a vague idea that to be opposed to any proposition is to be conservative, but radicalism may be as extreme in opposition as in support of a measure or a policy. And that is just the trouble with the newspapers which have conjured out of the alleged policy of the government the spectre of imperialism.

The victorious prosecution of the war against Spain will impose certain obligations upon the United States in relation to the inhabitants of the territory from which Spain may be driven out. This paper has already expressed the opinion that we cannot acquire a proprietary interest in Cuba, or add that island to our possessions by conquest, as a result of the war. We are estopped from that proceeding by our own deliberate declaration that "Cuba is, and of right ought to be, free and independent." Nor can we, for mere purposes of conquest, sieze and hold the Philippine Islands, or Porto Rico. Our right to exercise temporary or permanent dominion over these lands rests wholly in the justice of our claim to indemnification for the expenses of the war. We have solemnly declared that the war will not be prosecuted for conquest, and hence the Philippines and Porto Rico, if seized, can only be held for such indemnity. Even the Philippines, as we have heretofore stated, may not be subject to such dominion, as we are co-operating with their inhabitants, who are fighting for freedom from Spanish rule.

But, neither the inhabitants of Cuba nor of the Philippines will, at the close of the war, be in a condition to promptly organize and maintain a stable, peaceable and independent government. To leave them to work out the problem of self-government unaided and alone, would be to invite the reign of chaos and to subject the Philippines, at least, to the danger of becoming a prey to some one or more of the powers now pushing their territorial acquisitions in the east.

It will therefore become inevitably necessary for the United States to assume protectorates over Cuba and the Philippines and to aid the people whom they shall have assisted in achieving independence to make the best uses of that great boon. It would be a cowardly shirking of duty to refrain from interference in the Orient as well as the Occident to that extent. It may sound like an Irish bull to say that the most radical conservative can scarcely find an excuse for opposing such a protectorate in Cuba, and the argument in favor of that position can be applied to the Philippines with as forcible logic as to the "Gem of the Antilles."

There is a still further and, if possible, more compelling reason than that already alleged, for assuming such protectorates. Release from the Spanish yoke will entail obligations on the people of Cuba and the Philippines in their relations with the people of all other lands. There are certain inalienable rights, common to the race, which have been restricted by many nations. Among these is the right to worship God according to the dictates of conscience, if such worship shall not contravene the duties of citizenship or obstruct the government of the people, by the people and for the people. If we make Cuba and the Philippines free it will become us to aid them in establishing governments in imitation of our own, based upon this principle.

It is not the purpose of this article to discuss these matters at length, but to suggest, briefly, the reasons which impose upon the United States the obligations herein outlined. To discharge these obligations to their fullest extent is not imperialism. To oppose the government in the performance of a simple and manifest duty is not conservatism.

Michael Schwab, one of the anarchists who killed Chicago policemen by throwing bombs in the Haymarket, died Wednesday of consumption. He had been pardoned by Governor Altgeld in 1892.

WAR NEWS.

The war news from Cuba during the past week has been of an interesting and exciting character. As reported last week, desultory fighting had taken place after the landing of Gen Shafter's army. On Friday, eight troops of Col. Roosevelt's Rough Riders, four troops of the First and four troops of the Tenth Cavalry, numbering in all not quite a thousand men, dismounted and attacked 2000 Spanish soldiers ambushed in the thickets within five miles of Santiago. The Americans were terribly exposed and fought at great disadvantage, but their steady courage, and the efficiency of their fire while advancing demoralized the Spaniards, who finally turned and fled precipitately toward the city, with heavy loss in killed and wounded. At least fifty Americans were wounded some of them mortally. The following were killed:

Capt. Allyn K. Capron, of Troop L, rough riders.

Sergeant Hamilton Fish, Jr., of the rough riders.

Privates Tillman and Dawson, both of Troop L, rough riders.

Private Dougherty, of Troop A, rough riders.

Private W. T. Erwin, of Troop E rough riders.

Privates Dix, York, Bejork, Kolbe, Berlin and Lenmock, of the first cavalry, Corporal White, of the tenth cavalry.

Sergeant Hamilton Fish, Jr., was a son of Nicholas Fish, of New York, and a grandson of Hamilton Fish, Secretary of State during President Grant's administration. He was a graduate of Columbia College and was conspicuous in college athletics.

The Americans stormed and captured a blockhouse in the fight and gained an important position in the advance to Santiago.

News of a battle between 1500 Cubans and 5000 Spanish troops, in the province of Camaguey, on the 9th of June, reached Key West this week. The Cubans were victorious after a bloody battle, in which nine of their men were killed and thirty-two wounded. The Spanish loss was much heavier, 150 dead bodies having been counted by the Cubans.

While these events have been occurring on land operations at sea have not been without interest. On Wednesday of last week the auxiliary cruiser St. Paul, commanded by Capt. Sigsbee, was attacked, while off San Juan, Porto Rico, by an unprotected cruiser and the Spanish torpedo boat destroyer Terror. The Terror made a dash for the St. Paul but was disabled by the fire of the latter and was towed back into the harbor in a badly damaged condition. Capt. Sigsbee has thus demonstrated that Spanish torpedo boat destroyers need not be feared when they can be seen.

Rumors of German interference at Manila have been renewed, but it is not probable that Germany is disposed to provoke a war with the United States and all reports of that character are to be taken with many grains of allowance. It is also asserted that the Philippine insurrectionists, influenced by foreign consuls or inflated by their surprising success under arms, have changed their tone and now want complete independence. Aguinaldo, it is said, has already issued a circular saying: "It is probable that I will invite the European powers to recognize and guarantee the complete independence of the Philippines." Germany is, no doubt, seeking to gain some influence in the Philippines, and, if Aguinaldo, the leader of the insurrectionists, has really assumed the attitude attributed to him, he has doubtless done so at German instigation. The jealousy of other European powers, however, will probably block Germany's little game.

The latest from the front at Santiago, indicates that a battle is closely impending. Gen. Shafter, at the last advices, had nearly completed deploying his troops, but his siege guns were not yet in position for an attack. His plan, it is said, is to advance on the city from the northwest, northeast, east and southeast and, if possible, cut off the Spanish army. Gen. Miles expects to hear of the capture of Santiago by Monday.

The fleet of Admiral Camara, which sailed from Cadiz some time ago, destined, it was alleged, for Manila, by way of the Suez canal, is detained at Port Said, and, before it can reach the Philippines, Dewey will be so strongly reinforced as to enable him to meet this new adversary successfully. It is very doubtful whether Camara's movement is more than a feint.

A squadron, under Commodore Watson, will cross the Atlantic, probably for the purpose of secking and destroying Camara's fleet.

LETTERS FROM HARRY R. HUBER.

From several letters received by the family of Mr. A. H. Huber, of this city, from their sailor boy Harry, we are permitted to publish the following:

U. S. Flag Ship, New York,
Off Coast of Cuba,
June 12th, 1898.

Dear Father:

I received your last letter by one of the dispatch boats that came in from Key West this morning. I am still sick and so are about thirty more of us on board this ship. I have had a fever, the kind peculiar to this country I suppose, and, besides, a very heavy cold. I am pretty weak. Just now we are coaling ship from a collier on the port side. While it is true that I am sick I am not so bad as to have you think about coming to see me. I am getting better and will soon be in shape again.

I am your son,
Harry.

Thursday, June 16th,
On Board the New York.

Dear Father:

I received your letter. We bombarded the Santiago forts again this morning. It lasted from five until half-past seven. Nobody hurt as usual on our side, but I am certain that the Spaniards can't say that much. The dynamite cruiser Vesuvius went into the harbor last night and fired three of her shells. One was seen to explode, the others went over the hill. Eight hundred and fifty marines came down on a transport, landed and captured a town about forty miles to the eastward of where we are now lying. They have held the town and a fort near it ever since, but nearly every day we learn the Spaniards endeavor to recapture it, but they haven't succeeded in driving our boys out yet. Yesterday the marines, assisted by a detachment of insurgents, attacked and captured a block house and with it about two hundred Spaniards. Besides the prisoners, they lost a considerable number in killed and wounded. On our side three marines and three Cubans were killed. Twenty-four of our people were overcome with the heat which at times is fearful. Our men however have recovered.

The Marblehead recently was sent down to the point where the marines had landed and captured a Spanish gunboat that had been engaged in bringing troops across the bay to reinforce their men on the other side.

Our men who were captured on the Merrimac have not yet returned. It is reported that they have been taken to Havana. About two weeks ago the Cubans turned over to us about two hundred Spanish prisoners. We sent a batch of them in on board the Vixen to exchange for our men, but the Spanish officer said that they wanted naval officers as the exchange; otherwise was not an even one. So the Vixen returned with the Spanish prisoners.

I am well again and "off" the sick list. I am not messenger boy any more and am rather glad of it. My quarters in that part of the ship were not quite as healthy. I think, as where I now am. I am sure I will get along better than where I was. I don't think that I will be so likely to take cold.

I am your son.
Harry.

Off Santiago, Cuba,
June 19th, 1898.

Dear Sister Maggie:

We are still at the same old place. This morning the Dixie arrived with a supply steamer convoy having on board a lot of fresh meat and "spuds"—the sailors' name for potatoes.

General Garcia, second in command of the Cuban Army, came aboard our ship this afternoon and had an interview with the admiral. He is a very fine looking man.

On the sixteenth the fort at Guantanamo, east of us, was destroyed by the Texas and the Marblehead. The same day the Marblehead went up the channel to Canemara. On the way up her propeller caught in a mine. Fortunately the mine did not explode. Our people are now dragging the channel.

The other day one of our small boats brought aboard two Cuban soldiers. One was a young man about twenty-one years of age, the other was a boy of twelve. We showed them some of our rifles. You should have seen them handle the pieces? They just knew how to do it.

I must close, as the mail boat will soon be here. I am all right again.

Your Bro. Harry.

U. S. Flagship, New York,
June 22nd, 1898.

Dear Brother:

Well, Winter, the army has come at last, and we are glad of it. It reached us on the afternoon of the 20th. There were thirty-seven ships altogether. I tell you it was a grand sight to see them as they came up over the horizon!

They tried to land the troops to the westward of Santiago yesterday, but the surf was too rough, and could not. This morning we were called up at 3 o'clock. We lowered our boats and all the ships in the fleet did the same. They were then towed to a place about eighteen miles east of Santiago. The name of the place is Point de Barraca.

We are now sending the troops ashore from the transports that are crowded with men. Everbody is behaving as though the affair was an excursion on a large scale. As the transports pass and repass the men aboard cheer each other. The flag ship gets a special compliment from every ship. So loud is the noise that I shouldn't be surprised if the Spaniards heard it in Santiago. I tell you, Winter, our boys want to fight.

When we reached here this morning, which was about nine o'clock, the Detroit was firing at some Spanish batteries upon the hillswhich were on the left hand side of the bay and opposite to that on which our troops are landing. The place of landing shows it was once a mining ore camp. It is a small bay running some little distance up into the land. Immediately upon commencing to send our men ashore the enemy began to fire down across the bay at them, but the Detroit very soon put a stop to that. Two or three houses were set on fire by the Detroit's shells.

When we pulled out from in front of Santiago this morning the Texas and Indiana were firing at the batteries at the entrance of the harbor. One shell from the Texas fell right into the battery.

As cigarettes are not manufactured at sea I wish you would send me some. You don't know how it is when you can't get what you want.

I am getting along first-rate now, and am back again at the old four-inch gun.

Your Brother,
Harry.

Secure good health, and you will surely have good looks. "Electric Bitters" is a good Alterative and Tonic. Acts directly on the stomach, liver and kidneys. Mr. R. B. Greeve, merchant, of Chilhowie, Va., certifies that he had consumption, was given up to die, sought all medical treatment that money could procure, tried all cough remedies he could hear of, but got no relief; spent many nights sitting up in a chair; was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery, and was cured by use of two bottles. For past three years has been attending to business and says Dr. King's New Discovery is the grandest remedy ever made, as it has done so much for him and also for others in his community. Persons troubled with diarrhoea will be interested in the experience of Mr. W. M. Bush, clerk of Hotel Dorrance, Providence, R. I. He says: "For several years I have been almost a constant sufferer from diarrhœa, the frequent attacks comoletely prostrating me and rendering me unfit for my duties at this hotel. About two years ago a traveling salesman kindly gave me a small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Much to my surprise and delight its effects were immediate. Whenever I let symptoms of the disease I would fortify myself against the attack with a few doses of this valuable remedy. The result has been very satisfactory and almost complete relief from the affliction." For sale by Joseph D. Zepp, Druggist, Westminster, and Lewis H. Dielman, New Windsor.

Wisner's Sunday School will hold their annual celebration on Saturday, Sept. 3rd. The Carroll County Reed Band will furnish the music.

Our baby has been continually troubled with colic and cholera infantum since his birth, and all that we could do for him did not seem to give more than temporary relief, until we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Since giving that remedy he has not been troubled. We want to give you this testimonial as an evidence of our gratitude, not that you need it to advertise your meritorious remedy.—G. M.
