A SAFE INVESTMENT CLOSE TO HOME

Railroads, Coal Companies, Steel Corporations and Other Large Industries are Judged by Their Earning Capacity, Resources and Natural Advantages, and Classed Accordingly. THE TIDEWATER PORTLAND CEMENT COMPANY OF UNION BRIDGE, MD., Has Over All Competitors, Advantages That Have Attracted the Most Conservative Investors.

The raw materials necessary for the manufacture of high-grade portland cement are found on the property of the Company in great quantities and of the very highest qualities. Experts say, enough to last at least two hundred years. The rate on coal from the West Virginia coal fields is lower than that enjoyed by any other plant in the east. The rate on the finished product to our direct markets is about one-fifth that of any other plant, except one, which has to pay more than twice as much per ton to reach Baltimore and the Atlantic Coast. These advantages alone will pay the interest on the first-mortgage bonds, supply the sinking fund and a dividend on the stock.

The work of construction has been progressing very rapidly and the cement plant is well towards completion and will be of the most modern and substantial manufacturing plants ever erected for any purpose. All the buildings are constructed of steel and concrete and the most modern machinery installed.

The Company has always met its obligations with promptness, therefore, its commercial standing is of the highest.

In purchasing these bonds you are assured of the absolute safety of your money, inasmuch as they are first-mortgage bonds and cover everything now owned or that the Company may hereafter acquire. The bonds draw six per cent. from the day that you make your investment.

In addition you receive a bonus of common stock which is non-assessible, and has at this time an actual market value.

The company will manufacture annually 200,000 barrels of white portland cement, a fact possible owing to the purity of the limestone, and 800,000 barrels of gray cement. White cement sells at from $5 to $10 per barrel. Owing to increased demand for hydrated lime this unit has recently been enlarged in capacity and will, therefore, be even more productive in the future.

More than $300,000 of these bonds have been purchased by leading bankers and business men of Baltimore, and over $100,000 in Carroll county by bankers, farmers and business men, the balance in Norfolk, Washington, Pittsburg and other places.

The denominations of the bonds are $50, $500 and $1,000, and offer you an investment that is attractive to the most conservative.

You owe it to yourself to learn something about this great industry from those who know.

Consult with someone who has purchased these bonds. A list will be furnished on request.

MRS. CHAMP CLARK, WIFE OF INCOMING SPEAKER.

As the wife of the incoming speaker of the house of representatives Mrs. Champ Clark will occupy the position of "second lady in the land," the speakership being considered superior to the vice presidency in general importance. Mrs. Clark is a woman of forceful character. For many years she has taken a keen and intelligent interest in public affairs, and she is a woman of wide culture. She was Miss Genevieve Bennett of Aux Vasse, Callaway county, Mo., the famous "kingdom of Callaway," until the Pike county lawyer and educator made her his bride in 1881. Since then her home has been in a modest house on a quiet street in the somewhat somnolent town of Bowling Green, Mo., though for nearly a score of years she has spent most of the time in Washington, where she is an acknowledged leader in the more intellectual segment of capital society.

BETTER PAY FOR FARM HANDS

Wages Last Year Higher Than For the Last Forty-five Years.

Higher wages were paid to American farm laborers in 1910 than at any time in the last forty-five years, according to statistics just made public by the department of agriculture. The average wage for the country was $27.50 per month in 1910, while twenty years ago it was only $18.33. With board the average wage was $19.21.

In some parts of the country the rate of wages of farm laborers was higher than in others. The highest was in Nevada, where the rate was $54, while in Montana and Washington it was $50. South Carolina paid the lowest rate, $16.50 per month.

In the New England and north Atlantic states the average was $33.19, with Massachusetts paying the highest, $37.20. With board the average was $21.65.

In the south Atlantic states the average was $19.75, with West Virginia paying the highest, $29. With board the average was $13.77.

In the northern central states east of the Mississippi the average was $31.81, with Wisconsin paying the highest, $37.25. With board the average was $22.94.

In the northern central states west of the Mississippi the average was $35.45, with North Dakota paying the highest, $42. With board the average was $25.10.

In the southern central states the average was $21.90, with Oklahoma paying the highest, $28.10. With board the average was $15.28.

In the far western states the average was $46.48, with Nevada paying the highest, $54. With board the average was $32.69.

NO FLIES ATE THESE RADISHES

New Remedy to Kill the Pests Is Based on Arsenate and Wool Fat.

The radish fly is bound to make its appearance in early spring, says Farm and Fireside, and to lay its eggs on or near the roots of the radish plants it happens to find, and the eggs will hatch, and the young maggots will bore into the radishes. No method of manuring, whether with stable manure, old compost or chemical fertilizers, will protect the plants. Boiling water will, of course, kill the maggots or eggs it touches, but it cannot be applied free ly enough to kill those already inside the root without also killing the plant. It is not a complete nor a safe remedy.

The free application of tobacco dust, with or without bonemeal, next to the rows of plants, will tend to keep the fly away and prevent in some measure the deposition of eggs. Many sprays, especially tobacco tea, kerosene emulsion and probably lime sulphur solution will also kill the worms touched by them, but the applications should be made repeatedly at short intervals so as to catch the maggots before they find a safe retreat inside of the root. This year we have a new compound remedy in a combination of lime and sulphur solution with lead arsenate and wool fat.

After more than 6,000 years of production in the older countries of Europe the yields of crops are large and increasing from their more intelligent methods of intensive culture.

THE CORONATION INVITATIONS OUT; SIX THOUSAND GET THE PRIVILEGE

General Design Accentuates the Maritime Greatness of England

Shakespeare Ball Will Be Memorable and Striking Social Event

ENVOYS APPOINTED TO THE BRITISH CORONATION.

The foreign representatives appointed to attend the coronation of King George and Queen Mary at Westminster abbey, London, on June 22 are:

Germany—The crown prince and princess and Prince and Princess Henry.

France — Vice Admiral de Fauque (ambassador extraordinary), General Count Dor de Jastours, Captain Langier and M. Maurice Herbette.

United States — John Hayes Hammond (ambassador extraordinary), Major General A. W. Greely (retired) and Admiral Vreeland.

Spain—The Infante Fernando of Bavaria, brother-in-law of the king.

Austria-Hungary — Archduke Karl Franz.

Italy—The Duke of Aosta.

Holland—Prince Henry of the Netherlands.

Denmark—The crown prince.

Sweden—The crown prince and princess.

Roumania—The Crown Prince Ferdinand and the princess.

Saxony—Prince and Princess Johann Georg.

Norway—M. Ingrans, minister of foreign affairs.

Turkey — Prince Yusuf Izzed Din, the heir apparent.

Japan—Prince Fushimi, General Nogi and Admiral Togo.

China—Tsai Chen, eldest son of Prince Chun, the regent.

Servia—The crown prince.

Chile—The Chilean minister in London.

Portugal will have no invitation, but ex-King Manuel will probably receive an intimation that his presence will be honored.

THE card inviting privileged guests to Westminster abbey for the crowning of King George and Queen Mary, June 22, is much larger than that used at the coronation of King Edward and Queen Alexandra. It measures 13½ by 11¼ inches. It is the work of Bernard Partridge.

The general design emphasizes the maritime greatness of the British empire, the sea, with the sun rising over it, forming a background for the entire design. In the center is a beautiful winged symbolical figure of Britannia in classical drapery, carrying in her right hand the royal scepter, with the cross, and in the right the orb, the emblem of sovereignty. Perched on the top of the aureoled helmet, which also is winged, sits a miniature British lion.

On the right of the figure are shown the royal arms of King George and the royal monogram, "G. R." (George Rex). Beneath the medallion of the arms lie the sword of state and the trident. The queen's arms on the left closely resemble those of the king, except that the letters "M. R." (Mary Regina) are substituted. Below the medallion of the queen's arms is the cornucopia, or horn of plenty.

Six smaller symbolical medallions, three on each side of the feet of the central figure, surmounted by the royal crown, indicate the various dominions of the empire. Four states represent the four provinces of the South African union; the maple leaf, Canada; the rose, shamrock and thistle, the United Kingdom; the five stars, the five states of Australia, while the Indian and New Zealand symbols are readily distinguishable.

Between 6,000 and 8,000 of these cards are being issued. The peers' cards, which are sent out by the college of heralds, are signed by the king himself. The others are issued through the earl marshal's office and are signed by the Duke of Norfolk.

The Shakespeare Ball.

Since society began to dance balls without number have been given—balls great and charming, novel and original. Yet only one has ever achieved world-wide fame—only one has attained the importance of a historical event—the famous ball given by the Duchess of Richmond on the eve of the battle of Waterloo.

A second would now appear to be in preparation—one likely to be remembered not only for its charm and beauty and novelty, but for the fact that it was given, not on the eve of a destructive battle, but on that of the formal opening of a new reign in a peaceful era.

The Shakespeare ball, which has been fixed for June 29 in Albert hall, London, will be one of the most memorable and striking social events of the British coronation season. The honor of having originated it belongs to a former American, Mrs. George Cornwallis-West, who suggested the function as an excellent method of furthering the project for a Shakespeare national memorial theater. Mrs. Cornwallis-West was Jennie Jerome of New York before 1874, when she was married to the late Lord Randolph Churchill.

The proposal found instant acceptance, and the originator is now acting chairman of a committee of more than 200 women who are actively engaged in organizing the affair.

All the dancers must be in costume, preferably in that of a Shakespearean character. This offers a wide field of choice, as the plays contain some 2,000 characters in all. Elizabethan dresses generally will be accepted, however, but no one will be allowed to commit the anachronism of appearing in any costume belonging to a later date than that of Shakespeare's own times. In a sense the ordinary Elizabethan costume will be the more truly Shakespearean, as this must have been worn by the original actors when the plays were first performed.

But in this respect the organizers have decided to improve on the Elizabethan tradition, and the effect is certain to be excellent, for it will be possible to introduce almost every kind of costume, from the classical to the fifteenth century, and every care will be taken to make the dresses as historically accurate as possible.

One of the happiest ideas in connection with the ball is for a series of quadrilles of the different dramas. All the principal characters in a play will take part in its particular quadrille, dressed in appropriate costumes. In order to insure the success of this plan different women have undertaken the direction of each play and will make themselves responsible for gathering the required characters from among their friends.

Albert hall will be entirely transformed for the occasion. The dancing floor will be raised to the level of the boxes, providing a magnificent arena in which more than sixty sets of quadrilles can be danced at the same time. The decorations will be faithful to the Shakespearean idea. The balcony will be transformed into a Tudor garden, with the stiff yews and conventional planning of the period. Green will be the predominant color, giving a soft background for the gay and varied costumes of the dancers.

Its popularity is already assured, for more than 1,500 seven and a half dollar tickets were sold before any announcements about it were made to the general public, and in truth it should be a perfectly gorgeous sight.

Queen Objects to Smoking.

Women are not likely to do much smoking in the royal presence while Mary is queen of England. Court ladies have not forgotten an incident of a few years ago when she showed her dislike for the habit in an original and effective manner.

The then Princess of Wales was the guest of an American hostess in London who after dinner sought and obtained the royal assent to some of the women smoking cigarettes, the princess' dislike not then being generally known. But during the consumption of the cigarettes the future queen remained standing, and, of course, every other woman in the room had to do likewise.

The hostess had the shrewdness to guess why the royal guest did not sit down, and in a few minutes she managed to convey her wish to the others present that they should dispose of their cigarettes. The princess then seated herself, and she has never since had reason to express her dislike of women smoking in her presence.

SAN DIEGO'S PANAMA FAIR.

Irrigation, Reclamation, Colonization and History Will Be Featured.

Work for the Panama-California exposition in San Diego in 1915 has begun. The first welcome to those passing vessels which will inaugurate the opening of the Panama canal in 1915 will be given by San Diego, which is the oldest settlement in California.

San Diego's exposition is not to rival the world's fair planned for the same year in San Francisco, but will be an additional inducement to the world to come to California in 1915.

A preliminary fund of $2,000,000 has been subscribed, and the state has appropriated $250,000 for a state building and will give more for a fitting display.

The architecture of the fair buildings is to be Spanish colonial. A natural park of 1,400 acres will be the site for the exposition.

Four features will be given prominence at the San Diego fair. They are irrigation, reclamation, colonization and history.

Twentieth Babe Born to Whites.

Mr. and Mrs. John White of Wakefield, Mass., are receiving congratulations from far and near upon the birth of their twentieth child. The latest arrival in the White family is a girl weighing eight pounds. Mr. and Mrs. White have been married twenty-four years. Included in their family are three pairs of twins.
