THE ACT OF JUDGE GUTHRIE MAY LEAD TO TROUBLE

The persecution of Col Wm. R. Nelson, publisher of the Kansas City Star by Judge Guthrie of the Circuit Court of Kansas City, Missouri, for alleged contempt, an account of which appears in this issue of the Sentinel, is calculated to help the cause of those who are clamoring for amendments to the constitutions of the several states providing for the recall of Judges' decisions and, in certain instances, of the judges themselves.

Judges, being only human beings, are bound to make mistakes in their decisions, but there is no excuse for acting like a "hot head" because of some fancied wrong. Human liberty is too precious to be invaded by a hot headed judge and the people should rise as one person to protest against such acts as the Nelson case. Some judges are so consumed with their own importance that they forget their duty to the public. Many of them treat the attorneys, who practice before them, as if they were inferior beings and in granting rights vouchsafed to their clients they want them to feel that a great favor is being bestowed upon them.

Many of the judges, who made political fights to obtain their positions, instead of staying in their offices certain days in the week and attending to the business of the people, compel attorneys who, after all, only represent the people, to hunt them up in order to have the public business transacted. And then some of them are so thinskined that their dignity may be insulted by a look.

The judges of Maryland are, as a rule, common sense men and we doubt very much if any such thing as the Nelson case would happen in this state but the people who are clamoring for some control over judges will use the Nelson case as a basis for an argument in favor of their policies.

The action of the United States Senate in the case of Judge Archbald of the Commerce Court, who was impeached and removed from office, is the proper way to treat a judge who forgets himself and enters into questionable transactions; and a judge who undertakes to act as prosecutor, judge and jury and who prepares an opinion and a commitment to jail before the accused is even brought before him, should be punished and his case held up as a lesson to all other judges who may feel inclined to act likewise.

The rulings of courts ought to and must be respected; otherwise our government would fail. There should be a certain amount of dignity and decorum in all proceedings and the judge should be a man of spotless character and integrity, learned in the law, possessed of an abundance of common sense and be able to temper justice with mercy. But above all he should be the master of himself.

Some may argue that such men cannot be found but we are certain that if political considerations are once divorced from the method of selecting candidates there will be no trouble in securing the services of the kind of men described.

MR. ANDERSON'S REPLY TO AN EDITORIAL IN THE SENTINEL

On January 28 we had the following to say relative to certain threats contained in a speech delivered by Mr. Wm. H. Anderson superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Maryland:

"The threats of Wm. H. Anderson, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League had better been left out of his Lyric speech. People of Maryland can never be won over by threats. They will not stand for anything in the nature of one. We have been and are now in favor of allowing the people of any county to vote on the liquor question but we are not in favor of threatening members of the legislature.

Mr. Anderson says if the legislature does not pass the Anti-Saloon bill he will resort to state-wide prohibition. But wont the members of the legislature have something to do with that too? How is state-wide prohibition to be accomplished except by recourse to the legislature? Mr. Anderson has accomplished many things for the temperance cause but we are convinced that his latest utterances are not very politic. He may be a patriot but he impresses us as a poor politician. Many good causes have been lost by indiscrete utterances and Mr. Anderson's latest may wreck the hopes of his followers. People may be pursuaded that a certain course is a proper one to pursue but they will not be driven to it by means of a threat. Gentle means often succeed when force has failed."

This week we received the following letter from Mr. Anderson and are content to let the public pass upon the wisdom of using threats:

"Baltimore, Md., Jan. 31, 1913

Editor The American Sentinel:—

Your editorial of January 28th to the effect that the threats in my Lyric speech would better have been left out and that they may wreck the cause, etc., seems to require and justify some comment.

I think you are in error in assuming that I as an individual am making these threats, and then too it might be interesting to define what a threat is. This was a cool, deliberate statement, based upon authoritative official action, of what would be done by the Anti-Saloon League as the agency of the temperance people in certain contingencies.

It may be unpleasant that it is necessary to fight for our rights upon a question of this kind, but it is a condition and not a theory that confronts us. Through the foolish bad faith of the liquor interests we are in a position where we are independent and if they defeat the immediate thing we ask for they hasten the coming of the ultimate thing, and it is only fair and sportsmanlike to notify them, for if we did not notify them they would set up a lot of excuses for further delay.

So far as hurting the cause is concerned, we have abundant evidence to the effect that not only has it not hurt it in Maryland, but has given it an impetus. Identically the same tactics were employed in West Virginia and the same kind of notice served and it is very evident from the vote that whoever was hurt it was not the temperance people.

The League has found that the failure to pass the local option bill last time made a tremendous amount of straight prohibition sentiment and it is as the representative of the people that the League through me as its Superintendent made this statement, and of course we made it in a manner to attract attention.

WILLIAM H. ANDERSON,
Superinendent Anti-Saloon League of Maryland.

Tom Fitzpatrick, of Denton, Tex., has received 30 cents by mail in payment of a 12 year-old debt of 10 cents. A note accompanying the remittance read as follows: "About 12 years ago I borrowed a dime from you. With back interest and compound interest it would amount now to 30 cents, which I inclose."

"Have you had your child christened?"

"No. We haven't even had him operated on for anything yet."—Chicago Record-Herald.

BOY OF 13 IS 6 FOOT 6 AND IS STILL GROWING

Connelsville, Pa., Feb. 2.—Somerset county has a 13-year-old boy 6 feet 6 inches tall and still growing. For two years he has been wearing long trousers, and his fond parents are puzzled what to do with him, because he outgrows his clothes before he outwears them.

He is well developed and strong and weighs in the neighborhood of 200 pounds. Although normal at birth and when a child, within the last two years he began to sprout up to an enormosu height and a special bed was constructed before he could obtain rest.

PUBLIC OPINION

(Charleston News and Courier)

They are at work about us all the time, our silent teachers. Their voices are not raised in exhortation, nor in wordly phrases set to trap unwary ears. Their appeal is mute and only by the influence of their example do they work their wonders.

There are few persons, indeed, who have not felt their strength, and although some of us in our weakness and ignorance work steadily against their power for good we are as a rule more or less influenced by their silent pleadings. Human nature for all its contradictions and unexpected developments is the same the world over, and just to the extent of our individual tastes and characteristics do we differ in our treatment of certain accepted theories. That which pleases one man and fails to interest another cannot be condemned as useless simply because it does not meet with universal favor. Our individual natures differ in much the same way and many things which appeal with overwhelming force to certain persons, by the same token possess absolutely no interest to their neighbors. Therefore, although many of the silent forces for good in this world do not find response in every heart it does not necessarily follow that their workings are in vain. Indeed, if through their influence only one truant heart is made to thrill with the determination to regain its lost place, or one discouraged soul is bidden to hope anew, the reward of those who work in silence is great, indeed.

THE COMING LOBSTER

I dropped in to see my Bachelor Maid friend the other eve, who is flatting in Gotham. I found her very busy in the Kitchenette chopping up things.

"What are you making?"

"Lobster Salad."

"I don't see any Lobster."

"Oh, he is coming to supper, the Lobster is."

Good evening.
