CHESTERTOWN - OCT. 25, 1890

NOTES ON ITALY.

Written for the KENT NEWS.

As the shadows of evening gather thickly around, we enter the famous tunnel of Mt. Cenis, about 40 miles south of Geneva. It is damp and chilly like the inside of a dark cellar. We are very thankful for the cases of hot water which were placed in the cars under our feet before entering the tunnel, as this entire region is cold even during the summer months. Every one is sound asleep in the train when at daybreak we arrive at Modawe, the frontier town of Italy; then there is a general overhauling of baggage, cars vacated, and we all pass in file through a door guarded by small, strange-looking soldiers in green uniforms and green chicken feather cockades in their caps. Such sleepy, half-awake people we are as we scramble for first place to get our baggage examined first and marked with the chalk cross, some can move on to the "buffet" or coffee room where a hot cup of coffe is very acceptable after the experiences of the night among the Savoy mountains, the frost and the snow. Then we change cars and are off for Turin, the queen city of Tuscany, a fine old place and full of historic associations. The day is rainy and dull and our first impressions of sunny Italy are not lively. We pass through a country not picturesque and we look eagerly among the country people at the stations and in the trains for some resemblance to the dark-eyed Romeo and Juliet of romance. But we only see very ordinary faces and nothing in the least remarkable, except the presence of music everywhere; as soon as we arrived at a station several musicians get on the train and play lovely airs on guitars, violins or mandolins, from station to station occasionally passing around the hat for a little encouragement. This is the case throughout Italy.

We arrive at Genoa at 3 P. M., where we stop off four hours. It is a splendid city built high on rocky hills overlooking the sea, or Bay of Genoa. We left the station and climbed up the almost perpendicular rocks by steps, stopping on a great parapet overlooking the city. It was a very romantic place; a garden was built on the flat rock with a trellis for grapes. In the window near was a beautiful girl sewing occasionally lifting her dark eyes and watching the distant vessels far below in the bay. We walk on to an old gate, where at a stone trough some women are washing, we get a drink of water from them and say "bona giorna" as they smile and flash their black eyes. After reaching a very old church on the extreme height overlooking the city we rest awhile on a stone bench much worn by travelers, and then descend by another street, passing the magnificent statue of "our Columbus" erected near the station and carved in purest Italian marble by one of our American sculptors. Christopher Columbus was not born in Genoa but in a small village near the city. We have a strange feeling of friendship and love as we look up at the beautiful statue and recall our far-away America and what we owe to the genius and perseverance of this remarkable man; and then we turn to the distant harbor where the ships are lying at anchor and fancy this great Genoese mariner, poor and friendless, possessed with his convictions of another continent, and yet unable to carry his plans into execution. How he must have looked out on that far-reaching sea and longed for one vessel to take him to those countries of his dreams—those dreams which are now our realities.

The city of Genoa is everywhere picturesque, the narrow streets, with houses built on the hills, the costumes of the peasants, stores with rich fruits exposed for sale, mules and donkeys laden with paniers, holding vegetables and fowls; outside the city the cemetery is a great centre of attraction, owing to the magnificent mausoleums and monuments erected to the dead; and then the drives around the city bordering the sea coast are very delightful, and the air is pure and invigorating. So much so that we find our appetites highly excited and we go a searching for the Italian Tattorica (or eating house) as every thing has a strange name and looks odd, we feel more comfortable in ordering something which we understand and so we begin with maccaroni served with plenty of grated cheese and tomato sauce as only the "native born" Italian can arrange his national dish, which is truly enjoyable. Then we try fresh figs and the fine delicate cakes of Genoa with muscated wine—pure unadulterated grape, sweet and healthy, and after this lunch and a parting look over the city of "Christopher" we start again for Pisa. More anon. ROSALIE MITCHELL.

THE TIN-PLATE TAX.

Mr. Bayard's Denunciation of Its Injustice to the Farmer.

In his speech at Wilmington, Del., on Monday evening of last week, ex-Secretary Bayard spoke as follows of the tin-plate tax:

"Take, for instance, the tax upon tin-plates, an article which has come into an importance little dreamed of a few short years ago. By the discovery of hermetically sealing, provisions and all fruits the whole face of warfare is changed. An army can be moved into the middle of a desert and be supplied with fresh vegetables and fresh meats, keeping alive and in health the whole body of men. Distant sea voyages can be prosecuted by the same means. The truth is that this discovery of hermetically sealing in tin cans meat, vegetables and all manner of human food, is a most remarkable and potential discovery. Against that, one of the few things left for the poor farmer in Delaware, for the small fruit-grower and truck gardener, whose crops would perish if he could not in this way preserve them, this tariff deals a wickest and deadly blow. And for wheat? Not to sustain or protect an existing industry, but to enable men, who have not a dollar engaged in the business, to learn how they shall still further tax the great mass of their countrymen. Why, it is shameful and shocking. [Applause.] They have singled out the classes that least can bear these burdens. They are striking at the most commendable, the most wholesome, the most innocent of our pursuits. Knowing what I do of the farming classes of this country, knowing what I do of the farming classes of this, my own little State, knowing the sufferings they are undergoing now by a failure of their crops and their fruit, I say that it makes my very heart burn with indignation when I think of the blow that, so meanly and cruelly, is being inflicted upon them. There may be large canners who may tell you that it is very little, because, they may tell you, where they export their tin cans, in large numbers they can get a rebate. But that is not the case with the poor farmer, who cans his growing products and who must pay the increased price. It won't do to sneer it down and belittle it. The increase of duty by this bill will be more than $8,000,000 annually, and that is the burden to be put upon that most deserving class of our countrymen, engaged in a business in which we are all interested, for the sake of health and comfort, and, forsooth, to enable some man, already rich, to put some of his unscrupulous wealth into an industry that has, to this day, no existence in the borders of the United States."

WILL VOTE THE DEMOCRATIC TICKET.—Hon. Frank D. Winston, one of the ablest Republicans in North Carolina, has written a letter declining the nomination of his party for judge of the second judicial district, and announcing his purpose to vote the Democratic ticket. The course of the Republican majority in the last House of Representatives, including the passage of the force bill, has convinced Mr. Winston that "the tendencies of the Republican party are such as to alarm every man who places the permanent welfare of his country above temporary party advantage," and hence he withdraws from the organization. "A Democratic triumph at the November election," says Mr. Winston, "will be a wholesome rebuke to the men who are using the national government for purposes of plunder; whose professions of love for free speech and a fair count are belied by their daily practices in the halls of Congress, and by their systematic purchase of votes in all close elections; whose disregard of the true interests of the negro is shown by the passage of laws that will raise the price of everything the negro buys and lower the price of everything he sells, and who imagine that blatant philanthropy and braying patriotism will serve as a disguise for their wicked schemes."

Revolt from Boss Rule.

Rev. Joseph May, of the First Unitarian Church of Philadelphia, a clergyman of the highest standing, not given to sensationalism, preached a powerful sermon on Sunday on present political corruptions, and the duty of honorable men in regard to them. He scored the Pennsylvania boss unmercifully as a man whose history "teems with accounts of political trickery of the lowest sort, of bribery and attempted bribery, of embezzlement of public money, of defalcation as a high officer of State, of the prostitution of official position to the basest personal ends and the shielding of notorious criminals whose silence was essential to his own security." Dr. May then called attention to the fact that as the dictator of his party the boss made its ticket and been indorsed by its party convention, and that the highest duty of honorable men at this time is to vote for the purification of public affairs defeating the knaves to whom power is given by money. As Dr. May is a republican, his sermon is an excellent campaign document for the democrats. They are to have more of the same sort, for the independent republicans are to hold a meeting at the Academy of Music on October 20, which is to be addressed by Rev. Charles Wood, D. D., of Germantown, and other clergyman. Letters have been received from Right Rev. Henry C. Potter, D. D., and Rev. Heber Newton, D. D., of New York, and Rev. Phillips Brooks, of Boston, strongly indorsing the revolt against Quay by the Lincoln republicans. Every day the opposition to Delamater increases in strength, and the movements of the republican managers show that they are at last fully alarmed by the situation. Quay is, in fact, getting ready to trade everybody to save his candidate for Governor, a move that is, of course, resented by those interested.—Phila. Corr. Balt. Sun.

Depew's Tribute to Cleveland.

At the dinner given to Jno. Russell Young at the Astor House, New York, last Thursday week in honor of Gen. Roger A. Pryor, Chauncey M. Depew paid a high compliment to ex-President Cleveland, who was one of the guests. After speaking about the distinguished men about the board, he said: If I were asked to name the typical American, the man who loves and believes in his country beyond everything else, the man who, determining once in what direction his duty leads, cannot be swerved from the path, the man who is doggedly persistent in what he believes to be right, the man who thinks not of self, but of his country and its needs, I would name Grover Cleveland. What he has accomplished is the very highest tribute to the possibilities of American citizenship. A country lawyer in the city of Buffalo, he shed lustre upon the high profession which he had chosen. As the mayor of his native city he presented as his record a clean and economical administration. Coming into the highest position in the land without previous experience and with scarcely a precedent to guide him in the conditions which surrounded him, he won the affection of his party and commanded the respect and admiration of his opponents. I find myself in one of the proudest positions of my life in being permitted to present to you Grover Cleveland as the typical American."

Needless to say that the warmth of this eulogy, coming from a man who has been so frequently suggested as the Republican candidate for the Presidency, caused admiring amazement, and his words sent a thrill through the gathering which found its vent in long continued applause.

KISSES.

(A la Romeo and Juliet.)

A prominent physician calls the kiss "an elegant disseminator of disease." He says, "fever is spread by it, so are lung diseases." Out upon the gnarled and sapless vagabond! Evidently kisses are not for such as he, and the old fox says the grapes are sour. Let him devote himself to making our women healthy and blooming that kisses may be kisses. This can surely be done by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which is simply magical in curing diseases peculiar to females. After taking it for a reasonable length of time there will be no more irregularity, backache, bearing-down sensations, nervous prostration, general debility and kindred ailments.

It is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money refunded.

I have learned the business thoroughly and have given it my study, and had much experience in the work of Horse-shoeing. For this reason I think I am better prepared to do Horse-shoeing than shops which do all kinds of Blacksmithing.

My system of Shoeing prevents CUTTING and FORGING and preserves the horses' feet.

My best recommendation is the universal satisfaction of my customers, and I have no hesitation in referring to any for whom I have done work.

My prices I guarantee to be as low as the lowest.

and would mention a few of our leaders: 1st, That Lady's Kid Front, Glove Kid Top, Worked Button-hole Shoe, at $1.75, have sold 1,400 pair of them in a little over three years, and every lady that buys one pair of them wants them again. 2d, A Man's Solid (guaranteed) Plow Shoe at $1.00, same as is sold elsewhere for $1.25. 3d, A Lady's Good Lace or Buttoned Shoe for $1.00. 4th, Our Double Upper, 22-Inch Leg Oyster Boot at $2.75 a pair.

Lime, Hair and Whitewash Brushes.

We are selling the W. I. Lime, which is said by both masons and carpenters to slake at least one-fourth more than other limes.

FLOUR! FLOUR! FLOUR!

We have also Lea's and Gambrill's brands of Flour by the pound, bag and barrel, but please bear in mind that we sell Flour by the Barrel for cash only.

Our aim is to keep a little of everything and while we do not expect or wish to sell all the goods that is old in Chestertown we would like to sell a small bare of them. Thanking you all for past favors and patronage we only ask a continuance of the same.
