ROCK HALL ITEMS

On the last week of the closed season oystermen, blacksmiths and shaft makers are as busy as can be in preparations for the opening of the oyster season on Monday next. There is however considerable gloom among oystermen both catchers and buyers. The fruit and vegetable crops are all three weeks behind, this puts the packers as many weeks behind in their packing operations, consequently oysters will be slow until near October. Not more than half the tongers will begin with the opening season. Prices will be low and many tongmen will not attempt to sell their catch for several weeks, they will lay their oysters in shoal water to be taken up when the weather storms.

It is an interesting sight to see so many vessels coming down the bay from New Jersey with thousands of baskets of tomatoes for Baltimore market.

The Store That Does Things Best

This store is not satisfied to go along in a fairly good way. Whatever is done here must be done best—always.

It is this policy that makes Baltimore's Best Store the most satisfactory of all places to buy goods—for you are sure in advance of getting the best merchandise, the best store service and the most liberal treatment to be had anywhere.

And a sale here is never considered closed until you say you're satisfied.

These weeks are the weeks of clearance—summer goods must be gotten out before fall goods come. And we're getting them out just as thoroughly as we do everything else.

The lots are small—too small for detailed mention—but the savings are very, very big.

Our Mail Order Department is equipped to give prompt and accurate service. Samples of Silks, Dress Goods, Wash Fabrics and so on will be cheerfully sent if you will write for them.
