The fast mail train due here on Monday morning was four or five hours late, its non-prompt arrival having been caused by an accident near Walbrook Station the previous evening. A passenger train crashed into the side of a car of a freight train that was pulling into the "Y" leading to Port Covington. The passenger engine was derailed and, after running some distance, toppled over an embankment. Four persons were injured, but none of them seriously. By telephone it is learned there was none of the last class of property in the building, hence the actual insurance is $1600, which will well nigh cover the loss.

FIRE AT THE N. I. GORSUCH SON COMPANY'S HAY AND STRAW PACKING HOUSE

About 7 o'clock Tuesday evening fire was discovered in the hay and straw packing building, in the rear of the N. I. Gorsuch Son Company's steam roller mill and elevator, and continued burning for probably forty-eight hours. The building contained 115 tons of straw and baled hay, besides two valuable presses, all of which were practically destroyed or rendered valueless, and the building was damaged beyond repair. The firemen extinguished the blaze on the charred timbers and weatherboarding of the structure, but burning baled hay, like baled cotton, resists any amount of wetting and the fire continued smouldering until exposed to the air, when it broke into little spurts of flame, and so this fire was not quenched until the entire contents of the house were removed. The damaged straw, thoroughly saturatd with water, was given to farmers and others who hauled it away as fast as it was removed from the structure. Mr. C. C. Gorsuch estimated the loss, conservatively, at $2500, upon which there is insurance of $1,000 in the Baltimore County Company. The origin of the fire is not known, but it may have been started by a spark from a passing railroad locomotive.

The company will rebuild at once and sheath the new structure with steel. It has a valuable trade, especially in flail-thrashed rye straw and received an order for a carload, on Wednesday, from a firm in Mississippi. Its trade in the product extends as far as Texas and over a large part of the country. The fire has destroyed, for the time being, the facilities of the company for handling the straw and until further notice purchasing it from the farmers will be discontinued.

MRS. MARGARETHA DORSEY NEWSON

The venerable lady, who celebrated the hundredth anniversary of her birthday, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. H. C. Cushing, with whom she resided in this city, on the 23rd of February last, died at the home of another daughter, Mrs. Ellen Saunders, in Bristol, Tenn., on Saturday morning last. She had been residing with Mrs. Saunders since a day or two after she reached her hundredth year. Her remains were brought to the home of Mrs. Cushing on Sunday evening and funeral service held on Monday afternoon. Rev. Dr. D. L. Greenfield, pastor of the Methodist Protestant Church, conducted the service and, in accordance with a request long ago preferred by the aged lady, Rev. Dr. Thos. H. Lewis delivered the only remarks made on the occasion. He spoke of his long and tender intimacy with her; of the love with which she had taken him into her heart when he first came to Westminster 40 years ago; of his attachment to her as of a son to his mother, and then, at considerable length, paid a tribute to her character and memory that has never been excelled in tenderness and beauty of expression by any funeral discourse ever delivered in this city. It is impossible, in this brief account, to give anything like a just idea of the appropriate character of the address and the beauty of its language in painting the worth of its subject. No attempt will be made in this account to quote, verbatim, a word that was spoken, but it may not be transgressing propriety to mention one thought presented, and that was that Mrs. Newson's title to distinction was not so much in her great longevity as in the sweetness of her disposition, her innate love for her kind, her constant and abiding interest in the welfare of others, not only those near and known to her, but mankind generally, and her sympathy for all in affliction or trouble. This description of an important attribute of Mrs. Newson was eminently just. It is true, too, that throughout her long life, with its bereavements and sorrows, she was ever cheerful and resigned and bore life's burdens with a patience and fortitude which were her's by nature, as well as by her sublime faith and confidence in the goodness and mercy of God. It is cheering to her many friends in this community to learn that her last days were happy and bright with the love of those about her; that her mental faculties were comparatively unimpaired to the last and that she met death with the unfaltering faith and trust of a true believer in the Redeemer and Saviour of the world.

During the funeral service Miss Catharine Lynch and Miss Betty Knapp sang, as a duet, a beautiful and appropriate selection.

Mrs. Newson was a daughter of Francis and Sarah Dorsey, of this State, but was a native of Georgia. She was the widow of the late Joseph M. Newson, who, forty to 45 years ago, was the popular and genial superintendent of the public schools of this county. She was the mother of fifteen children, of whom four survive her—Mrs. Saunders and Mrs. Cushing, Mr. Arthur Newson, of Philadelphia, and Mr. H. Dorsey Newson, well known as a prominent publisher in New York. She also leaves a number of grand and great-grandchildren. She was an aunt of Dr. George D. Fouke, of this city.

Her remains were interred in Westminster Cemetery beside the grave of her husband. The pallbearers were Judge James A. C. Bond, Dr. Charles Billingslea, Dr. Jas. H. Billingslea, Messrs. E. O. Grimes, Frank K. Herr and Joseph B. Boyle. Mr. F. C. Sharrer was funeral director. Flowers of the most exquisite variety covered he casket.

Judge Myers was engaged in the huckstering business and usually went on his gathering route the first week day. On Monday, however, he remained at home to butcher and his son, Mr. Harry K. Myers, went over the route for him. In the afternoon his son-in-law, Mr. Clarence Myers, met the wagon with two extra horses and toward evening the team reached home. Judge Myers proposed to take the horses to the barn, and while loosing the hames on the collars of one of them, at the watering trough, was seized with vertigo and fell. He did not lose consciousness and called for help. His son and son-in-law carried him to the house and a physician was summoned. But he did not rally and gradually grew weaker until the end. He was conscious during the evening and expressed his belief that he would die. He was in his 66th year and had been for many years an active and influential citizen of Frizellburg and known all over the county. He took an active part in political affairs and was a prominent local leader of the Democratic party. His reputation for integrity and upright dealing was well established. Myers, Mrs. Clarence Myers, at home, Mrs. Frank Warehime, of Silver Run, and Mr. Robert Myers, of this city.
