arm an involuntary hug. He was a leetle startled, but thought his farm wanted some female help to look arter the house.—Pru knew how to make rale good bread. 'Now don't,' said Jonathan. 'If I should'—said Jonathan. 'Now don't' said Pru. 'May be you would'nt,'—and Jonathan shook all over, and Prudence replied, 'if you be comin' that game, you better tell feyther.'—'That's jist what I want,' said Jonathan—and in three weeks Jonathan and Prudence were 'my old man' and 'my old woman.'

The Richmod Enquirer has, we are deeply pained to see, added the sin of ingratitude to its other offences. It has at length permitted itself to commit the indelicacy of assaulting General Jackson, its late patron and demigod. In a late letter. the Expresident, with a mildness altogether new to him, expresses his "regret at the attitude occupied by Mr Rives and Mr. Ritchie" in relation to the Sub Treasury scheme. The Enquirer republishes the letter and comments upon it in these terms.—

"The great respect which we have entertained for the name of General Jackson, has induced us to republish (on our last page) his letter to the editor of the Cincinatti Advertiser. But we regret to see him so often dragged forth into the public prints—To clear up errors of statement is one thing—to influence the opinions of a free people, is another.—They ought to decide for themselves, and upon the strength of the reasons, which addresses themselves to the judgment.

Gen. Jackson has criticised the Banks in the severest manner. He has charged them with treachery to the government—but whatever was their misconduct, the People, as well as the Government, participated in the error, as well its consequences.—The Banks overdealt—and so did the People. The Government, too, stimulated them at one remarkable period to speculate on the public deposites—and it is said, that Mr. Gallatin, in the late Bank Convention, stated as a fact, that when the three Deposite Banks of New York has discounted on the public deposites to the full capacity of their charters, they were instructed to transfer to other Banks the balance of the deposites, with a view of extending to their customers a similar accommodation. This measure was not only supposed to be venial then but even meritorious. In a country which needs so much capital, it was then supposed by General Jackson, that no part of the public deposites ought to be "anihilated"—but that every facility ought to be given for commercial operations founded upon it.

We all now see the error—and we, for one, and we have reasons to believe, that Mr. Rives is also willing so far to disconnect the Banks as to prevent their discounting on the public deposites—but not to seperate the public funds from the Banks, as special depositories. "We are sorry that our attitude should have caused the slightest regret in the bosom of General J., but we confess we do not yet see our error, and cannot therefore shift our attitude, even from respect to Gen. J. We suspect, too, that Mr. Rives is as unfortunate a schismatic as ourselves. Both of us can repeat, Amicus Plato, sed magis amica Veritas! Andrew Jackson is our friend—but Truth is more our friend."

"The great respect we have entertained for the name of General Jackson." And has it indeed come to this? Is General Jackson so fallen that the respect in which he was held is spoken of as a thing that has been, but is no longer?

Oh mighty Ceasar! art thou so low?
Are all thy triumps, conquests, glories, spoils
Shrunk to this little measure?

CAUTION-

Beware of violating a law when the public are injured,—The habit of hiring negroes of late years and giving them permission to act for themselves, has become so common, that it is difficult to get hands willing to be controlled after such liberties have been granted them, & hands are so scarce that many farmers are put to great inconvenience, & some have not one to assist, even to feed their stock, owing mostly to this illjudged practice of obliging a set of ungrateful negroes. Information will therefore be given and the penalty of the law enforced against all who continue this injurious and illjudged practice. and to prevent cost and trouble, it is hoped that those now offending will take immediate steps to prevent it.

Wanted two likely boys from 8 to 15 years old, to remain in the State. Enquire at this office.

TAILORING-

THE Subscriber begs leave respectfully to announce to his friends and the public, that he still carries on the

Tailoring Business

IN ALL ITS DIFFERENT BRANCHES,

At his old Stand, in Cambridge.

He has lately procured a new system of

CUTTING OUT GARMENTS,

which has never been used before in this part of the State. It is adjusted upon a mathematical principle, and cannot fail to succeed in all cases. Upon this plan, the science of cutting clothes is no longer uncertain, and dependent upon the eye and accident, for a good fit. It is as unerring as the truths of geometry. He congratulates himself and his friends upon the possession of this long sought desideratum. He is prepared to make up clothes for his patrons in the neatest and most fashionable style, having made an arrangement to procure the

LATEST NEW YORK FASHIONS

of the season. His work shall be finished in the best manner, and he warrants his garments to fit. Having been located in Cambridge for the last twelve years he returns his acknowledgements to his friends and the public, for the flattering encouragement they have bestowed upon him. He pledges himself to devote his most assiduous attention to accommodate those who entrust work to his care. In conclusion, he invites all to call, and he flatters himself that they will be entirely satisfied that he has promised nothing but what he will most rigidly fulfil.
