WESTMINSTER, - MARYLAND.

W. L. W. Seabrook, - Editor.

Entered at the Postoffice at Westminster, Md., as Second-class matter.

SATURDAY, MARCH 2, 1901.

Mr. Gorman's fine hand is evidently guiding the movements of the Extra Session Democrats of Maryland and shaping the policy to be pursued by the Legislature. His skill in making plans for defrauding the people of their just rights is proverbial. It was exercised through a long course of years and until many of the upright men of his own party were driven into revolt and overthrew him and his henchmen and heelers at the polls. Carroll county people of both parties remember how bitterly he was denounced by a Carroll county Democratic convention, which declared that Gormanism denied the rights of the people. They remember the fervid language with which Mr. B. F. Crouse, chairman of the Democratic county central committee, denounced Gorman and and Gormanism in that convention. They know that the success of the Democratic organization in Maryland would mean the restoration of Gorman and Rasin to all their oldtime power in the party management in the State and a return to the methods which then disgraced the party and made its name a stench in the nostrils of decent people; in fact, right thinking Democrats all over the State must be seriously exercised at the prospect of a new lease for the Gorman-Rasin regime. These Democrats will hold the balance of power, even under the disfranchising scheme proposed by the party bosses, and they will act wisely for their own interests and for the future welfare of their party, by striking down this new departure at the first opportunity offered at the polls.

The Lex Talionis.

If ever there was a just reason for an appeal to the law of retaliation that occasion has arisen in Maryland through the call for an extra session of the Legislature, as, whatever the pretence upon which that call was based, there is no doubt in the minds of intelligent people that its real purpose is to gain political advantage; to fill the offices of the counties and of the State with Democrats, disburse political patronage among the "faithful," and exclude Republicans and Independents from opportunities of political preferment. No effort was made to conceal this purpose when the question of an extra session was first mooted, and reasons subsequently assigned in its favor are simply hypocritical pretences. Having power, the Democratic politicians propose to exert it, even to the extent of violating the true intent and meaning of the constitution, that thereby they may perpetuate their hold upon the State government and also gain control in counties in which there are more Republican than Democratic voters.

Under these circumtances, therefore, the application of the lex talionis would be peculiarly appropriate. If the Democrats, or rather that element of the Democratic party in Maryland, must play the part mapped out for the Legislature in extra session, it is time for the Federal Government to take a hand in the game. There are scores of Democrats holding federal offices in Maryland. They are probably to be found in every county—Carroll certainly has its share. It is said that Democrats are laughing in their sleeves at this condition of affairs. It is time they were made to laugh on the other side of their faces, and the Republicans of Maryland should make united and concerted effort to induce the National Administration to radically change its policy in relation to Federal appointments, unless the Democrats shall abandon their unfair means to perpetuate their power in the State.

Schley and Sampson Again.

The controversy between the partisans of Acting Admirals Schley and Sampson, concerning their respective merits, has broken out afresh and volumes of praise or detraction, as the case may be, are being poured before the people through the newspapers and other agencies. It is altogether an unseemly wrangle, and, if the truth must be told, the achievements of neither of its subjects justify the panegyrics of his partisans, nor his shortcomings their detractions. The destruction of Cervera's fleet, off Santiago, did not expose either of the officers named to deadly peril. The Spanish ships were sunk by the superior strength of the American fleet, the heavier weight of the American guns and the matchless skill of the American gunners. They would have been sunk all the same if neither Admiral Schley, or Admiral Sampson had been on the scene. It is true that Admiral Schley is proving himself the better man by his wise and manly conduct since invidious contrasts have been made of his ability as a naval commander with the pretensions of Admiral Sampson. He deserves the thanks of the nation for his efforts to subdue rather than to inflame the passions and prejudices of his supporters, and is showing himself a moral hero, at least, whether he be given the credit of a great naval commander or not. Sampson is just now at a decided disadvantage in the controversy for another reason. He has urged the Navy Department to keep warrant officers out of promotion to the line because of their lack of opportunities to learn the amenities of social life, and has practically expressed the opinion that no man who has not been, or shall not be educated at the United States Naval Academy, shall rise to the rank of a commissioned officer in the Navy, no matter how efficient he may prove himself, or what service he may render his country. This is rank snobbishness and Sampson stands a fair chance to become the most unpopular man in America. After such an exhibition the people will not be satisfied to see him outrank Schley.

A hundred and twenty-eight lives were lost by the foundering of the Pacific Mail Line Steamer, Rio de Janeiro, while entering the harbor of San Francisco, Cal., on Friday morning of last week. The steamer ran on a hidden rock while entering the Golden Gate, and sank soon after striking. There were 29 first cabin and 7 second cabin passengers, 58 Chinese and Japanese steerage passengers, and 140 officers and crew on the vessel. The captain locked himself in his cabin and went down with the ship. Mr. Romnsville Wildman, U. S. consul at Hong Kong, China, and his wife and two children, who were among the passengers, were drowned.

Ex-U. S. Senator Wm. M. Evarts, of New York, is dead.

Rev. J. D. Simon, who went as a missionary of the Lutheran Church to Africa, a short time ago, is dead. His wife, who accompanied him, died a few weeks after landing. They left a twenty-months old child in this country.

The Pennsylvania Conference of the Church of the United Brethren in Christ began its annual meeting at Waynesboro, Pa., on Wednesday afternoon. The conference boundaries include the churches of the denomination in Franklin, Cumberland, Adams, York and part of Perry counties, Pa.; part of Carroll and Baltimore counties, Md., and Scott Street, Salem and North Baltimore Churches, Baltimore.

At the annual convention of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, held at Washington, D. C., last week, Mrs. Chas W. Fairbanks, of Indiana, was elected president general of the society for the ensuing year, receiving 333 votes to 208 for Mrs. Donald McLean, of New York, and 42 for Mrs. Washington Roebling, of New Jersey. Mrs. Fairbanks is the wife of the senior senator from Indiana, and Mrs. McLean is a daughter of the late Judge John Ritchie, of Frederick.

Extra Session.

Before another issue of the SENTINEL reaches its readers the Extra Session of the Legislature, called by an intensely partisan Governor, will have met. Neither he nor the office-seeking cabal who prevailed upon him to accede to their request, have ever pretended that any considerable portion of the voters, much less a majority of the taxpayers of the State, favored this large expense that would be incurred by such extra session. In so far as this county is concerned, it is a well known fact, that the endorsers of the scheme were confined almost exclusively to the office-holders and to those who are recognized as the blind followers and henchmen of Gorman.

Beacham, Joshua Zepp, Alfred Logue, Harry Englar, Ex-Sheriff Haines, Thomas Hann, John Beaver, Samuel Diehl, George Hoover, Frank Stevens, Henry Cassell, Fletcher Babylon, Granville Bixler, Daniel Young, Harry Young, Uriah Bixler, Guy Cookson, Frank Palmer, Alfred Young, Albert Harman, Jonas Wagner, Charles Grabill, and he also cut the principal part of them up and has pleased the people very much in doing so. He killed two at Mr. Stoner's butcher shop, one in eighteen minutes and one in twenty minutes, and he has removed the insides from hogs in twenty-one seconds, weighing from 100 to 116 pounds. He has dressed calves in nine miutes.
