Watch Us Grow. THE GREAT MODEL EMPORIUM WEEKLY STORE NEWS. Watch Us Grow.

Its the goods behind the advertising that makes a store, though some stores seem to think advertising is all that's necessary. How can you have confidence in a store if you haven't confidence in its advertising? And how can you have confidence in some advertising?

The Coming Event.

From the Pittsburg Chronicle Telegraph.

Time for saving money—
Christmas drawing nigh—
Lots and lots of presents
Soon we'll have to buy.
Every one expecting
Something that is nice,
So there must be hustling
To acquire the price.

Daughter wants a diamond,
Wife a sealskin coat,
Jim a watch is wanting,
Willie wants a goat,
Horns and drums and dollies,
Soldiers, swords and guns,
Are among things wanted
By the little ones.

Uncles, aunts and cousins,
Every neph and niece,
Counting on a present
Or a "five" apiece,
Fathers, mothers, sisters,
And the brothers, too,
Each expecting something
When such gifts are due.

Relatives quite distant
Thinking, like the rest,
They are booked for presents
That are of the best.
Then the friends and neighbors
Oft are reckoned kin,
And when gifts are going
Must be counted in.

Time for spending money
Now is drawing nigh:
Lots of Christmas presents
Soon we'll have to buy.
Now's the time for planning
How to so behave
That we'll not lack money—
Now's the time to save.

A PACIFIC ROMANCE.

From The Argonaut.

By all the laws of the true romance she should have felt upon opening her [illegible]yes a premonition that this was to be a day of destiny. But she merely felt that the engines had stopped, that the ship was at anchor, and that, therefore, it was moistly, insufferably warm. The curtains across the stateroom windows did not so much as move. She came down from her berth and pulled them aside. The coast of Guatemala was before her—and the port of San Jose.

There had been rain in the night, a tropic shower. The clouds were lifting away. They were massed in white and gold behind the two volcano peaks that had sent forth the one fire, the other water, in their time. And the peaks themselves were side by side, two cones of glowing pink.

They were miles inland, many miles, and the thick, lush tropic green was between, reaching to the curve of the sand. There were some white houses by the beach—white, with red tiles. They made the port of San Jose. But the ship was anchored well out in [illegible] sep water, and there were no craft [illegible] sight, save a rowboat or two drawn [illegible]p on the sand, and one that was starting out from the pier across the faint [illegible]ue water that showed back the [illegible]ouds of white and gold. The wake [illegible]d the oars glistened in the new sunght.

The girl leaned her bare arm on the [illegible]ll and stood looking out. She had [illegible]en many beautiful things in her life, [illegible]t never so lovely as the coast and [illegible]lcano peaks of San Jose de Guatemala at the break of day.

The rowboat came near and she saw that the quarantine officials sat in the stern. But by the time she was dressed and came on deck they had long since gone. There was no one at all in sight either aft or amidship, but when she was forward of the bridge she saw some one standing near the bow. He was a new passenger. He turned and looked at her.

There was a breeze, the faintest South Sea morning breeze, that rippled her thin white gown and moved the loose tendrils of her hair. He raised his straw hat civilly and turned back to his consideration of the shore. Presently the purser joined him, and he stood talking, his hands jammed into his sack coat pockets and his tan shod feet wide apart on the deck. Then he went into the saloon.

That was all Miss Strathmore saw of him, but she described him to her mother accurately, nevertheless.

"He's the only Latin I ever saw who looked as though he could do things—and not talk about it afterwards. His skin is very white and his hair is black. His nose is big and his jaw shuts hard. And, moreover—though his eyes are brown, they are neither sparkling nor soft"—she objected to both—"they are level and hard. That he may speak English is my fondest wish."

He did. He was put beside her at breakfast and the captain presented him. His name was Merida.

"You saw me this morning," he said, "when I was looking back upon 'my house, my home, my heritage, my lands.'"

"And the laughing dames in whom you did delight?" she followed it up.

He gave her a quick look. "Perhaps," he said, and turned short about to talk to the man at the other side, a little Chilian whom Miss Strathmore did not like. They talked Spanish togeteer and she could not understand. So she ate her breakfast, and wondered why the Guatemalan should have objected to have his quotation finished out. Had she hit some nail too neatly on the head? He had risked that. But he knew his Byron, apparently, and his English had not so much as an accent. If there was to be any further conversation, it lay with him to begin it. He did so presently, but he kept to generalities, and refused to be drawn out about himself.

The captain was more communicative on the subject later on. He belonged to the general seadog type. "Better make up to young Merida, Miss Elizabeth," he advised, coming [illegible]o a stop in front of her steamer chair; [illegible]he owns about everything in sight [illegible]over there," his arm swept the view of [illegible]ense green from the beach curve to [illegible]he mountains far away. "Half Gua[illegible]temala belongs to his brother and [illegible]tel[illegible]im. The brother is married—to a [illegible]hi[illegible]panish princese, too—but he's not, Sp[illegible]nd you'll do the best two weeks' [illegible]an[illegible]ork you ever did in your life if you [illegible]wo[illegible]atch him between here and 'Frisco [illegible]cat[illegible]
