CARROLL COUNTY TAX RATE JUMPS

Commissioners Fail To Get 1924 Figures Under $1.50.

The time limit for fixing the 1924 tax rate for Carroll county expired at midnight Saturday night. The County Commissioners have been figuring for weeks on the problem how to avoid an increase, and failing, announced Saturday night that the rate for 1924 will be $1.50, an increase of 10 cents over the 1923 rate.

Two items account for the increase. Last year the levy for school purposes was .70; under the present levy it will be .7773, an increase of .0773. The Legislature of 1922 passed a law compelling the appropriation by the county of $8,000 to the volunteer fire companies of the county, to meet which there must be a levy of .0236; a total increase for schools and fire companies of 10 cents and nine mills.

School Cost Problem.

The greatest problem of the commissioners was the school budget, submitted by the Board of Education. In it the board asked for $80,000 for a new school building for Sykesville, and $80,000 for a new building at Taneytown.

The gross amount asked by the board for school purposes, including these two new buildings was $488,613.62, which, if granted would have necessitated a levy of $1.473 for school purposes alone. The request of the Board of Education, exclusive of new buildings at Sykesville and Taneytown was for $346,613.62, granting of which would have required a levy of $1.107 for school purposes alone.

Although these demands for new school buildings were disallowed, and other items of the budget were disallowed or materially reduced, more than half of the levy of $1.50, is for schools and will produce $262,464.

Other items of the levy enactments to be produced are: County roads, .10, $33,765; county jail, .0162, $5,500; lateral road bonds, .0355, $12,000; bridges destroyed in floods of 1923, .0296, $10,000; Circuit Court, .0177, $6,000; election expenses, .0355, $12,000; county treasurer, .0053, $1,800; county commissioners, .0094, $3,200; tax collector, .0053, $1,800; State's attorney's office, .0088, $3,000; county agent, .0071, $2,400; incorporated towns, .0296, $10,000.

Care For Insane.

For the care of insane, .0296, $10,000; contingencies, .0207, $7,000; notes in banks, .2221, $75,000; erroneous, .0088, $3,000; county home, .0251, $8,500; bridges under contract, .0355, $12,000; volunteer fire companies, .0236, $8,000; and .0485, to raise the sum of $16,000 for the following: Annual pensions, $1,800; court house, $2,000; vital statistics, $1,000; justices of the peace, $1,200; public printing, $600; supervisor of assessments, 1,500; court stenographer, $1,800; Orphans' Court, $2,000; reform schools, boys' and girls', $1,500; local assessors, $1,500; county board of health, $1,000; counsel to commissioners, $500.

The assessable basis upon which the levy is made is $33,155,500, and on this basis the levy of $1.50, will produce for county expenses the total sum of $503,829.

WHERE COMPANY "H" GOES TO CAMP THIS SUMMER

Having been to Virginia Beach last week, will tell what the members of Company "H" have coming to them on their Summer Encampment, for 15 days.

The Company will leave Westminster by special train for Baltimore, and from Baltimore by the Old Bay Line Steamer, State of Maryland, for Norfolk, Va. The boat leaves Baltimore August 1st., at 6:30 P. M. and arrives at Norfolk Va., at 7 A. M. August 2nd., they will then march to Union Station a distance of ½ mile, and go to camp by trolley a distance of 18 miles.

The camp will be about one mile from the famous resort of Virginia Beach, and about 900 yards from the ocean, the trolley runs within 200 yards of camp, so there is not much hiking coming to us.

Virginia Beach has all the amusements of an up to date summer resort, and is right on the ocean front with plenty of sea breeze.

There is a fresh water lake within 200 yards of camp where there is good fishing and the small inlets and bays afford plenty of sport crabbing, we expect to have fish or crabs on our menu at least once a day.

The mornings will be spent at drill and target practice, and the afternoons at athletics, such as base ball, volley ball, and swimming etc. All members will take all fishing and crabbing tackle, bathing suits and athletic equipment.

The State is going to quite an expense to give us this trip, which will be the finest ever taken in the history of Company "H".

We still have vacancy for a few good men, if you are interested apply at the armory.

AN INTERESTING LETTER FROM H. F. CAYLOR, OF DENVER

Denver, Col. 6-24-24.

Mr. Joseph D. Brooks,
Westminster, Md.

My dear Sir: I have in my possession a book formerly the property of the late Samuel Weaver, of New Windsor, Md., who, I think, was the grandfather of Isaac Weaver, who lived in your town 35 or more years ago. We find in the book under date of February 8th 1810, Samuel Weaver, Roxborough Township, Philadelphia county.

Mr. Weaver was a woodworker, making wheat fans and wheelbarrows, as drawings of the same show; also the names of the parties for whom he made fans. No. 19 was made for A. Seniser in 1815; No. 24 for John Ecker 1816; No. 26 for Dennis Sollers in 1817. This evidently was the first after he had them patented. The last one, No. 125, was made for Josiah Swigart, 1847.

Mr. Weaver was also a musician, as we find some notes with words Tenor-Windsor, C. M.

A notation on the last leaf is: "January 28, 1815, being on Sunday, there fell a pretty great snow and the following week was extremely cold."

If I am not mistaken Mr. Isaac Weaver had a brother John and a sister Jessie. If you know where they live, and if they want the book, I will gladly send it to them, or either of them. The book is handmade but in good condition.

Weather the past week extremely hot, but to-day quite cool. Am selling coffee. Trade is fair. Trust you are well.

Respectfully,
H. F. Caylor.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Wash., D. C., July 2.—All Washington is watching the Democratic national convention this week, watching with keen interest and with mixed sentiments. Broadly speaking probably the great majority of watchers in the national capital—and "watching" is made easy these days by the remarkable performance of the radio—are gratified with the indications that Wm. G. McAdoo is steadily losing ground and that he has no chance of being nominated. Those who know McAdoo best, who had an opportunity to observe his conduct in the Treasury Department at close range, are convinced it would be an unparalleled calamity to the Republic should he by any chance become President—and this view is entertained by those who know, regardless of their party affiliations. They know McAdoo to be a thoroughly unfit man. Many Democrats are gratified over the indications of his defeat because they realize that once his record were exposed to the pitiless publicity incidental to a national campaign he would be almost impossible of election. A few Republicans regret his waning power because they are firmly convinced he would be more easily beaten in November than any other man the Democrats could name. Generally speaking, however, his prospective elimination is an occasion of rejoicing to Democrats and Republicans alike.

The conviction is growing here that this year's Democratic convention will be in large degree a duplication of the Republican convention of four years ago, that McAdoo and Smith, the leading candidates at the start, will engender so much bitterness among the opposing factions—have already done so, in fact—that neither can be nominated and that ultimately a little group of leaders will get together in some hotel bedroom and decide to "try out" the dark horse candidate who seems to have the best chance of gaining the necessary two-thirds vote; and the man who can do this will be he who has made the fewest enemies. It is noted here by keen Republican observers that Hon. Tom Taggart, manager of the boomlet of Senator Ralston of Indiana, is playing the same sort of politics that Hon. Harry Daugherty played before and at the Republican convention four years ago, that while smilingly and confidently predicting the nomination of his candidate he is refraining from all aggressive action, is offending no one, has a kind word for everyone. Four years ago, at the conference which led to the "try-out" of Warren G. Harding, practicallly every participant in the little conference remarked of Senator Harding, "Well, he's a real nice fellow and neither he nor his campaign manager has made a single enemy." And now it is remarked that when the time comes to pick a Democratic dark horse, the same statement can be made with equal truth regarding Samuel M. Ralston—wherefore, many here believe that Tom Taggart is still a pretty good imitator.

President Coolidge has decided that the United States shall be represented at the allied conference called for July 16, to arrange the methods whereby the Dawes plan for the settlement of the German debt and the allied claims shall be put into operation. Aside from the fact that this is essentially an American plan, devised by the man who is now candidate for Vice-President on the Republican ticket, the United States has a direct interest in its outcome and, therefore, in the coming conference. While this country has generously refrained from asking anything from Germany in the way of reparations, it is entitled—under the terms of the armistice, not the treaty—to reimbursement for the cost of occupation of Germany pending the negotiation and signing of the treaty. Germany owes the United States $250,000,000, the cost of the Rhineland occupation. That is a lien which must be protected at the coming conference. Consequently, disregarding unreasoning partisan criticism, charging on the one hand too much interference in European affairs and on the other too little, the President has designated Ambassador Kellogg to represent this country and has chosen Col. James A. Logan as assistant to the Ambassador, selections which will contribute to the success of the conference and insure the protection of American interests.

Mr. John D. Belt of W. Main street, this city, is ill with pneumonia.

DEMOCRATIC YEGGMEN CAN'T CRACK THIS BANKER'S RECORD

Washington, July 2.—(Special correspondence)—Democratic politicians were dumfounded to discover that the Republicans nominated for the Vice-Presidency a prominent banker against whom they can not aim their criticisms on the ground of his occupation. Mr. Dawes's record as a banker is one of the strongest elements in his favor. Democratic campaigners will probably keep silent on that subject.

Mr. Dawes first came to public attention in 1898, when he was appointed Comptroller of the Currency. The primary duty of the Comptroller of the Currency is to look after the banking system of the country—that is, the national banks. He is expected to see that the banks are conducted in accordance with law and good banking practice. Mr. Dawes took the view that since regulation of banking is primarily for the protection of depositors, who are not in a position to protect themselves, his first duty should be to guard the interests of depositors.

When he came to the head of the banking system there were 121 banks in the hands of receivers. Each of these banks had a separate receiver with the usual lawyers drawings large fees, accountants, stenographers, clerks, etc. As is usual in receivership cases, expenses were high. In pursuance of his purpose of protecting the interests of depositors Mr. Dawes set about the task of reducing the expenses of the receiverships. As a result of his efforts $100,000 was saved during the first ten months he was in office.

A number of these receiverships had passed through the active stage and the receivers had become practically mere custodians of funds awaiting distribution. Nevertheless, their fees and their operating expenses were still being charged against the banks over whose business they had charge. This expense was out of all proportion to the service the receivers were rendering. Mr. Dawes devised a plan for the appointment of one receiver at Washington to take charge of all of these inactive receiverships, thus terminating the receivership fees and dispensing with a large number of unnecessary employes who had little work to do but whose compensation was charged against the funds to which the depositors looked for their reimbursement. The plan which Mr. Dawes devised has ever since been followed and the good work in the interest of depositors will still be credited to him even though continued after he ceased to be Comptroller of the Currency.

Mr. Dawes as Comptroller declared that stockholders in national banks are liable to depositors to the extent of 100 per cent par value of their holdings of stock. Bankers did not share this view and took the question to the courts with the result that the Dawes view was sustained. As a result of this position on the part of the Comptroller the depositors in many a bank received one hundred cents on the dollar in the liquidation of the bank's affairs, whereas they would otherwise have lost considerable sums. In addition to saving money for depositors during his administration, Mr. Dawes made a number of recommendations for improvements in the banking law, which recommendations were adopted either during his administration or later, thus showing not only his ability as a banker but his high sense of official duty.

Democratic campaigners will not get far by attacking a record such as this.
