BROKEN DOWN IN HEALTH

Woman Tells How $5 Worth of Pinkham's Compound Made Her Well.

Lima, Ohio.—"I was all broken down in health from a displacement. One of my lady friends came to see me and she advised me to commence taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I began taking your remedies and took $5.00 worth and in two months was a well woman after three doctors said I never would stand up straight again. I was a midwife for seven years and I recommended the Vegetable Compound to every woman to take before birth and afterwards, and they all got along so nicely that it surely is a godsend to suffering women. If women wish to write to me I will be delighted to answer them."—Mrs. JENNIE MOYER, 342 E. North St., Lima, Ohio.

Women who suffer from displacements, weakness, irregularities, nervousness, backache, or bearing-down pains, need the tonic properties of the roots and herbs contained in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

INCREASING POTATO PROFITS

MORE POTATOES TO BE PLANTED.

In view of the present extraordinary prices for potatoes, fields will probably be planted to this crop this year where they were never grown before.

Intensive methods make it possible to grow crops yielding from 250 to 400 bushels per acre and to decrease the cost of raising each bushel. The big expense in potato-growing comes in the preparation of the land and the attention given the crop throughout the season. But it costs no more to prepare ground, cultivate, and spray a 300-bushel crop than it does a 150-bushel crop. Harvesting will cost more, but the big overhead expenses are practically the same. Obviously the thing to do is to insure larger yields by supplying an abundance of available plant food that will give the crop a good start and force it to early maturity.

Preparing for Potatoes.

It is best to avoid planting potatoes on soil to which large quantities of stable manure, lime or ashes have been recently applied. Stable manure and ashes supply plantfood constituents which are used by the potato but both manure and lime produce a condition in the soil which favors the growth of potato scab. When lime and manure are to be used on ground planned for potatoes later, manage the rotation in such a way that this treatment will follow rather than precede the potato crop. The seed bed should be worked down mellow by continued disking and harrowing. If the ground is too compact, the growing tubers find difficulty in pushing out into the soil, and as a consequence will be pressed out of shape.

Organic Matter Needed.

The plantfood of the potato is most profitably supplied by turning under green manures, supplemented by fertilizers. The potato takes up a fairly large amount of nitrogen, a moderate amount of phosphoric acid and a large supply of potash; hence, a fertilizer supplying 3 to 5 per cent ammonia, 6 to 8 per cent phosphoric acid and 5 to 8 per cent potash is about right for loam soils. On sandy soils use more ammonia, on clay use more phosphoric acid and less potash, and on muck use 1 per cent of ammonia, 10 to 12 per cent phosphoric acid, and 8 to 10 per cent potash when the latter can be obtained.

How to Apply Fertilizer.

At least one-half of the ammonia of the complete fertilizer used should be in quickly available form in order to give the young potatoes an early, vigorous start. The other half should be in more slowly available form so as to furnish a continuous supply as it is needed by the growing crop. The phosphoric acid should be readily available so that, when the time comes for the setting and filling of the potatoes, there may be as large a number of potatoes as possible, and the potatoes may ripen uniformly. In applying the fertilizer, it has been found that quantities varying from 800 to 1,800 pounds per acre have given excellent results. In Maine, where about 25,000,000 bushels are produced annually, the application of fertilizer on the good soil of that state varies from 1,000 to 2,400 pounds per acre.

Fertilizers Increase Yield and Quality.

Apply fertilizer in the row up to the capacity of the fertilizer attachment of the planter. Any amount in excess of this should be drilled in with a wheat drill before planting, or applied with a lime and fertilizer distributor and well mixed with the soil. This distributes the plantfood throughout the soil where the tiny potato roots may find it early in their growth. The tubers form on separate roots which cluster under the plant, while the feeding roots stretch off into the soil in search of available plantfood. Contrary to common belief, the general distribution of fertilizer between the rows of potatoes does not tend to spread the growing tubers, but tends to provide a better distribution of food for the growing plants.

Regardless of how much time and care is given to planting and cultivation, big profitable crops cannot be grown unless there is present a sufficient supply of quickly available plantfood.

HENRY G. BELL.

250 YEARS OF PROFITABLE GRASS

In England there is a park at the famous Rothamsted experiment station, which has been used as a meadow for more than two and one-half centuries, which was used as a hay field at the time of the Revolution, and which was in sod when America was being colonized. This park has been top dressed annually for the last sixty years. At the beginning of this period it was producing about 1¼ tons of hay per acre. Where fertilizers have been used, the average acre yield for 50 years has been in one case 2.7 tons, in another 3.3 tons, and in a third case 4.1 tons, depending upon the amount of top dressing applied. This is really a wonderful accomplishment, and should make those farmers who are content with "mining" instead of farming, with robbing the soil and year after year getting smaller and smaller crops, feel that possibly they are using to the fullest, the opportunities given them.

Top-Dressing Tobacco, Between the Rows. Where Large Quantities of Fertilizer Are Used on a Crop It Is Much Better to Put Part on at the Time of Planting and Then to Distribute the Remainder as a Top-Dressing Later On.

Why This Is Baltimore's Best Store...

¶ "Baltimore's Best Store" is not a title which we arbitrarily adopted. It was conferred upon us years ago by the shopping public.

¶ From the beginning of this store, nearly twenty years ago, we have striven to do these things:

To serve as well as to sell;

To give the store a homelike and hospitable atmosphere;

To make courtesy, liberality and friendliness everyday virtues among our people;

To sell dependable merchandise at fair prices, permitting no misrepresentation of quality or value, either in the public prints or behind our counters;

To make good, cheerfully and willingly, any shortcomings in any article we sell.

¶ It is these principles that have been woven into the success of Baltimore's Best Store. And we are not even content with the store as it is, but are ever trying to make it still better.

¶ Whenever you visit Baltimore, make this store your shopping headquarters. Whether you purchase or not, you will find the same cordial welcome.
