of Baltimore County.

Election—Tuesday, November 3rd, 1908.

Robert Garrett For Congress.

The convention of the Republicans of the Second Congressional District of Maryland, which met at Towson on Wednesday, nominated Robert Garrett, of Baltimore county, for the third time, as the party's candidate for the House of Representatives against Hon. Fred. J. C. Talbott. The district is known to be nominally Democratic by a large majority and in the first contest, four years ago, Mr. Garrett was badly beaten, notwithstanding the candidacy of Roosevelt for the Presidency at the time militated in his favor. Two years ago, without this influence, he largely reduced the majority against him in the first contest. He had then become better known to the people and his splendid character more fully appreciated. It is no exaggeration to say that the greater knowledge the public may acquire of Mr. Garrett the higher he will stand in its estimation. His public, as well as his private, life is without a stain.

Possessed of large wealth many a beneficent enterprise has received substantial aid at his hands, not ostentatiously but in a quiet way and without seeking the laudation of his fellow-men.

In politics Mr. Garrett has been utterly free from all corrupt methods and his course in both his previous campaigns is an indication that he was not nominated the third time in the expectation that he would provide a corruption fund to influence the election. He is willing to meet all legitimate expenses of his candidacy, but will contribute nothing to debauch the ballot. In fact he is a candidate largely, and probably only, for the reason that he abhors uncleanness politically and is fighting the notoriously evil methods of his opponent.

For the rest it need only be said that he is thoroughly competent to ably represent the district. He is highly educated and familiar with public affairs, and is also a capable business man. Contrasted with such a citizen as his opponent there should be no doubt of his triumphant election.

A BAD BREAK.

The SENTINEL made a bad break last week, and knows no other way to make the amende honorable than by this frank acknowledgement and apology. A newspaper can make no blunder so inexcusable as the publication of matter of any character without due credit to the source from which it is taken, and when an article is reproduced from another publication by the courtesy of its editors, failure to make due and proper acknowledgment is absolutely without excuse.

On July 26th, the Baltimore Sun published an interesting communication from York, Pa., on the proposed Lincoln Boulevard from Washington to Gettysburg. On the 27th, the junior editor of the SENTINEL called at The Sun office, and secured from the City Editor of that paper the cut of the map of the proposed route for the memorial avenue. The article with the map was republished in the SENTINEL of last week. In some unaccountable way the credit line was omitted in the make up of the forms, and the mistake was not discovered until most of the issue had come from the press. A personal letter of regret and apology was mailed to The Sun immediately, and this public acknowledgment is now made in justice to ourselves, our readers and The Sun.

GREAT FEATURES!!

The series of mystery stories now being published by "The Philadelphia Press" are surely the most interesting, thrilling and fascinating stories that have ever been published by any newspaper. The stories are filled with thrilling experiences, baffling plots and tragic endings, which keep the reader deeply interested from beginning to end.

"The Philadelphia Press" also publishes the recognized sporting page and is the known authority among baseball fans. It is thoroughly accurate, reliable and is full of ginger and is written by men who know. "The Press" devotes more space to interesting sporting news than any other Philadelphia newspaper.
