The film presents the most significent events of the great Reformer's life with such dramatic effectiveness, that it is bound to prove highly interesting and entertaining as well as a much needed stimulus to the application of the very timely lessons of Martin Luther's life in our own day." Another writes: "Dramatically and artistically the scenes are given in a splendid manner, preeminently the scene at the Diet of Worms."

W. C. T. U. MEETING

Thursday evening, September 24th in the community room, the members of the W. C. T. U. met for their first fall meeting. The opening number was singing "America The Beautiful," followed by a devotional service conducted by Mrs. Forelines. One of the many good things urged in the devotional was not to be too exacting toward our children and young people, but be companions to them; get their confidence, prove to them our interest in them, and help them with their problems in life. She urged the women to be on the lookout for immoral literature for magazines with suggestive pictures that are being passed to girls and boys of school age, and to guard against the indifference of voting women. In many instances law violation and disregard for the Sabbath Day can be justly laid at our own doors because of indifference. The Bible lesson was from the book of Samuel.

Mrs. John D. Bowers gave the secretary's report. Mrs. Martha Shaw the treasurer's; Mrs. Frank Myers, child welfare; Mrs. Johnson, Loyal Legion; Mrs. Wailes, the work at Taneytown Fair. The county convention and the past year's work was generally discussed. Seven new names were added to the membership roll.

A certificate for life membership was presented to Mrs. Shipley by Mrs. Martha Shaw, representing the Union. The next meeting will be in charge of Mrs. Howard Koontz. The subject will be "Health," and will be held the 4th Thursday in October. Mrs. Clara Billingslea and Mrs. Forelines represented the Union at the State Convention in Baltimore, Thursday and Friday of this week.

During a short social period, delicious white grapes were enjoyed.
