TIKE most children. Evelyn and Jack are fond of drawing pictures and coloring them with water colors or crayons. One evening before the youngsters were ready for their bedtime story daddy watched them drawing the pictures, and it made him think of a little boy who many years ago was also fond of drawing and who became later in life a great artist. So when the children asked for their story he told them about the boy. "This little lad was an American who died almost a hundred years ago," "Yes, durn my buttons if I don't began daddy.
