A GRANGE SOCIAL

For th Sentinel.

Despite the inclemency of the weather Thursday evening last, a goodly number of people, little and big, young and old, assembled at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel B. Schaeffer on the Manchester road to hold a Grange social. The evening was spent mostly in singing Grange songs, with Mrs. Nellie Sharrer and Misses Myrle E. Leister and Orpha Albaugh at the organ, much to the delight of those unaccustomed to hearing Grange music. Little Jeremiah very cutely delivered an address of welcome, which was responded to by Mr. George A. Leister, Past master of Snydersburg Grange. Miss Ruth Schaeffer gave some fine selections of instrumental music.

At the proper time all were invited to the diningroom where a table laden with the viands sentable for an occasion of that kind awaited them, to which ample justice was done.

After exchanging a few "yarns" with visiting neighbors, all repaired to their homes feeling well repaid with the evening thus spent.

TAFT SCORES THIRD PARTY

It Does Not Stand For Any Principle---Crazy Quilt Platform---Vigorous Plea For Sustaining the Republican Platform

The President Says the Third Term Party has Been Formed Merely to Gratify Personal Ambition and Vengeance, and Its Platform Has Been Crowded With Every New Fad and Theory Designed to Tempt the Supporters of Proposed Reforms—A Great Danger to the Republic.

Beverly, Mass., Sept. 28.—President Taft made a direct plea today to Republicans to vote the Republican ticket and not desert the party at the polls in November in order to defeat the third party and Mr. Roosevelt. It was the first prepared political address he has made since has speech accepting the Chicago nomination. It was delivered from a temporary stand erected on the grounds at Parrematta before the Republican clubs of Essex county and hundreds of residents of Beverly.

The speaker devoted particular attention to the third party for the first time since its formation. He mentioned Mr. Roosevelt and Governor Wilson several times by name in connection subjects.

"There is one issue in this campaign of even greater fundamental and permanent importance to the government and the people than the tariff and prosperity," said the President beginning his attack upon the third party. "That is the preservation of the institutions of civil liberty as they were handed down to us by our forefathers in the Constitution of the United States and the state constitutions, which were modeled after it.

Party Without Principle

A third party has split off from the Republican party, not for any one principle, or indeed on any principle, or indeed on any principle at all, but merely to gratify personal ambition and vengeance, and in the gratification of that personal ambition and vengeance every new fad and theory, some of them good, some of them utterly preposterous and impracticable some of them as socialistic as anything that has been proposed in the countries of Europe, many having no relation to national jurisdiction or policy, have been crowded into a platform in order to tempt the votes of enthusiastic supporters of each of these proposed reforms.

This new party is not united on any cohesive principle, and is only kept together by the remarkable personality of its leader. Were he to die the party would go to pieces for "the cause" of which so many gliby speak, is utterly incapable of definition in view of the crazy-quilt character of the platform. But there is running through the entire declared policy of the third party an entire willingness to destroy every limitation of constitutional representative government in order that by short cuts these various reforms, inconsistent as they may be, and many of them are, with each other, may be accomplish by the decree of a benevolent despotism, to be supported by the acclaim of hero-worshipping, emotional, undiscriminating, superficiallyminded and nonthinking people.

Its Only Danger

"Fortunately there is not the slightest chance of the success of the third party. Its chief purpose is to defeat the Republican party, and even in that there is now every possibility that it will be disappointed. It has been suggested that Republicans should vote the Democratic ticket in order to defeat Mr. Roosevelt. Men who do this will act most blindly, for their votes, though unnecessary to defeat Mr. Roosevelt, will aid the cause of the Democracy with whom they have no sympathy especially in the policy of tariff for revenue only, which will bring a disturbance of business and an end of prosperity.

"There is no need of our being put upon the defensive. The flood of unjust denunciations to which the Republican party has been subjected has no real foundation or justification. It is we who should be in the forefront affirming our right to continue to represent the people in authority in government because of what we have done, and because of the assurance by what we have done, of what we shall continue to do in the future.

Republican Prosperity.

The burden of much of the President's speech was prosperity. He began by pointing out how the nation's mills and factories are humming with business, declared that protection and Republican rule are responsible for this, and asked his hearers if they remembered the days of 1893 and 1897, when, he said, interference with the country's economic policy brought on hard times. Passing on to the tariff, he said:

"A change in our tariff is not necessary destructive. It depends upon the principles upon which the change is carried out. But in this campaign we are met on the platform of our adversaries, the Democrats, by the proposition that the protective tariff is unconstitutional and we may therefore assume that, in the opinion of the Democratic party, no tariff which does protect, or which is drawn to protect, ought to remain on the statute books. Now, if this declaration of the platform means anything, we must accept it as indicating an intention radically to change our economic policy, and that makes certain the disturbance of business, the frightening of capital, the closing of factories and the coming of hard times.

Wilson Silent

"Now the distinguished leader of the Democratic party, Governor Wilson, has not dwelt with any tremendous emphasis upon the provision of the Democratic platform that declares a protective tariff unconstitutional, and he has hastened to assure the business community that if the change comes and if the tariff is to be reduced, it must be done in such a way as not to interfere with business.

"We cannot assume that the leader of the Democratic party is to depart from the course of the majority in Congress. Indeed, the legislation of Congress, so far as it was Democratic and as far as it got until it was either defeated in the Senate or met with a veto by the Executive, seemed to have Mr. Wilson's full approval, and we are, therefore, able to gauge what he regards as legislation that will make the transition, yet not hurt business by reference to the tariff bills of the late Congress.

"The suggestion that come at times from Governor Wilson that this change is to be made in a tender, conciliating and mollifying way, with reasonableness in respect to it, is of that euphemistic character that pleases the ear but does not satisfy reason.

"I ask the business interests of this country, I ask the wage-earners, whether when they receive the news the day after the election that there is to be absolutely Democratic control of the financial and economic problems of this country after the 4th of March, whether even mere doubts as to what the Democratic party would do with this power in respect to the tariff, would not halt and paralyze business?

"I ask then whether when the time comes, and we might reasonably except the change yhich is to take away the protection from our protected industries and so injure or destroy them, we would not see the propriety which is now making everyone happy fade away, and if we would not be met with those dreadful symptoms of panic and hard times with which fortunately only the elder of the present generation are familiar."

MD. SUFFRAGE NEWS

On The Problem Of Women's Dress.

We are not addicted to a love of the present-day extreme forms of fashion. In fact, we distinctly disapprove and dislike them. But, nevertheless, we get a sense of amusement out of the reasons advanced against them by men. Here are some of them:

Rev. Father O. N. Jackson, Atlanta, Ga.: "Some dresses of the latest fashion bring ideas of lax morals to the young men who view them."

Former F. W. Glenn of North Carolina attributes the spread of impurity and immorality to the present style of low neck and short shirt dresses.

Rev. F. W. Fraser, Massilon, O.: "There never was a time when it was so difficult to distinguish the good women from the other kind by taking notes of what they wear. Highly respected women are actually being accosted by strange men who, misled by their immodest fashionable attire, take them for other than they really are. Christian women must desist from wearing in public costumes which provoke men into infractions of the Seventh Commandment."

Each one of these well-intentioned men has no thought of blaming his fellow for breach of the moral law; he blames instead the women for tempting his fellow. Thus is the story of Eve perpetuated in the present day.

Since woman are raising the loudest objection to the present double standard of morals, it appears that the men are prepared to assure them that they after all are responsible.

Men show no shame of their sex and their management of communities when women are accosted on the street. Instead, they are ashamed of their women for being on the street and making the offense possible. Every woman on the street is fair game.

This is the prevailing attitude among men. But for priests and ministers to take it for granted that men are always seeking their sexual game and to attribute to women (and women's dress) the cause and the responsibility is too extreme to be anything but amusing.

Industries of Westminster

WILLIAM F. MYERS
Pork Packing, Cider, Apple Butter

Since the first article on the Industries of Westminster appeared in the Sentinel another industry has been added tto the town and we are very glad to welcome it. It is one which has grown steadily and is calculated to remain because the man behind it has reached his present solid financial condition through years of honest toil and careful attention to business.

Mr. William F. Myers, the subject of this short article, is the son of Lewis Myers and Mary Ann Miller his wife, the latter a daughter of the late John Q. Miller, of this city, and was born at Pleasant Valley, this county, February 12, 1854. Like many other Carroll county boys, his early life was spent upon his father's farm where he remained until 1879. Having then reached the age of twenty ...e years, young Myers decided to try ...s hand at huckstering, a business ...ich many of the men of substance ...this county followed in their young... days with great success. A few ...ys spent in gathering "the load" ...m farm house to farm house, a ...y hours spent at home preparing ... same for shipment to Baltimore ...d then the "trip" to the latter place ...ed his early life with plenty of ...rk and pleasure. In those days all ...cksters from this part of the county ...ove the road", and by their patron... helped to keep some of the road... taverns in commission. It was, ...vever, a mighty slow way of get... the "stuff" to Baltimore—and a ...hty disagreeable one too, during ...art of the year—and Mr. Myers, like ... the other hucksters, "took to rail...ding" his "stuff" to Fulton Station ...m whence he delivered it to his ...tomers.

...he hours spent in his wagon while ...oute for his "load" were not devoid ...results. To call at this house and ...n at that one took some time, many ... them being some distance apart, ...d it gave young Myers many mo...nts to spend in studying how he ...ld increase his business, and, if ... should fail at it, what other one ...ld he engage in which would pay ...n as well or perhaps better. The ...re he thought over the matter the ...ner he became convinved that, in as ...ch as many farmers were even ...n beginning to sell their milk to ... local creamery, a new industry ...n being introduced in the strictly ...al districts of the county, thereby ...riving the hucksters of the butter ...merly made by the farmers' wives, ...e business of huckstering would ...y soon be in the hands of a few ...n and that he had better seek other ...nues for the means of making a ...ing for himself and family.

...While disposing of his load in Balti...re Mr. Myers had often been ask... by some of his customers why he ... not bring them some "country" ...sage, hams, etc., and he became ...pressed with the idea that, perhaps, ...would pay him to buy a dressed hog ... two, cut them into sausage, hams, ...d etc., and take the same to Balti...re to some of his inquiring custom...s. Accordingly on November 8, ...96, he purchased three hogs, weigh... 340 pounds gross, for which he ...id 4 1|2 cents per pound, cut them ... into the different parts and that ...ek took the sausage etc, to Balti...re with his load of huckster goods. ...e venture was such a decided suc...ss that Mr. Myers made arrange...nts to repeat the thing. He kept ... during the winter of 1896 and 1897 ...d has been increasing and increas... the business year by year. The ...ckster route and business was dis...ed of and Mr. Myers has devoted ... last few years of his life to the ...cking of pork, cider making and ...le butter boiling.

...Pleasant Valley is a mighty nice, ...iet little village, situated on the ...d from Stonersville to Frizellburg, ... it was too far from railroad facili...s for Mr. Myers's business and he ...cluded to move his plant to West...nster where he could be in touch ...h modern ways of doing business. ... purchased the brick property at ...perty and Green streets and has ...w about completed the installation ...the machinery necessary to handle ...00 pounds of pork per week and ... barrels of cider making per day. ...e plant consists of a 125 horse ...wer steam boiler, 60 barrels per ...y cider press, 3 coils for apple but... boiling, 3 steam jackets, 100 pound ...am sausage stuffer, 300 pound Boss ...xer, No. 52 Enterprise grinder, and ...150 pound boiler steel lard mixer. ...e building is a two story brick and ...me one and affords Mr. Myers ...ple room for his business and a re...ence for his family. The products ... the establishment will be sold to ...timore and Westminster dealers ... the enterprise should receive en...ragement from our citizens. The ...k packing part of the business will ...in as soon as the weather becomes ...ler.

...At one time the intersection of Lib...y and Green streets was a very ...iet spot as the steam mill was the ...y industry in the immediate neigh...rhood, but with the building of the ...ontz creamery on one corner, the ...ers packing house on another and ...e W. E. Grumbine shirt factory a ...y feet away the character of the ...ce has been changed. It is a very ...lcome change to those who are ...rking to increase the number of ...dustries of the town. We are in...med that another industry will be ...tablished shortly in the rear of the ...ers packing house.

...Mr. Myers married a daughter of ... Absalom Bankard, of Pleasant ...ley, and they have eight children: ...Herbert Myers, of Pleasant Valley; ...roll E. and Oliver E. Myers, Mrs. ...eph H. Hahn, Nettie, Goldie and ...ie Myers of Westminster, and Mrs. ...val Hahn, of Baltimore.

Sermon Preached by Rev. W. H. Hetrick, Pastor of Grace Lntheran Church, This City

SEPTEMBER, 29th. 1912

(Published by request)

" HE BROUGHT HIM UNTO JESUS"

"He, that is Andrew, brought him, Simon Peter, his brother, unto Jesus. Philip findeth Nathanael."—John 1: 45.

The four persons mentioned in these texts were men. They were the first four deciples gathered into the master. It was the beginning of a men's movement which has been going on ever since. It was a movement for men and by men. Jesus found Andrew down in Judea and then Andrew went out and found his brother Simon. Jesus found Philip up in Gahlee and then Philip went out and found Nathanael. You see it was a work for men, and when these men were gathered, it became a work by them for other men.

My subject this morning is, "Religion is a man's job." And this is why I advertise that I would preach to men. I want to impress you men with the great fact that Jesus Christ looks to you to carry on His work saving men and that He has committed this task, and the responsibility for it, mainly in your hands. But instead of the men doing it these days—these days of great material interests, of big business, of intense activity along industrial and mechanical lines—instead of the men taking hold in an unselfish and masculine way, they have handed it over to the women and young people of our missionary and young people's societies.

Now I am not going to scold the men. Scolding never pays whether in the home or at the church. I did not summon you to this service to "rub it in" before the presence of the ladies. The truth of the matter is none of us are doing the Lord's will, engaged in His service, as we ought to be. We are playing at religion. We are all unprofitable servants, as the scriptures declare. But I am going to speak the truth as it is regarding the share of Christian work men are engaged in compared to the women, and the responsibility that rightfully rests upon the men, which they are shirking.

Now men like facts, not theories, and even now I know some of you are thinking that I am quite unfair and unjust in my idea on this matter of the share men are taking in the master's service. You will agree with me that Christ committed this work of winning souls unto His cause, and extending His kingdom over the earth, into the strong hands of men. Women assisted, but they did not head the work, nor assume the primary responsibility. One only needs to read the life of our Savior as partrayed in the gospels to see that His helpers and assistants and standbys were men. The twelve who were chosen as His companions, and the seventy who were sent out to do evangelistic work, were all men. But what is the fact to-day? Men, true, honest, courageous men are not afraid of facts. They like to look them straight in the face. They are accustomed to deal with facts and figures in their business, and they are in the habit of saying, "facts do not lie," figures speak the truth". Well then, what of the condition in the christian church in this country today as regards the interest and share of the work men are taking as compared to the women? There are 3,000,000 more women and girls in the churches of America than men and boys.

Now I ask you candidly, men, is there not something for us to do for Christ in Christian American? Have not the ladies done their share in this work of winning the world for Christ, which I emphatically declare is a man's job? And are not the women at this present time doing more church work along not only missionary lines but even in the work of inviting men to attend church and unite with the church, then the men are doing themselves? And let me ask in all seriousness are we going to expect the women to win these 3,000,000 of our own sex? Are they fitted by nature to do this work? Is this not our work?

I confess that I for one am ashamed of this condition. But I would have a thousand fold more reason to be ashamed if I would for a moment expect and demand of the women to go out and gather these men in. It isn't the place of women to do this. But that is precisely what we are forcing them to do by our indifference. This work must be done by someone and when we men will not, either because we think we have not the time, or which is more nearly correct because we have not the inclination, the women have stepped in and undertaken the task themselves.

If thte truth were known I really believe that most of the men who have been won to the church, or the great majority of them, have been influenced and urged by the woman rather than by the men. We are glad that they have been won, but it certainly is a matter of grave concern to know by whom they have been won, and it should cause us men to think, and think seriously. How many more could have been gotten had we done our part and assumed our share of the work?

Think of it only 20 per cent of the men of this country are in communicant relation with any church. Whose business is it to get these men into line? How long will it take us men to get them into line by the present method of keeping hands off and letting our churches be served by the women alone? As long as we men keep silent on church duties with our fellow men on the streets, in the stores and shops, in the cars, and wherever we meet them, how can we expect our
