AN EXCELLENT STOCK COMPANY AT THE OPERA. COMPARES FAVORABLY WITH OTHER POPULAR FAVORITES HERE. WILL REMAIN ANOTHER WEEK.

The management of the local Opera House and the theatre going public in particular, are to be congratulated on the engagement of the Mattice Stock Company and which opened an indefinite engagement at the Opera House last Monday evening in the well known play "The Girl from Out Yonder." Coming to this city as strangers they certainly won their way into the good graces of the audience by their excellent work and no doubt will make many friends during their engagement in this city. Miss Lois B. Hammond instantly jumped into popular favor and in the character of Flotsam made a most notable success. Miss Hammond is endowed with a combination of beauty grace of bearing and ability which makes her a shining star in even such a capable company as the Mattice Stock Company. Space will not permit reviewing each of the plays presented during the week but suffice it to say that the plays are all clean and wholesome—just the style of plays which appeal to lovers of good clean and wholesome amusement. The supporting company is especially clever and last, but not least, the scenery is a feature. Special scenery is carried for each and every play and it is safe to say that the Mattice Stock Company is one of the best equipped companies that play towns of this size.

On Saturday two performances will be given. A Matinee at two thirty o'clock at which time "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" will be the offering at popular prices of ten cents for children and twenty cents for adults and for the night performance their great big comedy drama "An American Girl" will hold the boards, Night prices of ten, twenty and thirty cents will prevail. For the first half of next week the folowing bills are underlined: Monday, a four act southern comedy drama, "The Princess of Patches"; Tuesday, the three act comedy, "Smith Smith and Smith"; Wednesday, the four act pastoral comedy, "When Women Love". The Mattice Stock Company is composed of eleven people, all ladies and gentlemen and are ready deserving of the patronage of people who can appreciate good clean amusement presented in a capable manner by a company of merit and ability seldom seen in our smaller cities. Reserved seats are on sale at The Opera box office during the day for each and every performance.

The fact that gasoline has gone up another five cents is no special reason why your Best Girl should suggest a nice long automobile ride.

GOING TO THE FRONT

Mr. William Buehler Seabrook, son of State's Attorney Seabrook, will sail on next Saturday, on the Liner L'Espagne, from New York, for France, where he will join the American Ambulance Hosuital Corps. A recent issue of the Atlanta Journal under the portrait of Mr. Seabrook, says:

"W. B. Seabrook, well-known advertising and publicity expert of Atlanta, has received an appointment for field service with the American Ambulance hospital in France, and will leave for the front about April 10th, to be gone until Fall.

"Mr. Seabrook will retain his partnership in the firm of Lewis—Seabrook Company, and the business will be conducted under the firm name by the senior partner, Fred Lewis, until Mr. Seabrook returns.

"In volunteering for service with the Allies Mr. Seabrook sought the American service, believing that in this capacity he will only see more of the war, but will be of no little help to the American Hospital force, as he is an accomplished French and Italian linguist and familiar with the topography of the country in a large portion of France. His appointment was granted on application for the position of ambulance driver. Whether he will be assigned to such a post or not he will not know definitely until he reaches Paris. He expects to be sent out of Paris somewhere along the allied front.

"Some years ago Mr. Seabrook traveling as correspondent for a number of American newspapers, took a walking tour through Europe, in the course of which he passed regions which are now scarred with trenches and are the battleground of hostile forces. He walked from Cherbourg to Paris, and from Paris to Marseilles. There he took a boat to Naples, walked through Italy, visiting Rome, Florence and Milan. He crossed the Alps into Switzerland through the St. Bernard Pass, returning via Paris and Havre. He is thus familiar with much of the territory which he may have to cross again in the service of the ambulance corps.

"This walking trip lasted about a year. Mr. Seabrook's account of his experiences, written in special articles for papers in Atlanta, Augusta and other cities were interesting features in the news of that day.

"He is a newspaper man of long and versatile experience. At one time he was city editor of the Augusta Chronicle, and on his return from Europe was a member of the local staff of the Journal for some years, leaving the paper to take a partnership with Mr. Lewis in their publicity firm.

"Mr. Seabrook is a member of the Atlanta Rotary Club, the Capital City Club, the Atlanta Athletic Association and several other local organizations. He will retain his membership in these and will be the only Atlanta Rotarian and possibly the only American Rotarian in the European war. Mr. seabrook goes to the front alone, but it is possible that Mrs. Seabrook will join her husband later in France, to engage in volunteer Red Cross work during the latter part of the summer.

Friends of Mr. Seabrook—and he has hundreds here—wish him the best of luck and a safe return.

The American Ambulance Hospital in France was endowed shortly after the beginning of the war by American millionaires and philanthropists. It has won brilliant commendation from both the French and American government. Out of the last twelve men who have been appointed in recent months as ambulance drivers there are graduates of Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Columbia and other American Universities, and among them are Rhodes graduates. Several of them have won the French military cross of the Legion of Honor. They are all men, actuated by the same spirit of humanity that has prompted Mr. Seabrook to seek the appointment. It is not a money making job for any of them. Like Mr. Seabrook, all pay their own traveling expenses to and from their homes in America, to Paris and return. While in the service, no one connected with the ambulance gets anything save his expenses, from scrub woman to chief surgeon. In a letter to his father, Mr. Seabrook says "I feel that the French are fighting not merely for themselves but for humanity and civilization. Ever since the war started I have felt that I would like to do my part, and I am going now to help as best I can." Mr. Seabrook further writes "Service in the American Ambulance is one of the few purposes for which the U. S. Bureau of Citizenship willingly grants a passport and I have mine, a regular war-time passport, giving me the right to go anywhere and return to my own country when I please.

Mr. Seabrook spent a few hours with his father and grandfather on Tuesday evening, en route to New New York.
