SATURDAY - - - MARCH 25, 1876

The Preacher and the King.

Samuel Davies, D. D., was one of the most eminent American divines of the last century, not more noted for his deep learning and eloquence than for his boldness of utterance. In 1853, being at that time President of the College of New Jersey, he was sent to England to solicit funds for the institution, which was then in its infancy, and located at Elizabethtown. A few years later it was removed to Princeton. Arrived in England Mr. Davies was welcomed by the foremost of the clergy, and invited to their pulpits.

King George the Second had a great desire to hear a preacher from what he was pleased to denominate "the Wilds of America." He accordingly attended the services announced to be conducted by the new-comer, and was so deeply impressed by the wondrous eloquence of the preacher, that he expressed his surprise in tones loud enough to attract general attention

"In faith, he's a wonderful man!" said his majesty. "He certainly beats my bishops!"

Davies heard the royal remark, and observing that the king was distracting the attention of the audience, he paused in his discourse, and looking his majesty full in the face, administered the following rebuke:

"When the lion roareth, let the beasts of the forest tremble; when the Lord speaketh, let the kings of the earth keep silence!"

The king immediately bowed his head, and shrunk back in his seat, and remained silent during the remainder of the services.

On the next day George sent for Mr. Davies, and, after conversing with him awhile, gave him fifty guineas for the College over which he presided. As the doctor left the audience chamber the monarch turned to his courtiers and said:

"He is an honest man, this American preacher—an honest man!"

Currran's Ingenuity.

A farmer attending a fair with a hundred pounds in his pocket, took the precaution of depositing the money in the hands of the proprietor of the public house at which he stopped. Having occasion for it shortly afterwards, he resorted to mine host for payment. But the landlord, to deep for the countryman, wondered what he meant, and was quite sure no such sum had ever been lodged in his hands by the astonished rustic. After ineffectual appeals to the recollection, and finally to the honor of Bardolph, the farmer applied to Curran for advice.

"Have patience, my friend," said the council; "speak to the landlord civily—tell him you have left your money with some other person. Take a friend with you, and lodge with him another hundred in the presence of your friend, and come to me."

He did so, and returned to his legal friend.

"And now I can't see how I am going to be any better off for this, if I get my second hundred back again. But how is that to be done?"

"Go and ask him for it when he is alone," said the counsel.

"Aye, sir, asking won't do, I am afraid, without my witness, at any rate."

"Never mind; take my advice," said his council; do as I bid you, and return to me."

The farmer returned with his hundred, glad to find that safely in his possession.

"Now, sir, I must be content, but I don't see that I am much better off."

"Well, then," said the counsel, "now take your friend along with you, and ask the landlord for the hundred pounds your friend saw you leave with him."

We need not add that the wily landlord found he had been taken off his guard, while our honest friend returned to thank his counsel exultingly with both hundred in his pocket.

A REBUKE FROM THE RIGHT QUARTER.—The New York Times administers a just rebuke to those members of its party in the Senate who arrayed themselves against Senator Gordon's resolution for radical reform in the system of partisan appointments in the internal revenue service on sectional and party grounds. It says that, whatever might have been his motives in introducing the resolution, republican Senators would have done their party some service by discussing the principles of the resolution simply on its merits.—"On this occasion," says the Times, "Senator Morton might have denied himself the sweet satisfaction of retorting in reply to the Georgia orator's reference to the whiskey frauds, 'You're another.' Due regard to the good name of the party, not to mention his own presidential aspirations, should have prevented him from using an argument like this against the proposal to enable excise officers to retain their places on good behavior:

"The civil service reform proposed by the Senator from Georgia was very sweeping. Why did he not bring in a bill to have it extend to all the departments of the government if the life tenure was such a good thing? In other words, why not come out in favor of a monarchy instead of a republic? There was where the whole proposition ended."

"If Senator Morton," says the Times, "imagines that the coming presidential campaign is to be fought out on so low a plane of principle and intelligence as that argument indicates, he is likely to find himself grievously mistaken." Such an admonition from one of the most influential of republican journals should warn Senator Morton that the "bloody shirt" can no longer take supremacy of all other questions, even in the minds of his own party. As the New York Nation, another able republican journal says, "the Southern 'outrages' were but a blind set up by thieves to throw the police off the scent, and the great enemies of free government in this country are to be found, not in Louisiana and Mississippi, but in Washington." The "police" are at last on the right track, and Senator Morton can no longer fool them off with his "red rag."

TRUE VALUE OF THE TWEED VERDICT.—The frauds committed by Tweed, for which judgement has been lately obtained in a New York court, were perpetrated about five years ago. It is about four years and a half since the first legal steps were taken to recover the money. The sum obtained by the judgement, is said to be approximately equal to the fraudulent proportion of the claims paid under the resolution of the board of audit. A jury whose collective character, business experience and social standing are spoken of without any parallel in the records of the courts of New York, has found that about thirty per cent. of the total amount of these claims represented work actually done or supplies furnished. For the remaining seventy per cent. amounting to about four millions and three-quarters, or, with accrued interest, to six millions and a half, judgement has been given against Tweed. The amount actually traced into his possession through the Broadway Bank accounts was but slightly over a million of dollars; but as the city has failed to recover from any of the other conspirators—with the exception of some four hundred thousand dollars recovered from Watson's estate—Tweed is responsible for the whole amount of the plunder which he was the chief agent in securing. The judgement will, however, still have to encounter a series of legal assaults, and even if it passes throught these successfully it is not thought that it can be satisfied in full, as it is believed that Tweed's property available for that purpose does not exceed a million and a half. At the time the frauds were committed he was supposed to have been worth seven millions of dollars, stolen directly or indirectly from the taxpayers. Still, as the New York Times says, it is something, even in this late day, to have dispelled the popular impression that a man need only steal on a large enough scale to evade the necessity of restitution. The moral gain of the judgement is of no small value. Of what avail have Tweed's ill-gotten gains been to him after all? He is either a wanderer on the face of the earth or shut up in some house in New York, with less power to emerge safely than he had when in jail. A brand of infamy is on his name. The great, monster thief of New York has been dealt with by his own political party without mercy. Let this example be imitated at Washington with public delinquents and plunderers and the national treasury will be safe once more, and the national character vindicated.—Sun.

MORTON AND PINCHBACK.—Senator Morton is said to exprsss the opinion that the prospects of the republican party in the South are somewhat blue, now that a republican Senate has deliberately gone back on a colored claimant of Pinchback's prominence and representative quality. He expects to see a colored land-slide to the democracy, and a solid democratic South in the electoral college. He is even quoted as expressing the opinion that in several of the Southern States there will be no electoral ticket in the field next fall, which the Springfield (Mass.) Republican suggests would be just punishment for the way the party has been run there. It is even led to exclaim:

"Dearest Pinchback thou has left us,
And our loss we deeply feel."

It is evident, however, from Morton's expressions that the merits or demerits of Pinchback's claim had nothing to do with his advocacy of that colored gentleman's admission to the Senate. The question of right was thrown aside, and only the success of party looked to.

THE St. Louis Republican says that Grant's friends are true as steal.

Remember This.

Now is the time of the year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, Coughs, Colds, and fatal results of predisposition to Consumption and other Throat and Lung Disease. BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP has been used in this neighborhood for the past two or three years without a single failure to cure. If you have not used this medicine yourself, go to your Druggist, Stam & Bro., and ask of its wonderful success among his customers. Two doses will relieve the worst case. If you have no faith in any medicine, just buy a Sample Bottle of Boschee's German Syrup for 10 cents, and try it. Regular size Bottle 75 cts. Don't neglect a cough to save 75 cents.
