This woman says Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved her life. Read her letter.

Mrs. T. C. Willadsen, of Manning, Iowa, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved my life, and I cannot express my gratitude to you in words. For years I suffered with the worst forms of female complaints, continually doctoring and spending lots of money for medicine without help. I wrote you for advice, followed it as directed, and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has restored me to perfect health. Had it not been for you I should have been in my grave to-day. I wish every suffering woman would try it."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

UNCERTAINTY OF POLITICS

The duplicity of Republican politicians and the uncertainty of Republican politics never had a more striking illustration than in the recent experience of Senator Joseph Benson Foraker, of Ohio. Three weeks ago Senator Foraker who for some time had been "off the reservation," because of his open opposition to the nomination of Mr. Taft for the Presidency, was welcomed back to the Republican camp amid great rejoicing of the faithful. Candidate Taft rushed out from his tepee to extend a cordial greeting to the returning prodigal and to assure him that there had never been any differences between them and that he would be, oh! so glad, to have his assistance in going out upon the war-path after the enemy.

At that time the word of Senator Foraker might have stood against the world of those who would say that there had ever been the slightest difference of policies, politics, or principles between himself and the Republican clearious standard bearer. Now, there is none so poor as to do him reverence. The President has virtually read him out of the Republican party, placed the brand of infamy upon him, and declared in terms which can not be misunderstood, that he shall not be permitted within the Republican fold to aid in the election of his personally selected and conducted candidate.

It was in Toledo no latter than September 2d that the grand reunion of Taft and Foraker took place. Casting hook, bait, line and sinker overboard, Taft came in from his Middle Bass fishing camp to meet and confer with the Ohio Senator, his erstwhile opponent there to demonstrate to the whole country that they were in complete harmony and working as both expressed it, "shoulder to shoulder," for the success of the Republican cause. The formal meeting took place with elaborate stage setting before a large concourse of people. As the two men clasped hands in greeting there was a wild cheer from the crowd. When the curtain was rung down on this tableau there was a conference between Taft and Foraker which, according to newspaper reports, "lasted for more than an hour." Then followed a still more striking exhibition of the effort to show that all was peace and harmony, and that there never had been the slightest trouble. Taft and Foraker repaired to the Lyceum Opera House where a reception was held, and, of course the opportunity for speech-making could not be overlooked. President Pulholland, of the Lincoln Club, under whose auspice the function was in progress, saw to that. Mr. Taft who sat beside Senator Foraker, was introduced and told what a pleasure it was for him to be there with Senator Foraker, "because," he said, "when Governor of Ohio, he gave me my first chance." Then he told what a further pleasure it was "to think in this presence that we are going to stand in the campaign shoulder to shoulder."

All the time while he was talking in this peaceful and happy manner, Mr. Taft knew that he had written a letter to a political friend in which he had refused to allow a recommendation for the Senator's return to the Senate to accompany an indorsement of his own candidacy for the Presidency by the Republicans of Ohio: all this time he knew the letter had said, "I don't care for the Presidency if it has to come by compromise with Senator Foraker," all the time he knew that Senator Foraker had never seen that letter and did not know of its existence, but that the President had been consulted regarding it and had a copy in his possession.

It then came to be Senator Foraker's turn to say some nice things and to show the love and friendship which had always existed between himself and the Presidential candidate. Here is what he said:

"There is not now, and as far as I know there never has been, the slightest ill-feeling of any kind between Mr. Taft and myself."

That would seem to clinch the matter and to allay all doubt and misgivings. Senator Foraker did not know of the letter to "My Dear Mr. ——." He concluded, "He (Taft) will be my leader until the polls close on the night of election."

Then came Senator Dick, Foraker's collegue in the Senate. He lauded Taft and Governor Harris and told why both should be elected. Then he added: "But I want to say that it would be a great loss to Ohio, to the country, and to the Senate, if Joseph B. Foraker is not returned." At this there was a rousing demonstration of approval in which Candidate Taft joined; and Senator Dick continued: "I see you are with me and we are for each and all, for the office which they represent and to which they aspire."

The country knew then that Taft and Foraker loved each other, oh! so dearly, but it did not know of the Taft letter refusing compromise with Foraker, refusing to permit a recommendation for his return to the Senate, a copy of which the President had in his desk ready to publish at the opportune moment.

Nor is this all the evidence obtainable of their friendship. When Mr. Taft went to Cincinnati a week later his personal representative, Mr. Vorys, called upon Senator Foraker and said that Mr. Taft "would like to see him." The meeting was arranged, and Taft and Foraker had "a half hour's conference." Following this conference Mr. Taft gave out the following statement: We discussed the general appearance of the campaign and Senator Foraker said he wanted to do everything he could to bring about Republican success, and that whenever I needed him I could call upon him. He expects to take an active part in the campaign under the direction of the National Committee."

But three weeks having elapsed have brought a great change. The President's statement has exposed Mr. Taft's duplicity toward Senator Foraker, and the latter will not "take an active part in the campaign under the direction of the National Committee."

A Lazy Liver

May be only a tired liver, or a starved liver. It would be a stupid as well as savage thing to beat a weary or starved man because he lagged in his work. So in treating the lagging, torpid liver it is a great mistake to lash it with strong drastic drugs. A torpid liver is but an indication of an ill-nourished, enfeebled body whose organs are weary with over work. Start with the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put them in working order and see how quickly your liver will become active. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvelous cures of "liver trouble" by its wonderful control of the organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the normal activity of the stomach, increases the secretions of the blood-making glands, cleanses the system from poisonous accumulations, and so relieves the liver of the burdens imposed upon it by the defection of other organs.

If you have bitter or bad taste in the morning, poor or variable appetite, coated tongue, foul breath, constipated or irregular bowels, feel weak, easily tired, despondent, frequent headaches, pain or distress in "small of back," gnawing or distressed feeling in stomach, perhaps nausea, "blues," sour "risings" in throat after eating, and kindred symptoms of weak stomach and torpid liver, no medicine will relieve you more promptly or cure you more permanently than Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Perhaps only a part of the above symptoms will be present at one time and yet point to torpid liver or biliousness and weak stomach. Avoid all hot bread and biscuits, griddle cakes and other indigestible food and take the "Golden Medical Discovery" regularly and stick to its use until you are vigorous and strong.

The "Discovery" is non-secret, non-alcoholic, is a glyceric extract of native medicinal roots with a full list of its ingredients printed on each bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. Its ingredients are endorsed and extolled by the most eminent medical writers of the age and are recommended to cure the diseases for which it is advised.

Don't accept a substitute of unknown composition for this non-secret MEDICINE OF KNOWN COMPOSITION.
