ATTORNEYS AT SEASIDE

Judge Pearce Reminiscent — Gives Biographical Sketches of Famous Lawyers And Jurists.

Cape May, N. J., July 1.—After the nerve-racking excitement of convention week in Baltimore the members of the Maryland State Bar Convention, most of whom are from that city, are enjoying the relief afforded by a sojourn at the seashore.

The lawyers came to attend the seventeenth annual meeting of the State association and the second to be held here. About 100 have arrived so far, and more are expected in time for the banquet Wednesday night, when the sessions close. Some of the visitors are accompanied by their wives, in whose honor a reception was held tonight and an outing will take place tomorrow afternoon.

At the first session this morning Judge James A. Pearce, of the Court of Appeals, the retiring president, made the principal address. He said:

"I was never skilled in the art of writing and public speaking, and during the last 15 years, except in the consultation room and the brief utterances most appropriate at nisi prius, I have heard the sound of my own voice so rarely that I confess to a feeling of genuine trepidation when I do hear it in public, and this has led me, instead of venturing upon a formal address—one really worthy of that name in scope and character—to offer you some personal recollections and some traditions of some of the eminent lawyers who have adorned the bar and bench of this State in the past, who have met 'the common fate of mortals—to die and be forgotten—the stern award from which talents and learning are ever striving in vain to escape.'"

Judge Pearce first took up Judge Ezekiel F. Chambers, reading a brief autobiographical sketch of him and supplementing it with some analytical observations of the noted jurist, quoting him also on the recall of judges and of decisions, a subject now prominent before the public. It was Judge Chambers who referred to the judgment of Pontius Pilate as an example of the recall of decisions.

Judge Pearce next took up Otho Scott, who was born in Harford county in 1795 and died in March, 1864, mentioning some of the cases in which this eminent attorney appeared. John W. Crisfield, of Kent county, was another Maryland lawyer included in the recollections of the speaker, as was Judge John M. Robinson, of the Maryland Court of Appeals.

Proposed changes recommended were: Providing that parties to an appeal or their counsel may agree in writing upon a transcript of the record to be transmitted to the Court of Appeals so as to prevent unnecessary expense in appeals, a Constitutional amendment for an additional judge of the Court of Appeals of Baltimore, and an act permitting the judge in chancery cases to refuse to permit a witness to answer questions which he shall deem clearly inadmissible in law.

THESE FOUR STAND OUT

Lea, Palmer, Johnson and Baker Win Names In Convention.

Four men, comparatively new in national politics, have been brought into prominence by the convention. They are Senator Luke Lea, of Tennessee; Representative A. Mitchell Palmer, of Stroudsburg, Pa.; Mayor Newton D. Baker, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Cone Johnson, of Texas.

If any one of the four was ever in a national convention before he is not remembered by the veterans who have been attending the Democratic national gatherings for 30 years.

Senator Lea is perhaps the best known. He is the youngest member of the United States Senate. His devotion to his wife, whose life he saved by the transfusion of blood, appealed to the chivalry of the world. He became prominent in Baltimore from the day of his arrival. He was at the head of what was known as the "steering committee," which tried to keep the convention in control of the so-called progressives.

Lea is a big, boyish-looking man, with a smile that is constant, and he is always where the fighting is the thickest. If there is a conference on the platform, he is there, and he can get more out of the men he opposes than many of the others.

Cone Johnson is a tall, loose jointed Texan, who made a speech the first day of the convention. No one knew him when, at a time the convention was in a turmoil he walked to the platform and began to speak. His sincerity attracted as much attention as his words, and he commanded the attention of an audience that was for action rather than oratory.

Who is Cone Johnson? That was the question asked by every one when his name became known. A native of Georgia, he went to Texas several years ago to practice law. From almost the first he has been opposed in politics by Senator Bailey, who is one of the Democratic leaders not present. Defeated once, Johnson led the fight again this year and with Governor Wilson as a fellow-candidate he won and came to convention with a delegation of 40 men, who are fighting for Wilson all the time. Incidentally, the victory retired Col. R. M. Johnson from the National Committee.

Representative Palmer won his right to be one of the factors in this convention by defeating Col. James M. Guffey, for many years leader of the Democratic party in Pennsylvania. In the primary contest he won 71 of the 76 delegates. Young and active, Palmer has been one of the floor leaders for the Wilson men and has attracted as much attention as any man in the convention.

Mayor Baker, the fourth man to win prominence in the convention, was a protege of the late Tom Johnson and was city attorney during that mayor's administration. Later Baker became mayor, and in the primary contest was against Governor Harmon and for Governor Wilson.

He made the principal speech against the enforcement of the unit rule in cases where the delegates had been instructed by district primaries.

Baker's earnestness won his case, and he has been mentioned as a Vice-Presidential possibility since that night.

Every convention brings new men to the forefront.

No Swollen Hands for Anty Drudge.

Mrs. Youngwife—"I'm in a peck of trouble. Some friends are coming to dinner to-night to celebrate Tom's birthday, and my hands are so swollen, I am sure they will be noticed."

Anty Drudge—"What caused your hands to swell like that?"

Mrs. Youngwife—"I had two big baskets full of clothes to boil today—baby does get his frocks so awfully dirty."

Anty Drudge—"If my hands were in the condition of yours, I'd be ashamed of them, too. Why I had four big baskets full, and my hands would do credit to a first class manicure. My dear, use Fels-Naptha soap, as directed on the wrapper, and you will never be worried with swollen hands."

If you hired a girl to do the washing, you wouldn't do it yourself while she sat in the parlor, would you? That would be ridiculous.

Then, when you get a cake of Fels-Naptha soap, use it the Fels-Naptha way and let it do the work. If you use Fels-Naptha as you would other soaps, you are like the woman who does the work herself while her hired girl plays the piano.

A woman who uses Fels-Naptha as if it were just soap, instead of a new way of washing, is misguided or foolish.

The directions on the wrapper are plain: Use Fels-Naptha in cold or lukewarm water, with no boiling and no hard rubbing. That's why Fels-Naptha was invented, to do away with boiling and hard rubbing, save fuel, save health, save time and save the clothes. Make Fels-Naptha do your work for you while you play the piano. Follow the directions on the red and green wrapper.
