KENT NEWS.

THE KENT NEWS

CHESTER TOWN, MD.

Saturday Morning, September 5, 1846.

V. B. PALMER,

South East corner of Baltimore and Calvert streets, Baltimore—No. 59 Pine street, Philadelphia—No. 160 Nassau street, (Tribune Buildings,) New York, and No. 16 State street, Boston, is our authorized AGENT for receiving advertisements for, and subscriptions to, the "KENT NEWS," and collecting and receipting for the same.

WHIG Meetings.

The Whigs of Kent County are requested to meet in their several Election Districts on SATURDAY, the fifth day of September next, at three o'clock P. M. for the purpose of nominating a candidate for the Legislature in each District, and appointing a Committee of seven from each District to meet in General Committee in Chester Town on Tuesday, the eighth day of September, at eleven o'clock, A. M. to nominate two candidates for the Levy Court, and to appoint a Committee of Arrangement of fifteen for the county.

The meeting in the Lower District will be held at Stone's Spring;

In the Middle, at the Court House;

In the Upper, at Dr. J. T. Dunbar's Hotel in George Town X Roads.

A general attendance and interchange of sentiment, at each meeting, is desired.

COMMITTEE.

Kent county, Aug. 29, 1846

☞Please read the most excellent poetic article on our first page. It is not often we treat our readers to such fine and appropriate verses.

Our Paper.

Having to lay in supplies of paper, ink and type, for the fall and winter seasons; having considerable sums due us from our subscribers and advertising friends, and being very much in want of funds, we earnestly solicit all who are indebted to call and pay us. The amount due from each is small, and perhaps on that account many think it unimportant that their small bills should be paid, as the postponement of them cannot materially affect the interest of the Printer!! But our friends should remember that the shower is made of drops—that our whole income is composed of very small bills, and the withholding of them frequently places us in uncomfortable situations. We have materials to furnish—office and house rent to pay—our family and an assistant to provide for—These duties require considerable out-lays in money—and if our patrons will only conclude to contribute in a small way, and with spirit, we shall soon be cheered up, and they will be consoled by the reflection of having "done unto others, as they would have others do unto them."

Whig Meetings.

The Whigs will remember that to-day they meet in their primary assemblies, to select candidates for the Legislature, and Committees for certain purposes connected with the interests of the party. Let no Whig absent himself, and commit into the hands of others, the performance of a duty he ought, himself, to discharge. By a full attendance, the selection of candidates are more likely to be satisfactory—there is a greater interchange of opinion, besides greater zeal and encouragement among friends.

Looking to the period not far distant, when a mighty struggle will be made to displace the present party in power in the General Government, it becomes highly important to preserve, unbroken, the ranks and spirit of the Whig party in Maryland.

A serious blow has been struck, we believe, by the party in power, at the labouring, and through it, to the agricultural interest of the country. The reduction of the Tariff, and the enactment of the Sub-Treasury, will, after they go into operation, materially injure those interests; and the operation of the Sub-Treasury, upon the financial concerns of the country, must necessarily prejudice commercial and business transactions, and thus spread its deleterious influence in wider paths.

A great, a gigantic effort must be made to repeal these measures, and cast their authors from power. To the Whigs, the country must look for rescue, and it becomes them to preserve their organizations and integrity, and to keep their armour burnished until the great day of battle shall arrive.

The Steam Boat Maryland

Arrived here in her regular trip, on Monday last, about two o'clock, an hour behind her regular time. The river was perfectly calm and not a "breath of air" seemed stirring. Notwithstanding, she run against Capt. Browne's packet, at the County wharf, and if the sloop's moorings had not been loosened, might have done her considerable injury. After a few minutes she left the wharf with a number of passengers, taken from Corsica and here. Upon backing out it was discovered that when the paddles revolved, the steam appeared to escape in large quantities from the machinery, and rise above the works: This seemed to be the case, at each attempt to revolve the wheels. She drifted down stream perhaps half a mile with the tide, letting off steam through the steam pipe.

Boats were sent to the steam boat and several passengers returned to this place.—At nearly three o'clock she moved down river with her paddles moving; it was thought slowly, from the loss of steam.—What the derangement to the machinery was, we are not, of course, informed. We have heard the supposition that the condensers became excessively heated, and the steam could not condense—and we have been informed from an authentic source, that when inquiry was made at the wharf relative to her running against the sloop Gen. Washington, the mate replied that they had no engineer on board, and that one of the hands was acting in that capacity!!

The lives of passengers are entirely at the mercy of Steam Boat Companies and their agents, and such occurrences require a full and particular explanation. It is due to the public, and to the safety of those who commit themselves into the hands of strangers. Steam is a powerful and destructive agent.—Not one in ten thousand understand the construction and operation of steam engines—the danger may be imminent, though hidden, and hence the excitement and alarm among passengers when they perceive any irregularity in the working of the machinery. It is natural that it should be so, and it is the imperative duty of the proprietors and managers of steam boats, to have the boat of sound materials and properly constructed—the machinery good, substantial, and in proper working order—the engineer skilful and diligent—and the captain and crew obliging, competent and at their posts, ready to discharge every appropriate duty. These things are due to the lives, the safety, and comfort of passengers, and to the community who are induced to trust themselves in the hands of comparative strangers. There is not one life in this community that is not worth ten times as much as any steam boat, when sold for ten times its value.

Capt. Taylor is an old, able and experienced captain, and we have heretofore felt safe in his hands, but this occurrence should be satisfactorily accounted for.

WHIG NOMINATIONS.

Agreeably to notice, the delegates from the several districts of this county met in Centreville on Tuesday the 25th inst. and organized by the appointment of Thos. Ashcom as Chairman and T. C. Browne as Secretary. After consultation, and the usual preliminaries being settled, Mathias George, Esq. was nominated as Candidate for Senator, and John B. Spencer, Esq. as candidate for Levy Court. It was thought advisable to defer the nomination of Delegates until the 8th of Sept. and a motion to that effect being offered, unanimously prevailed, and the convention adjourned to meet again on that day.

We were much pleased to notice the zeal manifested by our Whig brethren of the several districts, and the full delegations that were sent to participate in the nominations to be made. The day was unpropitious, but this it. no way dampened the interest of the occasion—and although the entire ticket was not completed, enough of it was formed to give promise of a strong and successful one. As it regards the nomination for Senator, we candidly acknowledge that our preference was elsewhere—that we had fixed our choice upon a friend nearer home—and that at the moment we were surprised as well as disappointed at the result.

"WHIG ORGANIZATION."

The Union says "the Whigs will not disarm or disband." No; indeed, they will not. Of that the Union may rest assured. They stand animis opibusque parati.—Their principles are immutable, and will last as long as the constitution of their country. Their task is to defend and to preserve. It matters not to them in whose hands the Executive power of the Government may be placed, their duty is still the same.—Alex. Gaz.

The body of a man drowned was found in the North River on Tuesday. In his pocket was found a receipt for a newspaper bill. The New York Tribune, therefore; properly announces his death as that of a "good man."

FURTHER INTELLIGENCE FROM MEXICO.

The New Orleans papears of the 25th ult., contain further interesting details of the news received by the British brig of war Daring, from Mexico. The Picayune says:—

"Upon the appearance of the Arab off Vera Cruz, Commodore Conner repaired on board the steamer Princeton, and an attempt was made to intercept the Arab; but the morning was calm and she slipped into port without hindrance with her valuable freight. Opinions differ as to the intentions of the Commodore towards Santa Ana, some believing that he had no desire to intercept him. On this subject we learn by letters received by the U. S. brig Perry, at Pensacola from Havanna, that before Santa Ana left Havanna, our consul, Colonel Campbell, had a conversation with him, to the following effect:

Col. C. inquired if the General was in favor of the war with the United States.—To which the General replied, "You know how it is; if the people of my country are for war, then I am with them; but I would prefer peace." Before leaving Havanna, he requested and received from Col. Campbell a letter of introduction to Commodore Conner. He also took with him a valuable box of cigars, intended as a present for the Commodore. Upon arriving off Vera Cruz, he took good care to waste no time in the presentation of his letter or cigars.

The letter announcing the above intelligence says that some adventurers from the United States, supported by the crew of a sloop of war, had taken possession of the port of Monterey, in California, and the writer adds: "God knows what will be the result of this movement, as well as the invasion made by the way of New Mexico." In conversing with Capt. Matson, we learn that the intelligence of the success of arms upon the Pacific was by no means new at Vera Cruz, it having been received many days before the Daring sailed for this port.

THE MILFORD BARD

Agreeably to previous announcement, this child of song and favorite of the muses, was to have pronounced a lecture on temperance in Wilmington, Del., on Saturday evening last. He had openly declared war against "King Alcohol," but, unfortunately, in preparing for battle, the King's forces got the better of the Bard, and so disabled him that he was compelled to retreat and take up quarters in the upper Wilmington market house, where, according to the Republic, he was found "snoozing" quietly on Sunday morning. The lecture, of course, had to be postponed. The next time, we hope the Bard may be more successfel—that he may nail his colors to the mast and fight like a brave general, until the King's forces are completely routed.

ITEMS.

TEMPERANCE LEGISLATION.

The Legislature of Maine have enacted a law forbidding the sale of intoxicating liquors at wholesale or retail, except for medicinal and mechanical purposes. Penalty for the first offence from $1 to $20, second offence $5 to $20, with a bond of $50 to abate the nuisance for six months, and forfeiting all money received for liquors thus sold.

ASYLUM FOR DISCHARGED CONVICTS.

Efforts are now making to establish in Massachusetts an Asylum for Discharged Convicts. All the clergymen of Springfield including Episcopalians, Orthodox, Unitarians, Methodists and Universalists have given to the plan their hearty concurrence.—Abbott Lawrence has offered to contribute $160 if a fund of $2,000 can be raised.

A new counterfeit has been issued in our city. Mr. F. M. Drexel describes it: $100 Mechanics' Bank, Philadelphia, having for avignette three female figures joining hands. Observe, the genuine have the head of Morris on the left and Penn on the right end, neither of which are on the counterfeit.—Attention to this will prevent imposition.—Philad. Amer.

A letter from Philadelphia, dated August 21, says:

A report has been current for some days pass that the Lewistown Bank had suspended payment. This is not the case, as I am credibly informed, the bank being engaged the whole of yesterday in paying out specie and redeeming its notes.

VERY WELL.

A friend extracts the following, and says they were originally written by a sailor on the blank leaf of his Bible:

"Whilst down the stream of life I sail,
Christ be my ship, and grace my gale,
Hope be my anchor, while I ride,
This book my compass, o'er the tide."

OFFICE SEEKING.—It is stated that there are at the present time no less than twenty-seven applicants for a certain consulship.—Out of this number there are seventeen members of the House of Representatives, and one Senator.

It is said that Mr Webster will make his speech, reviewing the course of the Administration on the Mexican war, at the public dinner to be given him in Philadelphia about the first of October.

DECLINED.

G. C. Morgan, Esq., a candidate for the Legislature in St. Mary's county, has declined a poll, in consequence of too many candidates being in the field.

We see it stated that C. R. Miller, who killed R. S. Snead, one of the volunteers, recently at Vicksburg, has been tried by a court martial, condemned and shot.—Tennessee Democrat.

Gov. Henderson, of Texas, is not dead. At the last accounts from the army he had recovered from his illness, and had resumed his military duties.

Mr. Reybold and his sons, of Delaware city, send to the New York market this year about one hundred thousand baskets of superior peaches.

LONGEVITY.—Mrs. Ann McCannon died at Paterson (N. J.) on Thursday last, in the hundred and sixth year of her age.

WHIG NOMINATION IN CAROLINE COUNTY.

For State Senate—Col. Z. W. Potter.
For House of Delegates—Geo. W. Harrington, Jos. Pearson, Robt. H. McKnett.
For Levy Court.—Thos. Straughan, Thos. I. Earickson, Giles Hicks, James Harris, Albert N. Davis.

NOMINATION.

The whigs of Philadelphia, included in the 3d congressional district, have nominated John M. Coleman, Esq., for Congress. In the 2d district, Hon. Joseph R. Ingersoll has been nominated for re election.

TALBOT COUNTY.

The Locofocos of Talbot have nominated the following gentlemen as their candidates for the next House of Delegates:—Benjamin M. Bowdle, Richard Arringdale, and Cornelius Sherwood, Esqrs.

CECIL COUNTY.

The democrats of this county have nominated the following ticket: For Senator—Hiram McCullough. For Delegates—Noble Pennington, Josiah F. Kirk, Gen. Henry S. Stites, and Andrew Orr.

WORCESTER COUNTY.

We notice that Dr. Chessed Purnell, a democrat, is a candidate for the State Senate in this county.

VILLAINOUS.

The stack yard of Mr. Wm. Slack, living in Delaware near Elkton, Md, was set on fire, and his whole crop of wheat destroyed.

DIED.

On Saturday morning, in Baltimore, of whooping cough, SAMUEL EMORY, aged 10 months, youngest son of Judge Hopper, of Queen Anne's county.

At the residence of her father, in Worton, on the 19th ult. AMANDA, daughter of James Beck, (of John,) aged 5 years, 6 months and 5 days.

"Suffer little children to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

At her father's residence, near Millington, on the 26th of August, ANNA M. E PEACOCK, aged 8 years, 3 months and 3 days In the demise of this truely lovely child we may well say that the female circle has lost one of its brightest ornaments. Had age matured her intellect, few could have equalled, and none surpassed, the beauties of her mind. The acquaintance of a day was not sufficient to penetrate the intrinsic merits of her virtues and mental qualifications; months and years tested her unsullied friendship. She delighted in nothing so much as to hear read and talked about her Saviour, and in her death sickness she would often say to her mother, that, if she should die her mother and father must meet her in Heaven. And I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me, "blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: yea saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labours and their works do follow them."

A FRIEND.

☞We extract the following from a lengthy obituary notice published in the Methodist Protestant, from the pen of the Rev.'d Dr. Francis Waters. Dr. Waters is a finished scholar and divine, and emanations from his pen we always read with peculiar interest.—[ED. KT. NEWS.

OBITUARY.

REV. E. Y. REESE: Dear Brother,—It is to me a sad and melancholy task, to be called on to enter, in the bill of human mortality, the precious and cherished name of MRS. SARAH P. QUINTON, who died on the 19th ult., at her late residence, near Snow Hill, Worcester County, Maryland, in the 64th year of her age.

Mrs. Quinton I had known well, from my boyhood days, and in connexion with many of the dearest and most interesting scenes of the whole of my former social and religious life. She was my own special and valued friend. *

There are many circumstances and events connected with the life and character of Mrs. Quinton, that are peculiarly affecting to my recollection. All will read them probably with no superficial interest, but more especially will they awaken tender and touching reminiscences in the bosoms of those surviving friends, who, like myself, knew her so long and so well. She was descended from an ancestry of veteran and genuine respectability. She was herself one of the very few that are now left, of the real old school of Maryland ladies, who seemed fitted by nature and by education, for any rank or position in life; to direct and govern a household; to train up and discipline the minds of the young; to lead in the common and social intercourse and felicitous of the drawing room; to grace the honors and appropriate ceremonies of a court; or to perform, just as it should be, with dignity and ease, the office of a governess, or a princess. Their style of manners and conversation always impressed me with feelings of particular respect and veneration, and I ackgowledge it to be a blessing to have been born in such an age, and to have been brought up amidst the society and influence of such superior women.—But, alas!—Ilium fuit. Troy is no more. One by one, they are now all gone, with but a few left, and far between; and I sometimes am led to fear that such real grace and dignity of character will be but ill substituted by some of the modern refinements of female education and manners.

In collating the past with the present, as in this instance, amidst recollections so full of affecting interest and tenderness, my mind I confess, often becomes uncontrolably pensive and sad. "Lord, what is man?" So far as this world alone is concerned he seems almost to have been made in vain.—To live so brief and momentary an existence; to be invested and burdened with cares so many and so important; to form such sweet and tender affinities and friendships, and yet to dissolve them in a day, and seemingly forever; to expand and unfold faculties and energies but to be blasted so soon as they are blown, to struggle hard through wearisome years in the toils of life, and yet to be conscious of doing so little good: and then to die; to pass away; out of sight, out of hearing, out of knowledge, yea, and very soon beyond all human memory. Such is the life of man, even at its best estate, and verily such the finest and most eloquent homily, the proudest and fittest eulogium, that poor, feeble, unaided philosophy can pronounce upon it. But, thank God, there is another voice to be heard on the subject—a voice that speaks as "never man spake." Our beloved sister "shall rise again." "She is not dead, but sleepeth." Man's life is labor—the pregnant seed-time of his being to the eventful harvest of Eternity; it is full of toil, full of duty, and for the most part, full of disappointment; but, in Christ it abounds in aids, in consolations, in promises, in hopes divine, and full of immortality.

"I would not live always; I ask not to stay,
Where storm after storm rises o'er the dark way;
The few lurid mornings that dawn on us here,
Are enough for life's woes—full enough for its cheer.

"Who, who would live away, away from his God,
Away from yon heaven, that blissful abode,
Where the rivers of pleasure flow o'er the bright plains,
And the noon-tide of glory eternally reigns?"

☞ WORMS KILL THOUSANDS, AND ARE much more dangerous to human life than would otherwise be supposed, because parents are not aware that the majority of diseases under which their children appear to suffer arise altogether from worms and while they are tampering with medicines which are of no avail, the children pine away and soon die. The remedy is sure. Dr. Sherman's Worm Lozenges are specific in their effects, and bring them away when all other means fail. They have now been before the public for many years. Thousands have tested them, and found them a never failing remedy, and they are offered with great confidence to those who may need them. We have been eye-witnesses to their wonderful effects. They may be had at Dr. S's werehouse, 106 Nassau street.

Let all the world know that Sellers' Vermifuge is the best in use! Here is the proof.

LICKING STATION, Ky. Dec 17th, 1846.

Mr. R. E. Sellers:—I have the pleasure to inform you that I have used in my practice your celebrated Vermifuge with the most happy results I have formerly used Fahnestock's but being persuaded to try yours, I have found it far superior in every respect, and can say without the fear of contradiction, that your Vermifuge possesses more virtue than any I ever used, and most cordially recommend it to the attention of the public. I will state a case where I gave one vial of your Vermifuge: My brother's child was pining and wasting to a mere skeleton; in 30 hours after I gave the Vermifuge, the enormous quantity of upwards of six hundred worms were passed. The child that was given up as lost, is now well and as hearty as any in the neighborhood
