24 STEAMERS TIE UP.

Capt. William Taylor Leads the Masters by Tieing Up the B. S. Ford on Monday—All Sympathy With the Mariners—Notes of the Strike.

BAY AND RIVER TIE-UP.

Number of men interested, 24 captains and 40 mates.

Lines affected, Maryland, Delaware and Virginia Railroad and Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Railroad.

Number of boats affected, 30.

Miles covered by two lines, 2200.

Number of landings made, 250.

Number of employees affected by the tie-up, 750.

The steamer B. S. Ford of the Chester river route of the Maryland, Delaware and Virginia line, did not sail at 2.30 o'clock Monday afternoon, her schedule hour of departure. Captain William Taylor and his mates refused to go aboard, having handed in their resignations last week. The failure of the B. S. Ford to depart was the first step in the attempted tie-up of the lines of the Maryland, Delaware and Virginia Railroad and the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Railroad, both controlled by the Pennsylvania railroad.

Several boats went out Tuesday but on Wednesday there were 21 boats tied up and the ranks of the Pilot association were greatly increased by new members. Ever since the B. C. & A. and the M. D. & V. Railroads have succeeded in buying or killing all independent steamboat lines on the Eastern Shore they have been making the captains of boats put in more hours than they ever knew in independent steamboating and at the same time they have been scaling down the salaries of these skilled mariners on whom depend the safe transit of passengers and cargoes.

Difference is Over Salary.

The bone of contention between the bay men and the steamboat companies is a raise in the salary scale. At present, with one or two exceptions in the cases of men who have long been in the service, the captains receive from $75 to $100, first mates from $40 to $60 and second mates from $30 to $40. The new scale asked for is as follows:

On Chester river and Claiborne runs, masters, $100; first mates, $65; second mates, $45.

On Choptank river runs, masters $115; first mates $70; second mates, $50.

For routes below Cove Point, masters, $125; first officers, $80; second officers, $60; licensed quarter-masters, $35.

The combined Maryland, Delaware and Virginia and Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Lines form about three-fourths of the bay steamboat shipping on the Chesapeake that has directly to do with the port of Baltimore. The combined companies operate 30 steamers over a territory of 2300 miles, calling at 250 landings and doing annually a truck business alone that represents $25,000,000. The men employed on these steamers and interested in the present attempted tie-up number between sixty and seventy.

Captain Thomson Talks.

Captain Willard Thomson, general manager of the Maryland, Delaware and Virginia Railroad and the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Railroad, said this morning:

"We have up to this time received no word nor intimation from our captains and mates that they are dissatisfied with their wages or work other than the petition presented us in June by the union men from Boston, who presented to us a scale of wages which we declined to accept, and with whom we declined to have any intercourse. Our men personally have not come to us. If they did, we would receive them and talk the matter over. We will not accept any terms from the outside men, nor will we make a compromise of any description.

Running Vessels at a Loss.

"The schedule of rates the people from Boston desire us to place into effect are impossible from our standpoint. The company is not able to grant them. Here are statements showing that of the 30 boats which our combined lines ran last year, 11 were run at a loss aggregating $55,000. Reports for the first eight months of this year show that on the M. D. & V. Line four boats have been run at a loss and on the B. C. & A. five boats have been run at a loss, making a total of nine boats, and we have several months of the poorest season of the year to run yet.

"It is not fair to compare our men with the captains and mates of the New York municipal ferries. Those men do not get their board in addition to their salaries. We find that our men cost us $30 each for this item, which fact should be taken into consideration."

Notes of the Tie-Up.

The Leland Mills came loaded from stem to stern this week and had to refuse freight.

A Chestertown merchant went to Wilmington Thursday and laid in a supply of groceries.

The Tolchester steamer carried many passengers and Capt. Russell's big hack was called into service again.

A gentleman desiring to remove to Chestertown hauled his furniture to the wharf in Baltimore and has not yet been able to get same.

Scores of persons are in the city unable to reach their homes.

The scenes on many of the wharves were really novel. Absolutely no freight was being received and outgoing boats could only approximately adhere to schedules. The steamboat officers were, however, besieged all the week by impatient and indignant passengers clamoring for information in regard to the resumption of regular trips by the different lines One of the most interesting cases was that of a mother and daughter who came to the city from the Eastern Shore.

They came to purchase the daughter's wedding outfit, and with a return ticket in their purses felt free to totally exhaust their means. When they appeared at Pier No. 7 and found that an embargo had been placed on the big steamers their purplexity knew no bounds.

"We have no money and are simply loaded down with bundles," declared the greatly distressed woman, "and we must get home. Sam will have two teams at the boat to meet us and we won't be there. I must! I simply must go home today," she declared, stamping her foot to emphasize her words as the tears came to her eyes. The disconsolate women took up their positon and began a siege of Manager Thompson's door, but that gentleman escaped by a side door.

One party stated that 1,200 packages of tomatoes were waiting at one of the wharves along the Chester River route, and that pear shippers and farmers will be heavy losers.

"My entire late crop of tomatoes will be a total loss if this thing keeps up," said a Queen Anne county farmer. "I am so located that I am compelled to depend upon water shipments to get my produce to market, and my operations are at a standstill. Unless some relief is forthcoming within the next few days matters will become extremely serious with the fruit-growers, farmers and all classes in the more remote rural communities. Merchants are complaining bitterly and are greatly handicapped in their fall business.

The Maryland wheat-seeding time is on, and thousands of tons of fertilizers are still undelivered. It is feared that this failure will so retard the seeding of the next year's crop that the acreage will be seriously cut, and that farmers will be far into the fall in completing this important work. This feature of the situation promises to be the most serious in the rural sections, as the steamers were having trouble in handling the enormous shipments of artificial fertilizers, and a congestion of this particular freight is inevitable.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

Mrs. Sarah E. Goodhand died on Saturday at her residence 726 West Lexington street, Baltimore, in her 71st year. She was the widow of the late W. W. K. Goodhand. The remains were taken to Stevensville cemetery, Queen Anne's county, on Monday.

The pallbearers were Messrs. George W. Hatcherson, Thomas H. Topping, Dr. J. T. Twilley, E. P. Beck, I. F. Walbert and Geo. B. Westcott. Undertaker, John N. Dodd.

He enlisted at beginning of war and was severely wounded at Cross Keys, re-inlisted in First Maryland Infantry and was taken prisoner. He was justly proud of his war record and for fifty years voted the Democratic ticket. He married Susan Beall in 1866 who survives with one son, one daughter, one sister, Mrs. Schutt, of Va., and a brother, R. E. Wallis, of Kansas. He was the oldest Mason in Prince George's and that lodge conducted the funeral, interment in St. Thomas Episcopal church. The deceased was beloved by everyone who knew him.

CHANGE IN BUSINESS.

Chapman & Lambert Sell out Plant and Real Estate—Forty-Three Years Partnership—John C. Davis and Charles N. Satterfield, New Firm.

The business world was surprised Tuesday at the announcement that Messrs. J. W. Chapman and J. W. Lambert had sold their long established business to Messrs. John C. Davis and Charles N. Satterfield.

Mrs. John C. Davis purchased the lot fronting 130 feet on Cross street and a depth of 120 feet on Cannon street together with carriage emporium, blacksmith shop with four forges, wheelwright shops, lumber sheds and two frame dwellings, all for $5,000. The consideration for the stock in trade, good-will, &c., was $1500 cash paid by Messrs. Davis & Satterfield. The new firm took charge Tuesday, all the old employes remaining.

Messrs. Chapman & Lambert have been in business together for 43 years during which time they built up a tremendous trade and to-day are among the best citizens in Kent county. They own some of the finest farm lands in the county to which they will give personal attention. They know what hard work is and by their earnest and persistent effort succeeded in establishing a business that had few rivals. It is with regret we see this firm retire from active business.

The new firm are well-known to the people of this community and we bespeak for them a bright future. They will continue to sell farm implements, fencing, &c.

WEDDING EVENTS.

The Newark American Tribune gives the following interesting account of a Kent countian's wedding, son of the late Col. Josiah Massey:

One of the prettiest weddings of the season took place Wednesday evening at the handsome residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Hilliard in West Church street, when their charming and accomplished daughter, Miss Gladys E., was united in marriage with Mr. G. Hubert Massey, of Chestertown. The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. L. Kiernan, pastor of the Plymouth Congregational church, in the presence of about one hundred and eighty-five guests.

Promptly at six o'clock, to the strains of Lohengrin's beautiful wedding march, played by Marsh's orchestra, the bridal party descended the broad stairway.

The charming little ribbon bearers, Misses Josephine Hilliard and Marjory Lawhead, daintily gowned in pink silk, formed an aisle with white ribbons from the foot of the stairs through the hall and back parlor to the library, where the ceremony was performed before a background of green, formed by palms and ferns.

The ribbon bearers were followed by the six bridesmaids, who wore lovely gowns of white mull over pink silk and carried pink asters.

The maid of honor, Miss Bright Hilliard, in a handsome gown of pale blue satin, trimmed in real lace and chiffon and carrying a large bouquet of white asters, preceded the bride, who, on the arm of her father, was beautiful in an exquisite gown of white satin over silk, trimmed with a panel of real lace, with a chiffon veil caught by a diamond sunburst, the gift of her father. She carried a huge bouquet of white bride's roses and wore a pearl necklace with a diamond pendant, the gift of the bridegroom.

The officiating clergyman, the bridegroom and best man, Mr. Frederick Spiro, of Philadelphia, entered from an adjoining room, and as the party entered the library the bridegroom stepped forward and met the bride. The beautiful and impressive ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. T. L. Kiernan, after which congratulations were in order.

The bride was blindfolded and surrounded by her maids to receive the bouquet, which was caught by Miss Lela Cones.

During the evening Marsh's orchestra rendered beautiful and appropriate selections.

The ribbon bearers were served at a daintily appointed side table. When the bride's cake was cut the ring was received by Miss Majory Lawhead, one of the ribbon bearers; the thimble by Miss Bright Hilliard, the button by Mr. Arthur Arnold, and the money by Dr. C. P. King.

The favors of bride's and groom's cake, tied in a Japanese napkin, were given the guests.

The bride's gift to her maid of honor was a handsome gold bracelet; to the maids, gold leaf pins, and to the ribbon bearers, gold monogram pins. The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl and diamond necklace, and to the best man a gold and pearl dragon stick pin.

Mrs. J. V. Hilliard wore a rare gown of white satin, trimmed in real lace and chiffon.

At 9.15 Mr. and Mrs. Massey left on the Panhandle for a trip to Atlantic City and New York, after which they will return to Philadelphia, where they will be at home to their friends at 1742 Green street.

Mrs. Massey's traveling suit was of brown chiffon broad cloth with hat to match.

The bride is one of Newark's most popular society women, and has innumerable friends made by her charming personality. She is an accomplished musician, having a voice of rare beauty. For two years she attended the New England Conservatory of Music at Boston, where she received a scholarship for her excellent work.

Mr. Massey is a most promising young business man of Philadelphia, where he is connected with the H. B. Smith Steam Heating Co., of which he is mechanical engineer.

DILLON—McCLOSKEY.

A very quiet and beautiful wedding took place Wednesday morning, the 26th of September, at 9.30, at Saint Jerome's Roman Catholic Church, corner Scott and Hamburg streets, when Mr. Thomas Dillon was married to Miss Catharine McCloskey. Rev. Father Neil was the officiating priest. The bride was handsomely gowned in steel colored messaline veiling, with hat and gloves to match and carried bride's roses. The only attendants were James McCloskey, of Baltimore, and Francis Coleman, of Kent county, both nephews of the bride. The wedding was followed by a reception and breakfast at the residence of the bride's brother, Mr. James E. McCloskey. Only the immediate friends of the family being present. With the best wishes of their many friends the couple left for Nebraska where they will make their future home.

Farm Sold.—Marion deK. Smith, Esq., trustee, has sold to Mr. Charles J. Reiche the farm in Quaker Neck known as "Hill Top," tenanted by Mr Dave Sutton and containing 185 acres, 45 acres of which is detached.

H. L. BOYD says he has sold a great many peach trees this fall—as many as he could handle.

W. W. HUBBARD, says that notwithstanding the fact that they have sold over 400 tons more fertilizer this fall than ever before, he has ample goods to supply any and all who still want phosphate to go upon their wheat.
