Men And Bees Are Active On Avenue

Washington avenue is a busy place these days. Albert Strong has a large force of workmen laying a curb and gutters on either side of the roadway. His large excavating machine tore up a solid concrete wall on the west side and the earth is being used in raising the "ravine" at foot of Spring and Washington avenues. Mrs. S. P. Townshend has several carpenters repairing her veranda while on the opposite corner Howard Strong has painters giving his residence occupied by Mr. Waddell and Belt Townshend a new coat of paint. The The C. & P. Telephone Co. in making repairs in front of Dr. Livingood's home discovered a colony of bees which had taken refuge in the professor's third story. They were removed after some interesting experiences. A hive of bees was found by Taylor Baxter in Mrs. Garrett Foxwell's attic while doing some work there. Mrs. Foxwell had suffered from stings from bees a few weeks previous. Mr. Baxter swept up a gallon or more of the bees after suffocating them.

This is not all that is going on in this section of Chestertown. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ford's new residence a few yards from the Avenue on Kent street is nearing completion and W. P. Newnam s home has just had a fresh coat of paint which adds much to its attractiveness. Thomas D. Bowers has recently improved his home with a new roof and a coat of paint. Mrs. D. B. McMenamin has also added to the neatness of her home yard by landscaping work.

Fire Company Wins Verdict In Suit For Damages

The suit of Wesley Story, of Queenstown, against Chestertown Volunteer Fire Company for injuries alleged to have been received in an automobile accident which occurred in Chestertown in October, 1931, went to trial in the Talbot county court, in Easton, Monday.

The case has been postponed three times since being docketed in Kent county court. The suit is the outgrowth of an accident at the intersection of High and Cross streets, Chestertown, where the car owned and driven by Story collided with one of the company's fire trucks which was responding to an alarm of fire at the Essington Yacht Club property on Worton Creek. The jury, after being out a short time, returned a verdict for the Fire Co. S. Scott Beck, Esq., represented the local firemen.

It is intended to aid farmers who raise and butcher two or three hogs for sale each year.

Council Votes For Disposal

Will Ask Federal Aid For Funds To Build Plant

The City Council at their meeting Monday night decided there was nothing left for them to do but to gracefully accept the demand of the State Health Board, viz., to build the Disposal Plant. A motion was made and carried to make application to the PWA for an appropriation for part of the cost. The length of time before work will be started on the project will depend upon the availability of PWA funds.

The Mayor and Council finally decided when it became apparent that to refuse to carry out the order might cost the tax-payers of Chestertown some $10,000 more, plus extra carriage charges.

The Council also voted down the petition presented by property owners on Maple avenue against the widening of that street to 36 feet when it took the stand of upholding its original agreement.

A delegation from the Chestertown Volunteer Fire Company appeared before the Council and requested the passage of an ordinance making the sounding of a false alarm on the fire siren a misdemeanor.

The request of R. Lee Robinson that a curb and gutter be placed in front of his property on Philospher's Terrace and that a fence there be restored was granted.

The laying of a curb and gutter on north side of Kent street from the present end to Philospher's Terace was ordered done when funds were available.

Enforce New Law On Trucks In Maryland

With the shipments of early farm products nearing a peak. State Police are showing renewed effort in the enforcement of Maryland's law requiring certificate of financial responsibility from operators of motor trucks over the State highways.

Within the last few days scores of Delaware and Virginia truckmen have turned back at the State boundaries when informed they must either guarantee financial responsibility in event of accident or face heavy penalty. Many out-of-State truckmen have complied with the regulation, however.

The statute requires financial guarantee up to $5,000 when one death from accident occurs, $10,000 in event of two deaths and property damage up to $1,000. For first offenders is $100 minimum fine, for second offense $500 minimum.

Both Sides Claim Election Victory

A prediction that milk dealers "who are drawing down inordinate profits at the expense of producer and consumer" will be forced by public opinion to change their methods is sounded to dairy farmers by William B. Duryee, New Jersey Secretary of Agriculture.

The New Jersey official made the forecast at the final session of the Interstate Milk Producers' Association. The result of Monday's ballot fight for control of the organization is expected to be announced today by court officials who supervised the election.

Ten members of the association from Kent county were present at the sessions. They were: John C. Sutton, Robert Wallis, L. A. Sutton, William Crow, Samuel Massey, Lloyd Kennedy, William Bell, B. F. Rash, Harry Williams and County Agent J. D. McVean.

The regular meeting of the London Bridge Chapter, D. A. R., was held at the home of the Misses Stuart on Queen street, with Mrs. Stuart Price, regent, presiding.

The officers of the chapter will be the guest of the Old Kent Chapter at the luncheon and dedication of the Dick Memorial Library, at Washington College on Saturday.

Producers Suffer 16c Slash In Price

A reduction averaging 16 cents per 100 pounds in the price paid the farmer for milk for manufacture was announced Thursday by the State Milk Control Board in Harrisburg, Pa.

Edward A. Stanford, chairman of the board, said the reduction is only temporary and will end at the close of the season of heavy production. Pointing out this is the "ice cream season," the board claimed lower prices to the manufacturer will result in increased consumption.

No changes in the price of ice cream are contemplated at present.

The previous average price of milk was $1.70 per 100 pounds and the reduction brings this down to an average of $1.54. Creameries which make ice cream and chocolate manufacturers will be the greatest beneficiaries.
