Thieves Steal Wheat Crop

Use Truck To Haul Grain From Storehouse

Sheriff J. Elmer Anthony and Constable Louis B. Perkins. of Centreville, have been busy this week in an effort to track down thieves who broke into the house on the H. D. Orem Farm, near Pondtown, and escaped with 250 bushels of wheat late Wednesday night following the electrical storm.

The farm is tilled by George Clough who lives on the opposite side of the Dudley's Corner-Crumpton Highway, both farms being owned by H. D. Orem, of Chestertown.

Clough had threshed wheat last week and stored the crop of 250 bushels in the house on the farm to await time to ship it. The vandals broke open the house and from all evidence made two trips in a large motor truck to remove all the wheat.

Joseph Pinder, also a resident of the Pondtown section suffered the loss of 25 bushels of wheat the same night.

Milk Control Board Institutes New Order

An aroused sentiment among dairymen of the Philadelphia Milk Shed over the new order put into effect on July 13 by the Pennsylvania Milk Control Board caused the resignation of one member of that board this week and an agreement with producers for the practical restoration of regulations in effect prior to the passage of the July 13 measure.

The fight of the producers against the new ruling was brought to a head in Philadelphia last Friday with the result that one member of the Control Board, Dr. Reynolds resigned, and an agreement was reached whereby a new order would be written virtually cancelling the July 13 order and practically restoring the Federal license plan that was in effect prior to the changes. These include the basic surplus plan, the original inspection plan in effect for several years and the restoration of a $2.60 F. O. B. Philadelphia price for 3.5 milk. Under the plan all producers in the entire shed will receive like consideration and the present receiving station system will be retained.

It was understood that Governor Pinchot would make an appointment this week to fill the vacancy on the board caused by the resignation of Dr. Reynolds, former Allied Dairy official.

Maryland Hunters To Protest Law Changes

Moved by the conviction that something of a radical nature must be done to save the wild geese and wild ducks of this country from ruinous decimation, the Middle Atlantic Fish and Game Association, at a meeting held in the Hotel duPont, Wilmington, Del., Monday, went on record as being in favor of reducing the open shooting season for such fowl from 60 to 30 days.

The thirty days, it suggests, should be used up in ten shooting periods of three days a week. The association also expressed itself in favor of requiring anglers to take out licenses for salt water fishing.

Connecticut and the string of coastal States extending southward to North Carolina, were represented by the association, the action of which was in line with the goose, duck and fish conservation policy of the United States Department of Agriculture, which policy was based upon a thorough biological survey, covering a large expanse of territory.

A strong protest has been sent by the Maryland Conservation Department and also by the sportsmen throughout Kent county.

Colored Man Steps From Hearse, Mourners Disappear

A well-known colored resident of Cannon street, Wilbur Stewart, had an unusual experience Monday. He is an industrious man but has been handicapped because of an injured eye over which he wore a cover. A few weeks ago while at work he was overcome by a heart attack and his friends sent him to Easton Hospital. On Monday the hospital authorities notified members of his family to come and get him, that couldn't do anything with him. In some manner the family interpreted the message as meaning that Wilbur was dead.

The son and wife of Wilbur called on Undertaker W. T. Hicks and asked him to take charge of funeral arrangements. From them the undertaker obtained the necessary family history and filled out the death certificate. He engaged a colored man to dig a grave and procure a box. Then he took out his hearse and was off to Easton for the body.

At the hospital he told the head nurse that he had come for the body of Wilbur Stewart. He soon found out that Wilbur was very much alive, so much so that the hospital authorities had taken his clohet away to keep him from wandering off.

Mr. Hicks, inasmuch as he was in Easton and had to return to Chestertown, offered to bring Wilbur home. Then it was discovered that the clothing of the "dead" man had been distroyed and so, clad in a borrowed hospital outfit, Wilbur mounted the front seat of the hearse and came to Chestertown.

Reaching his home on Cannon street he alighted from the hears and walked through his front door into the midst of a sorrowing family and mourners who had gathered to see the remains. And for a few minutes Cannon street was rent with screams and wails. One of the mourners ran right through a screen door and there was a general exodus of both family and friends.

All is calm at this writing and the cause of the disturbance enjoying fair health.

CROWDS FLOCK TO TOLCHESTER BEACH

This past week has proved one of the most popular with citizens of Baltimore for a visit to the beaches along the Chesapeake, and Tolchester has drawn its share of the picnickers. Last Tuesday two boats brought 3200 people to the amusement park on the bay, and Wednesday found 1600 patrons enjoying the groves, beach and amusements which this place offers. Postmaster Wheatley states that this season has been the most successful, insofar as numbers are concerned, of any within the past five years.

MANUFACTURE SNOW TO COOL CHURCH

The Rev. Harold W. Arthur, pastor of the Union Square Baptist Church, Sommerville, Mass., has gone the twenty-degrees-cooler-than-outside amusement places one better.

While the city outside sweltered Sunday, Arthur preached from a bank of snow and members of a cooled congregation sat in comfort and sang hymns about winter.

The snow was manufactured for the novel service by an ice company.

ARMY OF SEA-NETTLES MOVING UP THE CHESAPEAKE'S TRIBUTARIES

An army of sea nettles is moving northward in Chesapeake Bay. This summer these pests are to be particularly plentiful, according to Swepson Earle, State Conservation Commissioner, who sees in the dry spell (and consequent salt water where usually the water is almost fresh) an invitation to the nettles to move far into the mouths of the inlets.

The experiments, conducted by the Conservation Department and the zoological laboratory of the Johns Hopkins University, disclosed much of scientific interest, but little of practical value to bathers and fishermen.

But Mr. Earle and the scientists of the Hopkins are much pleased with their findings. For the first time in history—as far as they know—they have brought to light the biological secrets of the stinging jellyfish; they have segregated the male and female; they have raised a nettle from an egg to maturity; they have made successful dietetic experiments, and they have revealed the cause and effect of the sting.

Local Barley Not Good For Brewing

County Agent McVean announces that he is receiving inquiries concerning the production of barley suitable for brewing purposes. The Maryland Experiment Station does not recommend this attempt under Maryland conditions; the difficulty being that under our climatic conditions it is practically impossible to produce barley grain free from weather strains. Only barley free of strain can be used for brewing purposes. A soft barley produced in one section of the United States is used by the brewers. Kent farmers therefore should consider barley as a feed crop rather than a crop for sale for brewing purposes.

The Experiment Station recommends that seed of the Tennessee Winter Variety be used. Spring barley is not a success in Maryland except in the Western Maryland area. Barley is subject to smut and should be treated for the control of smut. High quality seed true to variety should be used. Mercury dusts or Pyrethrum products are effective. Barley is considered by many a replacement crop for corn. Over a ten year period barley out yields wheat two to one. Bearded barley is the type to grow as it is much less subject to disease than the beardless varieties. Barley makes a splendid feed—practically as good as corn. Those who look to barley to replace corn acreage feel, in view of recent poor corn crops due to drought, storms, winds, etc., that barley is a more economical crop and one that frequently fits into the cropping system, with less confusion than goes with the cutting and husking of the corn crop.

SET DATE AND PLACE FOR 10TH ANNUAL HORSE SHOW

Announcement was made yesterday by Wilbur Ross Hubbard, Esq., of the definite arrangements for the holding of the Tenth Annual Kent County Horse Show, a feature which attracts large crowds every year to Kent.

Wednesday, August 22nd, has been definitely set as the date for the show this year, and Julian Jones' "Hopewell Field" has been designated as the location.

Equine enthusiasts from all parts of the Eastern Shore, and from the exclusive clubs of other States are expected to be present with their mounts to compete in the series of twenty or more events which are listed.

County To Have Own Work Relief

School Projects In Kent Nearing Completion

The work relief program in Maryland will be developed as far as possible according to local conditions in each county, Harry Greenstein, State Relief Administrator, told relief workers from 21 counties at a meeting in Baltimore last Monday.

"The few mandates imposed under work relief programs in the states are originated in Washington, but our feeling is that so far as we are concerned, each county shall work out its own program to its own ir lividual advantage," he said.

A discussion of the problems developed the unanimous opinion from county welfare workers that the ultimate solution lay in work relief and each praised this highly, asserting they would regret very much any cessation in the program of work relief.

The Chestertown office reports 115 cases now on relief. At a meeting of the Welfare Board the administration cost was greatly reduced by laying off two helpers and by combining the work of two in the office so that one can suffice. Mrs. Margaret Massey has the work well in hand and is studying constantly the economies of the business.

Man Killed From Fumes While Stranded In Car

George Haley, aged 38, was found dead in his automibile near WarwickThursday night. He was enroute home and during the storm stopped to assist some friends. As he backed into the ditch the muffler of his car was stopped up by the mud so that Mr. Haley was left alone unable to move. After the storm Mr. Starkey while passing along the road saw Mr. Haley in the car. An inquest was held and accidental death from gas fumes or heart failure was the verdict.

Mr. Haley leaves a family of wife and five children. He is the tenant on the Nat. Williams' farm, near Sassafras.

The Penna. R. R. train with the noon mail was delayed yesterday because of washout on main line.

The road on either side of the bridge at Sassafras was washed out for about 20 feet.

THE N-E-W-S IN BRIEF

A Tuberculosis Clinic will be held at the Health Center in Chestertown on Monday, August 6th, 1934, from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Thousands of bushels of wheat have been sold in Kent this week. price reached 91½ cents Wednesday and yesterday local buyers were offering 90½ cents.

An unusual farming experiment in which absentee landlords may profit by cultivation of their lands under a pool arrangement is being worked out with success, it is said, in Queen Anne's county by Dr. Walter B. Pitkin, Columbia University professor and agriculture authority, who is now seeking addition acres to add to his project.

Dr. Pitkin believes that before 1936 there ought to be at least 100 large farm management companies running. This, he believes, would do much to solve the farm problems.

With temperatures reaching a maximum of 91 degrees Tuesday, July, 1934, passed into history as one of the hottest Julys on record at the Weather Bureau.

On seventeen of the thirty-one days, thermometer readings reached 90 degrees or higher. Only once before in the history of the bureau—in 1901—has a similar situation occurred. The average July has eight day with 90-degree temperatures.

A Six-foot black snake and a young rabbit were seen in a death grip Monday along the public road near Mrs. Wm. Dixon's farm by Max Blakeney. Mr. Blakeney killed the snake after the reptile had pulled the head of the rabbit in his mouth and was about to enjoy a feast.

The scarcity of hard crabs in the lower Chester river has become so acute that crabbing crews are coming to the headwaters of the river off Chestertown for their catches to keep Rock Hall and Long Cove packing houses in operation. More than a dozen crews of trot line crabbers may be seen at work above and below Chester river bridge every day, but their catch is reported to be small.

All the school sanitary projects have been completed under Mr. Wilkins supervision and plans are making for private work in homes at cost.

Work on the PWA school projects will be commenced as soon as possible. The lumber and paint have been purchased and only await available men from the Board of Welfare.

A recent act of the Maryland Legislature sets August 15 as the last date upon which delinquent taxpayers may make payment of their taxes before their properties are advertised for sale to cover overdue taxes and costs of sale. There remains about 25 per cent of delinquent taxes still on the treasurer's books for 1932-33, which the treasurer will proceed, to collect by law after August 15 unless paid before.

The Board of County Commissioners at their last session ordered the brick garage in rear of the jail transformed into an office for the Police Justice of Chestertown. The jail room was unable to contain space sufficient to hold the crowd that attended this court. Last week the court house had to be used.

Old St. Paul's Sunday School will hold their Beach Party at Page Gale's shore, Thursday, August 9, at 2 p. m. It had to be postponed from this week to the 9th.

Lewis Bros.' big 3-ring circus will be in Chestertown Monday, September 10th.

Ralph Barnett and wife have sold to Mrs. Minnie Newsome, of Chestertown, their residence on High St., next door to Bacchus brick house. The new owner who lives next to Christ M. P. Church will occupy her purchase next month while Mr. Barnett will remove to their residence on Kent Circle now occupied by Mr. Poetzsch.

One hundred or more members and friends of the Chestertown Volunteer Fire Company attended the company's annual crab feast and fish fry at Quaker Neck wharf on Monday evening. The Chestertown Firemen's Band enlivened the occasion with a number of spirited selections. Members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Fire Company were guests of honor.

In an address before the Chestertown Rotary Club at its last weekly meeting Rolph Townshend, District Engineer for the State Roads Commission, advocated a complete survey of Chestertown as a means of providing the city authorities with a definite plan of street lines and building locations for future public construction work.
