GOLD, which has been gradually declining since the gold panic, is now selling at about 122, which are the lowest figures it has reached since the war. Since the ruinous gold crisis and crash in New York. there has been very little speculation in from the fearful punishment they then should attend. received. Their bitter experiences make them wary. The high rates of interest, speculation. As it is very evident that there is more gold in the country than is stances, it must gradually fall to a par, a point where it can be rendered useful in general business. If no artificial demand for it be created by speculation; if confidence be not destroyed by ill-advised legislation, and if the credit of the country, based upon increasing prosperity continue to improve, then gold must fall Give us free banking, with any restrictions that may be prudent, provided they ed for all the districts. effect equally all parts of the country ;let us have currency enough to meet the wants of the community; let us encourand we shall soon find that we shall approach the period of resumption even much more rapidly than we do now.

THE report of the grand jury of New York on the gold conspiracy is soon to be made public. According to the Sun of amined many witnesses, whose testimony pense of the defeated squads. they have ordered to be printed. They ferretted out the man who instigated the at an event which proved so disastrous to the commercial interests of the country, very conflicting and contradictory. And so ends the judicial investigation of this stupendous conspiracy to destroy the commerce of a country.
