Hunting Season Will Open Soon Here

The hunting season is rapidly approaching and State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte says that from general reports throughout the State, upland game of practically all species seems to have shown a great come-back, even in sections where the storm of August 23, 1933. prevailed, it being one of the worst disasters in the tidal sections of the Chesapeake Bay that has occurred in Maryland for years past.

The Clerks of the Circuit Courts of the various counties have reported that persons are purchasing hunting licenses earlier than usual this season. As a rule, the grand rush begins about September 1. but there have been more licenses sold in August than usual.

Open Seasons

The Federal regulations as yet have not been proclaimed for the taking of migratory birds. However, we do not believe there will be any change in Federal regulations which at present provide open season September 1st to September 30th and November 15th to December 15th, for doves.

RAILBIDDS — September 1st to October 31st, inclusive. (Due to an excellent crop of acquatic plants on marshes. Railbirds should be plenciful.

A person who has been a resident of any county for a period of six months may procure a county resident license at the cost of $1.25. Any person who has been a resident of the State of Maryland for six months may procure a State-wide license at the cost of $5.25 valid in all counties of the State.

A non-resident of Maryland may procure a short term non-resident hunting license, valid five days, including date of issuance, for $5.50, or a full term non-resident license at $15.50.

Resident county licenses can be procured only from the Clerk of the Circuit Court of the County in which the applicant is a resident, State-wide and non-resident license can be procured from any of the Clerks of the Circuit Courts or from the Clerk of the Court of Common Pleas, Court House, Baltimore City.

Only one woman worker was injured but 200 men and women were terrified Monday afternoon of last week, when the boiler in the packing house of Charles Adams, near Trappe, exploded, tearing the whole end of the building out. The injured woman whose name was not revealed by the owners of the plant, recovered.

Friends Meet After 40 Years

Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Stevens, of Rock Hall, entertained the Rev. Dr. A. Norman Ward, president of Western Maryland College, and his son, Norman, over the last weekend. It was the first time that Dr. Ward and his host had met for forty years, when they were boyhood friends at Jarrettsville, Harford county.

Besides Dr. Ward, who preached at Wesley Chapel, and his son, Mr. and Mrs. Stevens entertained at dinner on Sunday Mr. and Mrs. William Leppo and son, Bernard, Mrs. Carrie Hillyer and her house guest, Miss Ethel Stoops.

ADVOCATING TOWN SURVEY

The controversy raging in Chestertown over division lines between town properties and private properties and town streets and sidewalks typifies similar conditions in Centreville and probably in a great many other towns.

Certain improvements are underway in Chestertown and it is found that for years residents have been permitted to encroach upon town property. Lawns and porches in instances have been allowed to extend over into the street right of way. Trees have been planted on town property and now that the streets are being widened and the city has to reclaim its property, owners are threatening law suits and setting up other obstacles.

Roads Commission Engineer, Mr. Rolph Townshend, though having nothing to do with the controversy, suggested at a Rotary meeting that a complete resurvey of the town be made so that in the future all lines may be established without a doubt.

When the Queen Anne's Record property was purchased about a year ago it was found that Centreville was without a survey chart. We were advised there had been one but that it was lost. To secure a title to the property a survey had to be made at some little cost. After considerable effort and with uncertainty a pin was finally located and the survey made. The lines did not run as property owners figured, but a title was finally secured.

We mention this only as an example. Every town should have an accurate survey map. Occasionally, need for such arises as is demonstrated by the controversy in Chestertown. Centreville could well afford to have an extensive survey of the town made and permanent lines established. It might result in confusion in some instances, as it might show overlapping of properties. But the time may come anyway when such a survey will have to be made and conditions similar to those arising in Chestertown may result.—Centreville Racord.

Wm. F. Malin is completing one of the most skillful pieces of carpenter work seen in Chestertown for many years. It was done, in the Catlin home on Water street under the supervision of Mrs. C. W. Whaland. Mr. Malin has restored the paneling and fancy grill work in the rooms from which the original wood work was sold for $15,000.

If what I do now were done by and for all men, would it be beneficial or hurtful to humanity?—Mazzini.

There are no circumstances, however unfortunate, that clever people don't extract some advantage from.—La Rochefoucault.

Proposal To Unify Shore

The Association of County Commissioners of the Eastern Shore, in their annual summer meeting heard a speech from State Senator J. H. Legg in opposition to the proposal that the nine Eastern Shore counties form themselves into a political unit.

The meeting was presided over by Walter E. Buck, of Port Deposit, President.

A banquet was served at the Atlantic Hotel, Ocean City, which was the Association's headquarters.

In addition to Senator Legg the following addressed the Association: W. K. Fibbitt, of Dorchester, who urged a full-time assessor for each county; Harry J. Slaughter, of Talbot; Edwin S. Dorcus, of Cecil, who criticized the enactment of so many useless laws in the State; W. C. Richardson, of Dorchester, and Dr. Clinton Kane, health officer of Cecil, who spoke on the relations between the health officers and the county commissioners.

The Association appointed a committee to watch legislation as it affects the Eastern Shore counties. The Association also appointed a committee to consider the full-time assessor proposal and report. It will report at the October meeting of the Association in Princess Anne.
