Next to this, tastefully decked with gorgeous signs of sparkling glass and shining gilt, with a splendid four in hand team before the door restlessly champing their golden bits as they await the coming of their master, that refined and polished gentleman, H. T. Helmbold, Esq., whose energy and industry in compounding drugs, particularly those of his own patents, have earned for him that world-renowned appellation, the "Prince of Buchu." Passing on, let us take a peep within this beautiful establishment of "Ball Black & Co.;" what a dazzle of beauty strikes our eves? Gold and silver of every shape and variety, sparkling diamonds and costy pearls; delicately tinged amethysts and blood red coral; garnets and mosaic, and countless others of the precious stones, set in the most artistic manner. Beyond we see "Zenobia" bound with cruel chains; and numerous other statuary and paintings lend their aid to make the gorgeous palace resplendent with lustre and beauty. Next in our walk, the retail store of the "Merchant prince" deserves attention; this block in area, contains every article one can think of in the dry goods line, which Mr. Stewart, with his seven hundred polite assistants, deal out at the rate of $40,000 per day. Just opposite, near the corner of Groadway and Tenth street, is "Grace Church," and a few blocks beyond we see "Union Square" with its sparkling fountain, surrounded by beautiful trees and velvet-like verdure. Near its south eastern gate stands the imposing equestrian statue of Washington mounted on a granite pedestal, fourteen feet high. Her trusting soul has fled. And yet we bend above her tomb With tears, and call her dead. We call her dead, but ah ! we know She dwells where living waters flow. We miss thee from thy home, dear one,

We miss thee from thy place, Oh! life will be so black without The sunshine of thy face. We wait for thee, eve's sweet hour

When stars begin to burn, We linger in our cottage porch To look for thy return : But vainly for thy coming step We list through all the hours-

We only hear the wind's law voice That murmurs through the flowers, And the dark river's solemn hymn Sweeping among the woodlands dim. The bird we loved is singing yet Above our cottage door,

We sigh to hear it singing now Since heard by thee no more. The sunshine and the trembling leaves, The blue o'er arching sky, The music of the wandering winds That float in whispers by-All speak in tender tones to me

Of all life's parted hours and thee. I do not see thee now, dear one, I do not see thee now, But even when the twilight breeze Steals o'er my lifted brow,

I hear thy voice upon my ear In murmurs low and soft; I hear thy words of tenderness That I have heard so oft, And on my wounded spirit falls A blessing from above,

That whispers, tho' thy life is o'er,

We have not lost thy love. Ah! uo, thy heart in death grown cold, Still loves us with a love untold. No need of fame's proud voice for thee, No need of earthly tame, Thou art enshrined in our fond hearts. And that is all the same; Ah! full of faith, and trust, and hope. We tread life's troubled sea. Till the last throbbing wave of time Shall bear our souls to thee.

To thee, oh! it will be so sweet, With all our sins forgiven, To mingle with the loved and lost In our sweet home in Heaven-To spend with all the blest above An endless life of perfect love.
