VINEGAR BITTERS

VEGETABLE FREE FROM ALCOHOL

PURELY VEGETABLE

D. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS

J. Walker, Proprietor. R. H. McDONALD & Co., Druggists and Gen. Agts., San Francisco, Cal., and 32 & 34 Commerce St., N. Y.

MILLIONS Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

They are not a vile Fancy Drink, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors, doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the drinker to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the native roots and herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and A LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid Liver and Bowels, which render them of unequaled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

SIMMONS' LIVER Regulator

The symptoms of Liver Complaint are uneasiness and pain in the side.—Sometimes the pain is in the shoulder, and is mistaken for rheumatism. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness, bowels in general costive, sometimes alternating with diarrhea. The head is troubled with pain and dull heavy sensations, considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. Often complaining of weakness, debility, and low spirits, sometimes many of the above symptoms attend the disease, and at other times very few of them; but the liver is generally the organ most involved.—Cure the liver with

DR. SIMMONS' Liver Regulator,

A preparation of roots and herbs, warranted to be strictly vegetable, and can do no injury to any one.

It has been used by hundreds, and known for the last 40 years as one of the most reliable medicines ever offered to the suffering. When taken regularly and persistently, it has a tendency to cure Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Jaundice, costiveness, Dysentery, Diarrhœa, affections of the bladder, camp dysentery, affections of the kidneys, fever, nervousness, chills, diseases of the skin, impurity of the blood, melancholy, depression of spirits, heartburn, colic, or pains in the bowels, pain in the head, fever and ague, dropsy, boils, pain in the back, &c.

The American

EARTH CLOSET,

PATENTED AUGUST 23d, 1870.

By

C. KIEFFER & J. R. DI SHEDS.

THIS Closet is intended as a general substitute for all out-door houses and water closets. It may be placed in dressing room, bed room, or closet, without the least inconvenience or annoyance if directions are properly attended to.

Earth or Coal Ashes must be well sifted to free it from stones and coarse particles. When the hopper is filled, raise and drop the lid before using it. This will leave one discharge of earth in the receiver, and it is ready for use until the contents of the hopper is exhausted, when it will again have to be refilled, and its contents used as before.

The Closet is invaluable for the sick chamber, it being a complete disinfector and deodorizer, no offensive odor whatever. It may be placed close to the bed of the sick and remain any length of time without the least annoyance to the attendants or the patient, and no doubt prevents the spread of many a contagious disease in a family.

NEXT, A GREAT SAVING.

Independent of the great convenience of the Closet, the refuses of the Closet can be made a source of profit. The lowest estimate I have seen is $5, for each member of a family, old and young, a year, and the excrements can be handled and applied, where it is wanted, without the annoyance of common fertilizers.

This Closet need only to be seen to be approved, and its use be appreciated.

Select Poetry.

A GEORGIAN VOLUNTEER.

Far up the lonely mountain side
My wandering footsteps lead,
The moss-tap'ry beneath my tread,
The pine signal overhead.
The trace of a dismantled fort,
Lay in the forest near,
And of the shadow we, perhaps,
I saw a soldier's grave.
The bramble crested chimney
Upon the lowly mound,
The simple head board, rudely wrought,
Had rotted to the ground.
I raised it with a reverent hand,
From mould its words to clear;
But time had blotted all but one,
A Georgian volunteer.
I saw the toad and noisy snake
From tangled coverts start,
And hide themselves among the weeds
About the dead man's heart;
But undisturbed, in sleep profound,
Unheeding there he lay—
His coffin but the mountain soil,
His shroud, Confed'rate gray.
I heard the Shenandoah roll
Along the vale below,
I saw the Alleghanies rise
Towards the realms of snow,
The "Valley campaign" rose to mind—
Its leader's name—and then,
I knew the sleeper had been one
Of Stonewall Jackson's men.

Yet whence he came, what lip shall say,
What tongue will ever tell,
With desolate hearths and hearts
Have been because he fell?
What sad-eyed maiden braides her hair,
Her hair which he held dear?
One lock which perchance lies with
The Georgian Volunteer.

What mother with long watching eyes,
And white lips cold and dumb,
Waits with appalling patience for
Her darling boy to come?
Her boy whose mountain grave swells up
But comes many a scar
Cut on the face of our fair land
By glory-handed war?

What fights he fought, what wounds he wore,
Are all unknown to fame;
Remember, on his lonely grave
There is not e'en a name!
That he fought well, and bravely too,
And held his country dear,
We know—else, he had never been
"A Georgia Volunteer."

He sleeps—what needs to question now
If he were wrong or right,
He knows ere this, whose cause was just
In God, the Father's sight.
He wields no warlike weapons now,
Returns no foeman's thrust—
Who, but a coward, would revile
An honest soldier's dust?

Roll, Shenandoah, proudly roll
Down the rocky glen,
Above thee lies the grave of one
Of Stonewall Jackson's men!
Beneath the cedar and the pine,
In solitude austere,
Unknown, unnamed, for rotten lies
"A Georgian Volunteer."

Select Story.

KENNETH'S AMBUSCADE.

"Three girls domiciled in the very next room! There's an end of my writing for one month at least!"

Kenneth Ross pushed his papers into a confused heap, and lighted a cigar in a sort of quiet despair.

"There are my cousins Flora, Alice Aymer, and Rosa Fernall—blue eyes, black eyes, and melting grey. By the way, that little monkey Rosa isn't bad looking. I rather fancy that peculiar shade of filbert-brown hair, and big grey eyes, and cheeks where the blood flutters like a pink pennon. Rosa Fernall would make a toterable study for my next heroine. I may as well put her to some useful purpose. Heigho!"

Kenneth Ross paused a moment, as the peal of girlish laughter echoed in the adjoining apartment.

"They're laughing at me, I'll wager my opal scarf-pin. Girls always think a bachelor fair game, they've no more respect for the dignity of man than so many brazilian monkeys."

And Mr. Ross looked rather complacently in the mirror opposite, which reflected an oval brown face, with shining black hair and moustache, brilliant dark eyes, and a mirthful, spirited mouth.

Tap! tap! tap! sounded softly on the panel of his door, even while he was engaged in taking this personal survey of himself, and he had just time so take his heels off the table before Miss Flora Edgeworth put her sunshiny little head into the room.

"Cousin Kenneth, are you there?"

"Yes."

"May we come in?"

"Why, you'll come in, whether I grant permission or not, and I may as well say—Yes."

"I just want the girls to see what a dear little scholary den you've got here, all hung with pictures and meerschaums and deer's horns, and darling dismal skull, and——"

Flora threw open the door, and admitted her companions—rosy, laughing damsels of eighteen and twenty one.

"Here he is, girls; the old bachelor, as he appears in his native wilds."

"Now, I tell you what, young ladies," said Mr. Ross, throwing his half smoked cigar deliberately out of his window, "I'll trouble you to be a little less uncermonious."

For Alice and Flora pounced on his loose manuscript, and were already laughing over the rather illegible chirography.

Miss Fernall stood near the door, a little confused and very pretty, in her bashes and uncertainty.

"Alice! Flora! don't," she appealed.

"It's no use, Miss Rosa," said Kenneth, despairingly. "Girls, will you be so kind as to leave my writing desk alone? There's no use in looking in that drawer, either, unless you are particularly interested in blacking brushes and old boots."

"How can you Flora!" blushed the shocked Rosa.

"Oh, my gift," uttered Miss Edgeworth, contritely. "Here's a bottle of real Farina Cologne. On, Fifth from pocket, handkerchiefs, opened. Go you, Rosa; what were you saying about our Miss Rosa preserved a statistic silence. Do tell us, Kenneth, and Flora sprinkling a scented dew on her yellow curls from a slender, foreign shaped bottle "We're going down to the post office now. Rosa Fernall has written a twelve page letter to her sweetheart out in Canada."

"Flora!" exclaimed Rosa Fernall turning pale.

"And," pursued the relentless Flora, "we're going to post it. Come girls, the sun is getting more oppressive every moment."

"And the next incident Mr. Ross was left alone to the solitude of the room, with heavy musk-rose nodding at the open casement, and the drowsy murmur of maple boughs and far-off bees in his ear."

"A twelve-page letter to her sweetheart!" pondered Mr. Kenneth, with a ominous contraction of his eyebrows. "She must have had something very interesting to write. I wonder she has not Canada, can I what it was Van Dieman's Land?"

Mr. Ross rose from his easy chair, and began to walk up and down the floor.

"Its too confounded hot to breathe here," he said, impatiently taking up his straw hat. "I'll go and take a tramp in the woods. Twelve pages! what could she have found to fill up twelve pages?"

Flora Edgeworth had succeeded in planting a rankling thorn in her cousin's breast, all unconscious though she had been.

The sun was low in the cloudless western sky when Kenneth Ross returned from his abstracted ramble in the woods, and the wide, old-fashioned country house was very still, as he ascended the oaken staircase, and went silently along the corridor towards his own apartment.

"Hallo!"

Mr. Ross gazed vacantly round the room with something of the bewildered feeling that might have belonged to the Eastern prince, when he found himself transported from pole to pole in an enchanted dream.

"I'm in the wrong room, I do believe—for there is Flora Edgeworth's white zephyr shawl on the bed, and Rosa's black velvet Derby hat, and no end of ribbons, and gloves, and lace collars on the bureau. I don't see how I ever came to make such a blunder—I must have been in a brown study."

He balanced the coquettish little black velvet "Derby hat" on his hand as he spoke.

"So this is the fashionable style of chapeau, eh? It certainly is a fact that women borrow their chief dress ideas nowadays from the nobler sex. This hat is just a fac simile of my last summer's tile, and that little sacque with the big horn buttons is my cut-away coat over again! I wonder now whether Rosa's little hat would fit me?"

Mr. Ross adjusted the article of dress jauntily on one side of his curls, and viewed himself, not ill pleased, in the mirror.

"Upon my word it don't look so bad, only this long, flapping veil is confoundedly in the way. And now where's the sacque? A little tight in the sleeve, but otherwise quite a decent fit, if a fellow holds his arms well back. There's Alice's blue muslin dress. I've two minds and a half to put it on, just for the joke of the thing!"

A momentary silence ensued, broken by the rustling of muslin.

"Don't meet round the waist by a good six inches, but I can hold it up. I wonder what makes the thing drag on the floor and cling round one's legs so!

Oh! I know—the crimoline ought to go under."

"For the "dignity of manhood," we are reluctant to chronicle the fact that our hero, intent on his tableau solitaire, did actually stoop and there proceed to the closet, and piratically take down a hoop-skirt, which he solemnly put on.

"Jupiter! how comical it feels!" he ejaculated, with an amused face. "Why, I shouldn't dare to go within a yard of a vase or a statuette, and I'm quite certain I should swamp all the chairs and tables I came near! Bother this trailing muslin—always in the way!"

For Mr. Ross had unthinkly plunged his masculine boot through the delicate fabric of the dress.

"I'm not certain but that I should make quite a nice-looking woman," mused Kenneth strutting backwards and forwards before the mirror, with his "Derby" hat balanced daintily, and the blue muslin revealing about a foot and a half of calf skin boot and trousers. "On the whole—Tomb of the prophet! is that the girls?"

Mr. Ross gave a blindly desperate jerk at his "sacque," and a pull at the crinoline; but all in vain.

The sweet gay voices, intermingled here and there with a ringing laugh, or a snatch of song, drew nearer and nearer.

For an instant Mr. Ross wildly contemplated a rush through the hall to his own door, but a moment's reflection convinced him that such a retreat would be simply impossible.

"I must stay and face it out" he thought with a cold perspiration breaking out on his forehead; "but hold on, there's the closet. It's just possible they will only stay here a few minutes or two.

And Mr. Kenneth Ross, totally oblivious of the "majesty of man," dodged precipitately into the closet, tumbling over his crinoline and muslin in a most disastrous manner, and hopelessly splitting open the seams of poor Alice's sacque.

"Why the deuce did
