Todd-Beauchamp Nuptial.

Miss Annie Elizabeth, only daughter of Mr and Mrs. James Beauchamp and Mr. Chas. E. Todd, were united in holy wedlock at the residence of the bride's parents near Concord on Monday afternoon at half past one o'clock by the Rev. F. J. Cockran. Miss Ella Beauchamp, bride's maid and Mr. Ora Carroll, goomsman, preceeded the bride and groom into the parlor as the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march were being sweetly rendered by Miss Emma Pool. The bride was becomingly attired in military blue poplin with chiffon and pearl trimmings and carried a white prayer book. The parlor had been artistically decorated for the occasion with evergreens and with darkened windows and lighted lamps, the effect was pleasant and beautiful. Miss Beauchamp, a highly accomplished young lady has been one of Caroline's most efficient teachers for several years past. Shortly after the ceremony, dinner was served, after which the happy couple mid showers of rice, left for a trip to Washington and other points of interest, taking with them the good wishes of their many friends. Upon their return. Mr. and Mrs. Todd will reside at Concord, where Mr. Todd is engaged in a thriving mercantile business.

Hicks on February Weather.

The 2nd and 3rd are centres of reactionary storm disturbances which will bring rain and snow. High barometer and cold will ensue, lasting two or three days. A regular storm period is central on the 7th, and from the 6th to the 9th very heavy rains will fall southward and snow northward. Another high barometer and cold wave will come down from northwest about the 8th to 11. It will turn warmer on and touching the 13th and 14th, ending in low barometer and more storms. Change to colder will follow in regular order All these forecasts are amplified and reasons gived in Rev. Irl R. Hicks' almanac. From the 18th to the 21st falls another storm period, in which thunder and rain may be expected southward, snow northward, and a sharp cold wave coming in from northwest. About the 23d to 25th look for return to storm conditions. Barometer will fall, temperature will rise, and storms of rain thunder and wind will visit many sections. Ice gorges and overflowing ttreams will endanger life and property in maud places.

A Strange Dog Said to be Mad.

A strange dog was shot on Gay street on Friday morning after attacking a number of persons on the street. It is not known whether the animal was mad or not. Thursday night a strange dog was in town fighting with other dogs and a colored man was attacked on the street and a piece torn out of his trousers. Later on that evening Mr. Wm. D. Taylor was attacked on the other side of the bridge by a dog answering to the same description of this dog. He sprang at Mr. Taylor's throat but missed his mark and bit him through his pants below the waist and soon disappeared, leaving froth on them at the place where his teeth entered. Friday morning as Miss Ella Collison was crossing the causeway to her work at the shirt factory, she was attacked by the same dog, it is supposed, and although she faught him off the best she could, he tore her dress in several places and bit her slightly on the hand. The young lady was so unnerved that she was compelled to return home, but did not know that she had been bitten until she pulled off her gloves. The wound was cauterized and dressed by Dr. George.

The dog was a medium sized cur or mongrel, black, and had a piece of rawhide belt-lacing around his neck. He carried a large wound on his left thigh where he had been shot or scalled. He was not known or claimed by any one who saw him and any information in regard to him as to whether he was really mad or not, would be appreciated by many persons interested.

A Mild Winter.

The mildness of the present season is almost unprecedented January has gone and there has been practically no snow and very little cold weather. The temperature has been exceptionally stable, with few fluctuations, and the cold snaps have lasted but a short time. It is as though the climate had changed. It is not to be expected, however, that this mildness will continue throughout the winter, for it is the record here that the severest weather comes in the latter part of the winter season and often as late as March. There have been many violent storms in March that have brought intense cold and much snow But it is fair to presume that there will not be any continuous stretch of hard winter weather this year, for even if the elements should begin their onslaught at once they would be most unlikey to keep up an uninterupted assault until spring. So it is probable that the winter of '97-8 will be marked for its "softness," and doubtless in years to come people with good memories will tell of the remarkable open weather of the season now passing. The course of the remainder of the season will be watched with the more interest because of the extraordinary characteros the weeks that have already elapsed.

"THE NEGRO NOT A PROBLEM."

RIDGELY, Jan. 31, 1898.

Editors of the Union:

I do not wish to assume the columns of your valuable paper, but I hope you will give me place enough to express a few remarks upon the article that appeared in the UNION of last week, headed "The Negro not a Problem." The writer of this article shows the ability of a mark and learned writer. He is well acquainted with classic and ancient history. This is very desirable and necessary, yet I hope to call his attention to this portion of his article when he said "In the problem of the negroe's future, the white man is therefore the chief factor. He is the potter, the colored man the clay. It is for the white man to say whether the colored man shall become a well-rounded symmetrical man or be cramped, deformed and dwarfed." This is a statement that I believe no gentleman, white or colored, can truly believe, I can not concur with the writer. The truth is out of sight and no one can see it. The learned gentleman certainly has forgotten part of his ancient history, especially sacred history, which says, "out of one blood God made all nations or men." This is a declarative truth shining brightly upon the pages of history, and has been spoken by Him who knows all things as they are. Please tell us where, when and how did the colored man become clay any more than the white or "chief factor?" This chief factor, as so called, had the negro in hand for two hundred and fifty years and how much that was elevating, uplifting and manily did he make him? When he came from the "potter" he was more deformed than ever befo e a real creature of misery. I write the writer to look at the contrast of two hundred and fifty years and thirty-nine years. What great strides has the Negro made since the old Liberty Bell sounded its first notes of liberty, the honored Frederick Douglass from the slave pen and cotton field has come to the platform, an orator the world needs not to be ashamed, and whose memory will live long in the hearts of his countrymen. It took the white race four hundred years to produce her honored Jas. G. Blaine, but thirty years brought our Douglass and a host of others are stepping in his foot-prints. If the writer will go a little deeper into ancient history he will find that his conclusions of the chief factor is entirely backward. The chief factor has been and is the colored man. Have you not read in history that Ham, one of the sons of Noah, after the flood, went to Egypt and inhabited it. Though it is a stubborn fact, yet true it says that Greece went to Egypt for her learning and art, and the whole world today owes the birth of her art to Egypt, and this is certainly the former home of the Negro. I hope the gentleman will regard these truths in the future and give facts to the world and not say any more we are clay to be formed into something or nothing. Our five senses tell us we are not clay. Only the Infinite God can make clay human, and has not God created us all, or must we be created by the white man? If he waits for the "chief factor" to form and say what he shall be the answer is already now, nothing, or a 'Niger' in chain. He remarks "we will await our appointed time." I am happy to say this is our time; there is no other promised to us.

Improvements in Kent County.

The Chestertown Electric Light Company has decided upon the site for their plant. The company proposes to put in a one-hundred-horse-power engine and boiler and a one-thousand sixteen-candle dynamo. The necessary franchise has been granted by the town and it is expected that the town will be wired and the machinery in operation by April 15th. The capital stock is $15,000.

A move is on foot to secure the incorporation and change of name of the village of Still Pond. The prosperous little town takes its name from a pond near by, which has an habitually unruffled surface and has never had a skim of ice over it. The proposed name is Kentland.

Tomato canners have already commenced to contract with Kent county farmers for fruit for the approaching season. A new cannery has been arranged for at Rock Hall, and at several other places in the county contracts for large acreages have been signed. The prices offered are from $1 to $1.25 more than was paid last year. A greatly increased acreage will be planted.

THE NEWS FROM COOL...

Gathered by our Hustling Reporte Each Week.

At a meeting of the Preston Literary and Musical Club held in December last, Miss Julia Kelley, a member of the club, proposed that the "books purcharsed and used by the club, this winter, be made the nucleus of a town library" and expressed the "hope that we might live to see within the limits of our town, a beautiful building, known as Preston Library, which could but serve as a noble monument to the foresight and intelligence of the citizens of Preston." A library committee was at once appointed, while the building suggestion, naturally revived the old town hall or Preston Dramatic Association, and at a meeting of the library committee, (before any announcement to meet and "take the preliminary steps to form an association to secure for Preston a Town Hall and Library," had ever been given out by the press), the old town hall project was discussed at some length and the amount of money, (not less than fifty or seventy-five dollars), now in the hands of the Treasurer, for that purpose, was fully dwelt upon, but with all due respect to the old Preston Dramatic Association, (the originators of the Town Hall movement); to the Preston Literary and Musical Club, (for resurrecting the old town hall question); and to the Editor of the New Farm, (who has kindly "set the ball in [more rapid] motion"); all honor and glory to the good people of Preston and vicinity, who run their hands down into their pockets and make the town hall of Preston, no longer a visionary or imaginary something but a positive reality. And while this praiseworthy object claims their attention, let them not overlook the town library, is the wish of the writer. It has been suggested that individual members of the Preston Library Association be taxed twenty- five cents annually and families who join the association living in and within a radius of six miles from Preston be taxed $1 each per annum, towards the support of said library which tax will entitle them to all the advantages to be derived from the library and reading room both of which, as well as a town museum we trust in the near future, will be instituted within the walls of the second floor of the new Preston town hall. The first floor of this building being suitably arranged for concerts, lectures and etc., could but ultimately yield to the stock-holders a paying dividend on their money wisely invested in so laudable an enterprise.

Miss Mary S. Stafford at the home of her parents near town pleasantly entertained the Preston Literary and Social Club, last Friday evening.
