IN the last issue of the Journal there appeared an article over the signature of C. H. Whitby, purporting as coming from him, but bearing the ear-marks of the Journal. Be that as it may, if Mr. Whitby allowed his name to be used in making a bad matter appear worse than it would have otherwise appeared, he is to blame for that. The Journal says "Mr. Whitby never asked the editor of the UNION or the commissioners for one dollar more pay for doing the work to which he was elected." We didn't say he did, but we could have done so as we have these facts straight from the commissioners that he did. We can also state that the commissioners were approached on this subject by leading Democrats, which is practically one and the same thing. For Mr. Whitby to talk it around that he would not serve as clerk while others pulled the commissioners' leg, would of course, appear more weighty, they thought. Let us look at this subject from another point. A youth who it was said was to do the work of clerk, was promised the $200, (and perhaps a little more from the regular $1800), has been on the anxious seat for a few weeks past for fear the commissioners could not be induced to allow the extra. Another leading Democrat said they wanted the extra for their sinking fund, while still others had a place where it could be used. There should not, neither do we believe there is any question in the public mind concerning this extra money. If the Democrats could have made their plan [illegible] as they evidently supposed [illegible] the county would be $200 [illegible] and at the same time no better off. But when their "little" scheme was exposed see how quickly the Journal squealed and endeavors [illegible] turn the attention of the unsuspecting by calling it "vicious legislation." Well, let us look into this "vicious legislation." Some time before the election last fall this "vicious legislation" originated in the [illegible] party. [illegible] of a treasurer [illegible] looked doubtful to them, while the General Assembly was considered a certainty. Time, however, proved this prediction a failure and the unexpected happened. Then it was that they found themselves in their own trap, and how to extricate themselves and find favor with the public, caused them some anxiety. "Flushed with partial victory," the Democrats took fresh courage. When the legislature assembled the opportune time came and they sold out root and branch to a few dissatisfied Republicans, which explains the "vicious legislation." They looked upon a division of treasurer's office from a different standpoint. It made a difference with them then whose ox was gored, so their representative told the legislature that Mr. Whitby was entitled to that office and to divide it would do the treasurer-elect an injustice. The bill was held back to the last and then killed to save time for other business. After killing the first bill the associate one which provides for the clerk was practically killed also, but the Democrats were not smart enough to see it. It is said by passing it Mr. Whitby, (or his friends) could ask for additional pay as the bill carried that provision with it. But it was refused by the commissioners and that in no uncertain way. Mr. Whitby goes on and makes an admission not asked for when he said "he talked with the commissioners on the subject and refused to do the work under the new clerk bill." What was that done for if there was not a scheme of some sort on foot? Again, Mr. Whitby says it would take about $200 from his salary. How or why that could be he failed to explain, thinking perhaps it would look better without any. While explanations are in order with the Democrats it is a good time for Mr. Whitby, assisted by the ever-ready writer of the Journal to help its political friends out of unenviable positions, to tell how it was that Overseer of the Poor Allaband got his illegal appointment some days ago.

WILL the Every-Evening be kind enough to inform an anxious public what it thinks of the Hon. L. Irving Handy as the leader of the Democratic party of Delaware this year?—Morning News.

Two men were once discussing art and artists. "What do you think of Jones as an artist?" asked one of his friends. "I never think of Jones as an artist," was the reply.—Every Evening.

Democratic politicians in Delaware are fast losing cast. This is almost as hard on the Congressman as going to Trenton to board [illegible] Cooper and Clark.

THE general expectations of the Pennsylvania Democrats in their State convention a few days ago was not realized. They nominated their State ticket with Geo. A. Jenks, a lawyer of prominence, for Governor. This convention was only a custom the same as former years of setting up a man to be knocked down. But the knocking down has already begun, the free silver advocates getting the first one. They came up smiling and asked for recognition—which they got—not the kind they asked for, but their Democratic brethren thought they needed. They decided to conduct the coming Democratic campaign in a contest involving State issues entirely, and therefore did not need the assistance or endorsement of Mr. Bryan and his free silver heresies for success. A leading Democratic journal highly commends the voters of Pennsylvania on their stand and says the people of that State, like others, have grave local issues to pass upon at the coming election. To inject the issue of free silver coinage into the campaign would be the wildest sort of folly on the part of the Democrats, as it would drive hundreds of voters out of the party. This paper further says that Democracy is to be congratulated on their wise action.

Thinking people are at a loss to see what sense there is in bringing national issues into local politics, unless it is that they really enjoy being set up and knocked down. There is no accounting for some people's taste. All they have seems to be in their mouth.

THE war news of the past few days has been highly pleasing to the public. The good work began last week about the time the hot weather began and the two grew hotter together until all concerned found it pretty warm. Gen. Shafter's men proved themselves to be all that could have been expected of any regiment. They went to battle determined to win. They are reported as never wavering while their comrades fell dead or dying at their side. There is only one regret for the Americans and that is for the 1200 dead and wounded. While that number may seem large to us it is only a drop in the bucket when compared to Spanish losses. Following close in the wake of the land battles comes the glorious triumph of Schley's naval wonder. In destroying Cevera's fleet comprising several millions of dollars he only lost one man, which is the wonder of the naval age, while they lost all their ships and had their commander, Admiral Cervera, taken a prisoner of war. In addition to Cervera fully 1,300 others were captured, besides several hundred killed and wounded, but one American life was lost there. It is now estimated that between 1200 and 1500 Americans are dead, wounded or missing after the fight about Santiago, but a surgeon at the hospital thinks only 250 or 300 Americans were killed.

EFFORTS are still being made by Sec'y Van der Hoogt, of the State Bureau of Immigration, to continue to induce Westerners to take farms in this State. Last year, as a consequence of the work done by the bureau, a number of Hollanders who had lived in Michagan and Iowa came to this State and established the colony known as Wilhelmina, on the Great Choptank. This section attracted them because it has many characteristics similar to those of their native land, such as an absence of hills and the possession of a multitude of water ways. Other new comers bought farms in other sections of Marvland, but all of them were delighted to find homes in a State where the winters are mild and the summers productive. Westerners have discovered that there is a quantity of good farming land in this State, and their attention is turned to the many advantages of this shore. All who want work are welcome; those who don't will please stay away as we have all we want of the latter class.

BUT few people know that the music of the "Star-Spangled Banner" is of English oregin. It was first set to the words of an old English drinking song entitled "Anacreon in Heaven." The tune was composed by J. Stafford Smith, between 1770 and 1775, to words by Ralph Tomlinson, president of the Anacreonic Society, whose meetings were held at the old Crown and Anchor Tavern, in the Stand, London. The tune was published in London. "The Star Spangled Banner," was first sung in a tavern near the Holiday Street Theatre, Baltimore, by Ferdinand Durang. It was first printed by Capt. Benjamin Eades, Baltimore, at the Baltimore American.

THE new law abolishing three days of grace on negotiable paper went into effect in Delaware on Friday, and hereafter a note payable in thirty days must be paid in that time, and not in thirty-three days. This law puts the Diamond State in line with other states along this line. Stage-coach days are being abolished by our neighbor.

IN the U. S. Senate last week a vote of thanks was not only tendered Lieutenant Hobson, but included the seamen also, for their courage in sinking the Merrimac in the mouth of the harbor of Santiago de Cuba. This is the first time, it is said, that Congress has honored with a vote of thanks the ordinary seamen. It is not that the men before the mast have not been heroes, but is not often that an occasion arises where it is possible to select a few men who are entitled to recognition. The honor as it is and as it should be is the greatest in the gift of the nation, must be reserved for acts of conspicuous gallantry. In this case Congress has acted wisely and the public at large would give signs of their appreciation if an occasion arises. Their courage is remembered by a grateful people.

ACCORDING to the dispatches from Gen. Shafter, there are several lines of wire fence, full of sharp points, in front of the Spanish intrenchments at Santiago, forming a fence that is intended to turn man or beast. This barbed-wire fencing which our soldiers had to encounter is the same our farmers discarded some years ago on account of its cruelty to live stock, is a popular thing with the Spaniards, who rely on it not only to hold in check turbulant Cubans, but the aggressive Americans. Our people are thoroughly conversant with the way the Spanish fight, provided them selves with wire-cutters, so that they could readily remove the obstructions.

ONE million quinine pills have been sent to the army at Santiago, which is necessary in tropical climates. A three months' supply of other medicines have been provided. The need of quinine was brought to the attention of the department in a telegram received by Gen. Miles from one of his aides, when he said one of the needs of the insurgents is quinine. The U. S. army, said Gen. Sternberg, is equipped with a large supply.

THE cruiser St. Paul has proven to be a war ship when viewed from a Spanish view. It crippled a torpedo boat, drove two warships into cover and sank another ship loaded with Spanish supplies. This clearly demonstrates the worth of able gunners of Capt. Sigsbee's class.
