BITS ABOUT WOMEN.

The women of Berlin have tired of the wheel and horseback riding, and are now devoting themselves energetically to athletic exercises.

The life of Miss Jenner, who died in Wales recently, affords a curious parallel to that of Miss Flite in "Bleak House." She had a suit in court for 40 years.

Mrs. Alton B. Parker, wife of the New York chief justice, is a good equestrienne and spends many pleasant hours riding with her husband about the country.

Sallie J. S. White, Kentucky's first colored female lawyer, on May 10 received her degree from the Central Law school of the Colored State university.

Miss Mignon Palmer, a daughter of Emma Nevada, the opera singer, has entered the operatic field, and it is quite likely that mother and daughter will present the rare spectacle of appearing on the stage together.

Few people are aware that the present duchess of Manchester, who was Miss Helen Zimmerman, of Cincinnati, was a cousin of the novelist, George Eliot. The mother of the duchess was a daughter of Abraham Eliot, a first cousin of the father of Marion Evans, or "George Eliot."

Madame Kioshi Sugawa, wife of the director of the Japanese exhibits at the St. Louis exposition, is a woman of progressive ideas. Madame Sugawa is a graduate of the Peeress school of Aokyo, where only ladies of noble birth are admitted. She is also a clubwoman, being a charter member of the Imperial Woman's association of Japan, a social and educational organization.

Miss Inez Callamore, a handsome San Francisco girl of 24, after repeated rebuffs, was given permission to descend in eight fathoms of water off the Golden Gate for the purpose of examining the hull of a sunken vessel. Four men divers had been there before her, but she accomplished more than all of them put together. Miss Callamore's father has been a diver on the Pacific coast for many years.

POINTS ABOUT PEOPLES.

Married couples in Norway are privileged to travel on railways at a fare and a half.

A Japanese bride gives her wedding presents to her parents, as some slight recompense for their trouble in bringing her up.

An early Anglo-Saxon custom, strictly followed by newly-married couples, was that of drinking diluted honey for 30 days after marriage. From this custom comes the word honeymoon, or honeymonth.

In order to capture fish a certain South American tribe whip the water with the wood of a tree which contains a substance having a narcotic influence on the fish. They are thus stupefied and readily caught.

When the Dyaks of Borneo have to decide which of two parties is in the right, they each have a lump of salt of the same size given them to drop into water, and he whose lump first dissolves is deemed to be in the wrong.

In Westphalia the peasants, on hearing the cuckoo for the first time, roll over and over on the grass, in order to insure themselves against lumbago and kindred pains for the rest of the year. It is considered to be a very favorable sign if the bird repeats his cry while they are on the ground.

The Turkish woman is marriageable at the age of nine years, and by Turkish law, at that age, if married, she is competent to manage her property and dispose of one-third of her fortune. The law allows her to abandon her husband's house for just cause, and will protect her in so dong. She cannot be compelled to labor for the support of her husband.

TICKLESOME TRIFLES.

Wisdm comes now and then from young mouths. A tenement house inspector in New York heard herself described by a child not long ago as "only one of those suspectors."

Many tributes have been paid to the trained nurse, but never a better one than that spoken by a New York politician on his deathbed. "See here, little girl," said he, "you've been up all night, tending me like an angel. I'll know them when I see the real kind."

A Vermont clergyman, complaining of the small salaries paid to ministers, is reported to have said that a man cannot support a sealskin wife on a muskrat income. The answer to that is that every preacher of the Gospel should make up his mind to be content with muskrat if it keeps out the wind.

"The yeas seem to have it, but the nays have made the most noise," was the expressive way in which Speaker Cannon not long ago announced the result of a vote in the house of representatives. This is not an uncommon human experience. Opposition makes itself more loudly heard, in proportion to numbers, than approval. Many a child hears more of the things that he may not do than of those which are commended to im.

RUMORED OF ROYALTY.

Alfonso, king of Spain, devotes his afternoons to athletics.

Emperor William is to erect a monument on the spot where he killed his thousandth deer.

The Austrian emperor recently shot his two thousandth chamois. It has been stuffed and set up in the Hofburg.

Princess Angelbert von Arenberg wore 400 large diamonds and rubies at a ball given recently to the prince and princess of Wales at Vienna.

King Edward has a rare fraudulent clock given him in India and said to have been made by a priest in the highest sanctity. Its works bear the name of a well known London house.

A Long-Felt Want.

"This is an interesting clock, miss," said the salesman; "you really should have one, especially if you're bothered with tiresome callers."

"Why," replied Miss Pechis, "it's only a 'cuckoo clock,' isn't it?"

"Yes, but, beginning at ten o'clock, instead of saying Cuck-oo!' every quarter hour, it says 'Go home! go home!' "—Philadelphia Press.

Three for Twenty-Five.

Judge—I fine you ten dollars.

Prisoner—Don't you give any discount to regular customers?—Town Topics.

WORLD'S FAIR GOSSIP.

A miniature house, completely furnished, each piece carved with a pocketknife, the work of a St. Joseph (Mo.) teamster, will be exhibited at the world's fair.

A number of Dublin men have been engaged to take their jaunting cars to St. Louis and ply for hire in the streets of that city during the exhibition.

Special cups offered by individuals will be given to winners in the Olympic games at the world's fair. These cups will be given outright in addition to the regular gold medal.

Waterway excursions will be run between Pittsburg and St. Louis during the world's fair. Twenty-one days will be required to make the round trip, giving visitors six days at the world's fair.

The staff of the Emergency hospital at the world's fair is now treating an average of 50 cases a day. Last month the number of cases was 1,466. Since the organization of the hospital a total of 5,673 cases have been treated. Of these 3,500 were surgical cases due to injury.

Young Women's Christian associations throughout the country are doing a philanthropic and useful work in providing safeguards for young women who may visit the world's fair alone. A part of the work consists in recommending safe and fair-priced boarding-places in St. Louis; and this service applies not only to prospective visitors, but to the large number of girls who seek employment in St. Louis during the fair. In addition, the association will have representatives at railroad stations and at other designated places, as well as on the fair grounds, so that any woman, young or old, who may find herself in need of information or advice, may be sure to get both from a trustworthy source.

FROM FOREIGN FIELDS.

The proportion of divorces to marriages in Japan is one to four.

Primary agricultural schools are now established in 12 cities of Saxony.

English coal is used as far as possible on Japanese warships because the Japanese coal gives off much more smoke.

Gold-yielding quartz has been discovered in the Carpathian mountains near Maiden. The production at present is about 34 grains to the ton.

In Spain the old clothes man wears as many of his old clothes as he can, because it makes him look prosperous, and thereby invites custom.

Japan is everywhere rich in waterpower; consequently, even in small country towns where there are electric lights and local telephone lines.

Built in 1232, and made famous by Burns, the old bridge of Ayr has been ordered to be closed, being unsafe for traffic. The repairs will cost £5,000.

Rhodesia, South Africa, is the most expensive place in South Africa at present. A drink costs 62 cents, a hair cut 75 cents, and all the ordinary requirements of life in proportion.

The playing of golf on Sundays is practiced to such an extent that in a certain parish in England, it is said, the hour of services has been changed to suit the convenience of players.

The population of Korea, as shown by a monograph just issued by the bureau of statistics is 15,000 in round numbers, its area about equal to that of the state of Kansas, and its foreign commerce at about $12,000,000, of which imports form about $7,500,000.

SAID OF CELEBRITIES.

Gen. Booth, of the Salvation Army, is 75 years old, and works as hard as ever.

Senator Depew says the best after dinner speaker he ever knew was Gladstone at 80 and the next best was Simon Cameron at 90.

Senator Beveridge, of Indiana, takes great interest in military affairs and while in the Philippines spent much time on the firing line with Gen. Lawton.

Of our recent war governors, Mr. Taft went from the Philippines to the war department; Dr. Wood is a major general in the regular army, and Gov. Hunt will leave Porto Rico for the federal bench.

Among distinguished users of tobacco there are few more prominent than J. Pierpont Morgan. He is a heavy cigar smoker and has them made for him especially in Havana. Each has a red band with gold lettering and the initials "J. P. M."

In spite of the accident on board the Missouri the men behind the guns in the United States navy are still making records for quick firing. The battleship Maine, for instance, has beaten the American record, and probably the world's record, in target practice with six-inch guns, some of them having been loaded and fired repeatedly in 6 2-3 seconds, with seven hits out of nine shots fired.

IN HUMOROUS VEIN.

A New York burglar got away with 14,000 pennies the other night. What a great old time he must be having with the chewing gum machines!

The Massachusetts Daughters of the American Revolution declare that Paul Revere was an immoral man. He was certainly a great old night owl.

The Ohio supreme court has decided that a man is boss of his own home and of his mother-in-law. And dear mamma laughs grimly in her sleeve.

A hygienic magazine discovers that certain colors and patterns of dining room wall paper will cause indigestion. And all this time we'd been blaming the pie!

A Kansas City man died suddenly "while sitting in his chair relating an anecdote." And the irreverent papers are drawing a parallel between his case and that of Ananias.—Indianapolis Journal.

No Sinecure.

Mrs. Penhecker—You know that you only married me for my money.

Mr. Penhecker—Well, you can't say that I haven't earned it.—Ally Sloper.

Just a Hint.

"What music most appeals to you?" he asked.

"A wedding march," she replied, blushing.—Chicago Post.

To Cure Constipation

Expansion.

"So you have quit selling gold bricks and conducting bunco games," said the old-time pal.

"Yes," answered Mr. Conne. "It is foolish to run around the streets picking up a thousand here or there. The thing to do now is to open an office and have people send you the money by mail."—Washington Star.

Including All.

"I suppose," said the newspaper clerk, who was fixing up the death notice, "You'll want the regular form: 'Relatives and friends are respectfully invited, etc.'?"

"Lemme see," replied the widower, "mebbe you'd better say: 'Relatives and friends, also the neighbors.' "—Philadelphia Press.

That's No Lie.

Some men are natural leaders born,
And some are poets made;
Some win fame through politics,
And some get coin in trade;
But of the entire crowd on earth
These form but a small slice,
For the average man prefers to stand
Around and give advice.
—Cincinnati Enquirer.

IMPORTANT OMISSION.

"What books are those you are packing, Henry?"

"These—It's that set of One Hundred Best Books that fool agent got me to buy last fall."

"O yes. I looked all through them this morning for something that would give instructions on how to pack books."—Chicago Tribune.

A Ballad of a Bad Baby.

Alexander Michaelvitski,
Wouldn't mind a little bitski.
Mamma took her slipperouski
To the shed behind the houski—
Took her son across her lapski,
Giving him a spankski slapski.
Since that time his mamma's joyski
Is a model Russian boyski.
—Boston Globe.

His Programme Arranged.

"I know what you've come here for," said little Willie. "You're going to ask my sister to be your wife."

"Oh! Why do you think so?"

"'Cause I heard her tellin' ma she was going to git you in a corner tonight and make you say it."—Chicago Record-Herald.

His Excuse.

"How dare you, sir!" exclaimed the indignant girl.

"I couldn't help it, Maud," pleaded the now penitent young man. "You were so maddeningly kissable!"

Still, it was fully ten seconds before she quite forgave him.—Chicago Tribune.

Her Experience.

"This race problem is a dreadful thing."

"Yes," answered young Mrs. Torkins; "whenever I see Charley get a pencil and begin to figure on the entries in a race I know there's going to be trouble."—Washington Star.

Another Sufferer.

Johnny—Dad, what do you call a man when his wife dies?

Father—A widower.

Johnny—And what would you call him if he married again?

Father—A blithering idiot.—Ally Sloper.

The Popular Idea of It.

"What's the matter with your husband, Mrs. Gribbleson?"

"Oh, the doctor says he's been workin' too hard."

"Why, I thought he held a political office."—Chicago Record-Herald.

One May Wish.

Tommy—Ma, I wish you'd gimme some cake.

Mother—Tommy! Didn't I tell you not to ask for cake?

Tommy—I ain't askin'; I'm jest wishin'.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.
