The bazaar of Apache Tribe of Red Men, Perryville, netted $338.33.

Thrown in adjusting a belt, W. C. Harvey, of North East, sustained a compound fracture of an arm.

Maryland Court of Appeals has reversed Cecil Court in granting Dr. L. G. Taylor, of Perryville, an absolute divorce.

There is no cough medicine so popular as Foley's Honey and Tar. it never fails to cure coughs, colds, croup and bronchitis. Sold by C. H. Redden, Denton, Md.

Rev. E. L. Hoffecker, the new Superintendent of the Wilmington M. E. District, has arrived in Wilmington and established his residence.

Convicted in Cecil Court on the charge of assault with intent to kill, Carrie Hawkins, colored, was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary.

John Behen, of Dover, cut a bunch of asparagus from his patch Wednesday, March 30. This is about fifteen days earlier than usual for that section.

Good results always follow the use of Foley's Kidney Pills. They give prompt relief in all cases of kidney and bladder disorders, are healing strengthening and antiseptic. Try them. Sold by C. H. Redden, Denton, Md.

Postmaster M. Howard Jester's quarterly report shows a business increase at the Wilmington Post office, compared with the first quarter in last year, of more than $7,000.

Upon going to Elkton to take charge of a corpse, Robert Jones, an undertaker, of Newark, Del., was arrested by Sheriff McAllister, charged with burying a body last June without a permit.

The Palmer Home for the Aged, at Dover, has received word that, under the will of the late William S. Vaux, Jr., the architect who designed the building, it is to receive an annuity from his estate.

The spring run of yellow perch in Queen Anne's water is over. White perch and herring are now becoming plentiful and in a few weeks shad will also be decidedly conspicuous. Prices have been moderate all season.

Millard Dickerson, colored, was arrested and lodged in Easton jail a few days ago, charged with an attempted assault upon Miss Annie Grund, of Easton. He bears wounds on his face, supposed to have been inflicted with a hat pin used by Miss Grund to beat him off and a scar on his finger, which she bit when he attempted to choke her.

Hon. John C. Higgins, of Delaware City, has sold to parties in Ohio, 40 head of Guernsey cows and heifers, for which he received $6,000. This is an average of $150.00 per head, and is another demonstration that it pays to raise thoroughbred cattle. All of Mr. Higgins' stock is registered, and he takes great pride in his well selected herd.

A number of Queen Anne's farmers contemplate the raising of peas for the Caroline factories. These canneries are very plentiful in that county and farmers there have found the growing of this product very profitable. While there are no establishments of this sort in Queen Annes, there is no reason why our farmers should not take advantage of Caroline's enterprise.—Observer.

The Green Spring Valley Fox Hunting Club has returned to their homes on the Western Shore, after spending several weeks behind the hounds in Queen Annes and Kent woodlands and fields. The club had with them forty-five horses and about 100 hounds. For the past two years they have been coming to these counties every spring, and have always had fine sport.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Short, of Dover, on Wednesday, March 30, at 1.30 o'clock, when their daughter, Alda Mae, was married to Mr. Arlington Lee Price, of Harrington. The bride was beautifully dressed in white messaline and carried a shower bouquet of carnations. The wedding march was rendered by Miss Pearl Short, of Kenton. After a reception the newly married couple left on the 3.50 train for points north. Mr. and Mrs. Price will reside near Harrington.

Dig Ice From Sand Dunes.

Drinking lemonade cooled by snow and ice dug from under beach sands was the strange experience of a party of Lewes people who enjoyed an outing on the beach at Cape Henlopen last Thursday.

The party on arriving at their picnic grounds found that the ice had been forgotten.

It looked as if a cooling drink would be out of question, when one of the older members of the party stated that he had often heard of ice and snow from the winter being covered up with the shifting sands and keeping for years. He suggested that the party look for sand mounds and then dig down for ice.

In a few moments a number of sand piles were found where ice and snow were as plentiful and as well preserved as if in an ice house. The party had plenty of ice for their lemonade and enjoyed a snowballing contest in addition.

Dr. Rose 76 Years "Young."

Monday of last week was the 76th anniversary of the birth of Dr. Chas. H. Rose, of Cordova. In honor of the event, Dr. Ashby, of Baltimore, introduced in the House of Delegates a resolution which was passed by a unanimous vote and ordered spread upon the minutes as follows:

Whereas, The Honorable Charles H. Rose, a member of this House from the county of Talbot, has this day reached the venerable age of 76 years, sound in body and mind, and active in the service of the people of this State; and

Whereas, The Honorable Charles H. Rose is the oldest member of this House and was a member of this House during the session of 1868, forty two-years ago;

Therefore be it Resolved, That this House now extends to Dr. Rose its warmest congratulations on this 76th anniversary of his birth, and expresses the high esteem and respect in which he is held and its best wishes for his future health and happiness.

Teachers not Qualified.

In an address before a gathering of public school teachers and parents in Milton, Del., Superintendent E. J. Hardesty created a sensation when he stated that there is a scarcity of teachers in Sussex county and "that there are seventy-five teachers filling positions who are totally unfitted for the work" Leading educators of the county say such a condition is due to the Summer schools, which take boys and girls without a proper common school education and in two months turn them out as finished products. It is said Superintendent Hardesty intends stopping this state of affairs and a general weeding out is looked for next year. In commenting on the lack of good teachers the small pay given in Sussex county was brought out. In the country districts, $40 a month for seven months, or $280 a year is the prevniling salary. In view of this fact it is expected a bill will be introduced in the next Legislature providing larger salaries.

Lost Delaware Sailors Return.

Clouds of gloom and sorrow have been hovering over the little town of Bethel, Delaware, for the past four months, caused by the reported loss of the schooner Edgar C. Ross, with her captaln and crew of six men.

Captain Reuben Quillen and his crew all have homes at Bethel and there was great rejoicing when a telegram brought the news that they were all safe on a steamer bound for a foreign port.

A few days ago there came a wireless messag that they were homeward bound 100 miles from New York. The news created great rejoicing in Bethel and Mrs. Quillen and several relatives took the train for that city and the party with the returning mariners is expected home today. An elaborate reception has been planned and every house in the vilhas been decorated for the occasion.

The Edgar C. Ross sailed from Charleston, S. C., on December 22, with a cargo of lumber bound for New York. She was caught in a heavy storm and wrecked. The crew was picked up by another ship and carried to Buenos Ayres, South America, and set sail for this country on March 10.

Redden Denton Maryland.

GOOD YEAR FOR M. D. & V.

The Annual meeting of the stockholders of the Maryland, Delaware & Virginla Railway Company was held in Wilmington on Thursday of last week. The report submitted of the business for 1909 was the most satisfactory report since the Pennsylvania Railroad took over the property.

In the report the gross earnings of the Company for the year are placed at $782,760 as compared with $743,569 for 1908, thus making a gain for 1909 of $39,191. The net earnings of the company for the 12 months ending December 1st are given as $98,817 as compared with $75,904.49 for the previous 12 months, the gain in net revenues for the year being $25,912.51.

From this statement contained in the report it will be seen that the Maryland, Delaware and Virginia came nearer earning the interest on its fixed charges than it has since its organization. The interest charges of the company amount to about $100,000, and according to the report submitted to the stockholders the fact can be gleaned that the company earned within a little over $1,000 on its bonded indebtedness.

The old Board of Directors was elected at the meeting together with the present officers. Mr. W. U. Polk is Superintendent, I. E. Jones Division Freight and passenger agent and George F. Sharpley, Train Master, occupying the same positions as they occupy in the Baltimore, Chesapeake & Atlantic Railway organization.

Those posted on the condition of the M. D. & V. Railway say that the prospects for the road making a better showing during the present year are extremely flattering. General manager Thompson is very optimistic on the final outcome of the road. He says it cannot help but be a money-maker in the very near future.

Considerable money is being spent on the road this year for new rails and better equipment. The depot properties along the line at many places are also being improved.

Root's Onion Illustration.

Senator Elihu Root's onion story, told at a recent dinner, is an illustration of the difficulty of concealing evil practices.

"Take the case," said Mr. Root, "of old John Bodewin. John was a lawyer's confidential clerk, and he had the pernicious habit of going to a neighboring saloon every morning at 11 o'clock and taking a small glass of whisky. He was not proud of this habit; hence, after the whisky he always took a clove.

"But one morning it happened that there were no cloves on the bar, and John, after having considered the matter, ate a small onion from the free-lunch tray. That would destroy the telltale whisky odor, no doubt, as well as the clove had done, and so thinking he returned to his desk.

"It was a double desk. At it he and his employer sat face to face. John, on his return, was soon aware that his employer noticed something. The man's nostrils quivered, he sniffed, and finally with a grimace of disgust he broke out:

"'Look here, John, I've stood whisky and clove for 19 years, but I draw the line at whisky and onions."—New York Herald.

Scrambled Eggs.

A problem for the Interstate Commerce Commission is reported in the following:

While running their automobile on State street, Delmar, on Saturday afternoon, Drs. S. H. Whayland and F. E. Hatch caused an accident which may prove a puzzle for the authorities.

The automobile was running in Delaware, and a farmer on the Maryland side was driving a mule to a wagon which contained 17 doz. eggs. The auto scared the mule, which became unmanageable and ran away, and the eggs were thrown across the street breaking them in Delaware.

The farmer, sustaining a loss of several dollars at the price now paid for eggs, says he will sue. The question is, In what state will he bring suit? He was not in Delaware, but all his loss was.

ONE CONDUCTOR WHO WAS CURED.

Mr. Wilford Adams is his name, and he writes about it.—"Some time ago I was confined to my bed with chronic rheumatism. I used two bottles of Foley's Kidney Remedy with good effect, and the third bottle put me on my feet again, and I resumed work as conductor on the Lexington, Ky., Street Railway. It gave me more relief than medicine I had ever used, and it will do all you claim in cases of rheumatism." Foley's Kidney remedy cures rheumatism by eliminating the uric acid from the blood. An indignant subscriber recently wrote to an editor in the west: "I don't want my paper any longer." To which the editor replied: "That's all right. I wouldn't make it any longer if you did, because in that case I would have to buy a new press. The present length just suits me, and I am glad it suits you."

The report of the Board of Public Works of Lewes, Del., shows a remarkable saving to the town since it has owned its own water and electric lighting plant and furnishes an excellent argument to the advocates of municipal ownership, in which every citizen of Lewis is a firm believer. The plant has turned over to the town $1,700 for the year's work and saves it $2,300 for lighting and water paid in other years, forming a net profit upon the experiment of $4,000.

Superintendents Carroll and Spaid of Kent and Sussex counties, in Delaware, have decided to hold a joint Teacher's Institute in Dover on November 21st, 22nd, and 23rd next. This combining of the two institutes will bring to the State Capitol over 300 teachers. The evening programs will include Dr. Cathall, of Iowa, a celebrated lecturer, for the first evening, and for the second evening the College Singing Girls. The attraction for the third evening will be the Catherine Ridgeway Co.

Milford people were much surprised last Thursday when it was announced that Wallace Steward Handy, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Handy, had on Monday taken an automobile drive to Harrington and there married Miss Frances Bowers, of St, Leonard, England. Miss Bowers had been a guest of Mrs. Handy for the past three weeks. She is of a good family and is quite wealthy. Mr. Handy is a graduate of the Columbia University, at Washington, D. C., and also attended the law school at Yale, but was compelled to stop his studies on account of poor health. After a wedding tour the couple will visit Mrs. Handy's former home in England, and then return to this country where they will make their future home.

What To Do in Case of Fire.

Attics and closets are the breeding places of many fires. An attic is generally the asylum for all sorts of inflammable material, and as it never is properly ventilated it becomes a fire incubator when the summer sun strikes the roof.

Among the odds and ends that make up the contents of the average attic are old varnished furniture, dry as tinder, rags, many of them greasy and ripe for spontaneous combustion, painting oils, liable to make fire when the sun beats on the roof, broken toys and old clothes, the pockets of which may contain matches. Attics and garrets often have a temperature of 110 degrees Fahrenheit, which is the ignition point for matches.

Floor sweepings under furniture or in a closet are liable to take fire spontaneously or from a flying match head. Sawdust used in sweeping floors, if left in a corner where there is no current of air to carry off the heat it generates, is very likely to become hot enough to ignite itself.

A preparation advertised for sweeping carpets is composed of sawdust, sand and a mineral oil, to give it color, together with tincture of benzine to give it odor, according to Good Housekeeping. Fires have started spontaneously from heaps of this material. Greasy overalls kept in a tight wardrobe have been known to ignite.

The most dangerous closet is that under a stairway, because inflammable materials may hide there and if a fire starts in it the best avenue of escape from upper stories is cut off.

Furnace ashes in tho cellar have in them so much fine coal and litter that they are liable to spontaneous combustion if an open window permits them to get wet by a rain storm. The fine coal from the winter's supply may ignite if wet.

Playing with fire and matches by children is a prolific source of fires in residences.

One's ability to extinguish a starting fire depends upon intelligence and self control. If the blaze is just starting throw water on the burning material, not on the blaze. One bucket of water will do more good if thrown on by handfuls or with a broom than if thrown on at once. A small fire may be smothered with a rug or blanket, or beaten out with a wet broom.

If you cannot put the fire out in a minute give an alarm at once. Do not leave a door open when you run out to give an alarm. If the doors and windows are closed when a fire starts you may be able to get the firemen there in time to put it out while it is in only one room. The fire soon consumes all the oxygen in a closed room and may die out if it gets no fresh air.

After the firemen are called work at getting out the things you want most to save. Don't throw the clock from the window and then carry out your clothing, as some persons have done.

If awakened in the night by the smell of fire don't dress. Wrap yourself in a blanket or quilt from the bed and get out the quickest way you can. Shut the doors you pass through. After calling help look in and see where and what is the danger. If the fire is on the first floor it is very dangerous to go above, because heat and smoke ascend.

One can often get out through a hall filled with smoke by going on hands and knees when one would fall if they ran. Smoke is thickest at the ceiling. Holding a wet towel or anything made of wool, or even a coat collar over the mouth greatly lessens the danger of injury to the lungs or death from the carbonic acid gas in the smoke.

If a man is in a burning building with no fire escape and the stair below is burning or the hall filled with smoke, he should shut the door and transom to keep out the gases. Then he should throw open the window to get fresh air and to let the firemen and neighbors see where he is, so that they may bring a ladder to the window.

THE SOUND SLEEP OF GOOD HEALTH.

The restorative power of sound sleep can not be over estimated and any ailment that prevents it is a menace to health. J. L. Southers, Eau Claire, Wis., says:—"For a long time I have been unable to sleep soundly nights, because of pains across my back and soreness of my kidneys. My appetite wa very poor and my general condition was much run down. I have been taking Foley's Kidney Pills but a short time and now sleep as sound as a rock. I eat and enjoy my meals and myg eneral condition is much improved. I can honestly recommend Foley's Kidney Pills as I know they have cured me Sold by C. H. Redden, Denton, Md.

The Man who never Made Mistakes.

As Mr. Jervis, the assistant bank cashier, was about to close for the day the little window behind which he stood, the door swung suddenly open and a man walked hastily in. "Young man," he said "you made a mistake this morning when you cashed that check for me."

Mr. Jervis glanced severely at the speaker, a middle-aged man, in plain farmer's attire.

"We never make mistakes, sir." he answered haughtily.

"You 'never make mistakes?"' repeated the farmer.

"No sir. If there is anything wrong you should have mentioned it when you drew the money."

"Just so, but, you see, I was in a big hurry. I glanced it over, and thought it was all right, but when I got home I found—"

"We can't help that, interrupted the cashier, "you might have lost or spent it for all we know. If there has been any mistake, it is your's and can't be helped now, it being our inflexible rule not to rectify errors made by customers after leaving the bank."

"All right," said the farmer buttoning up his coat and turning to the door. "My name is Johnson. I live just five miles out on the Milltown road. It is a long way to come, but I don't mind it. I feel more than repaid by the chance it has afforded me of seeing what I never expected to look upon in this life—a man who never makes mistakes."

The following day the cashier sat examining his balance sheet, a look of perplexity and dismay in his countenance. Every check taken by the bank was before him, every dime paid out had passed through his hands, and yet, in spite of all his efforts, there was a deficit of forty-five dollars. "Where could the money have gone, and what should he do about it?" Suddenly there flashed upon his mind the recollection of the man who had called the day before. Could it be possible that the mistake he mentioned was against the bank? Yea it must be so. There was no other way to account for it.

An hour later, as Mr. Johnson sat in his garden, resting after a day in the hayfield, his acquaintance of the day before turned in at the gate and strode up to him.

"My name is Jervis. I am cashier of the Bloomingdale Bank," he began confusedly.

Mr. Johnson stood up. "O yes, I remember," he said, "the man who never makes mistakes. Proud to see you at my home sir. My dear," turning to his wife, "this is the young man I was telling you about. As I was saying, we do not meet such people every day."

Mr. Jervis turned very red. Dropping into the chair that Mr. Johnson considerately placed for him, he blurted out.

"Mr. Johnson, I am forced to acknowledge that I did make a very serious mistake when I cashed that check for you yesterday morning, giving you a fifty-dollar bill instead of a five."

"That was what I supposed after I got home, and thinking you would be uneasy, I lost no time in going back to make the matter right. I should hardly have taken so long a ride, however, at such a busy season had I known your rule to be so inflexible as to the rectifying of mistakes."

"But I want to have it rectified," was the alarmed and excited response. "It is no joke with me, but a serious matter."

"I am far from regarding it in the light of a joke," said the farmer, coolly. "Still, I see no reason why any difference should be made because the mistake happens to be in my favor."

"Come, father," interposed Mrs. Johnson, "why do you tease the poor fellow so? You know you put the money away for him. Do go and get it."

Thus adjured, Mr. Johnson got the money fro m the house and handed it to the cashier.

Mr. Jervis' fingers closed over it with feelings of joy and thankfulness that he vainly strove to put into words.

"One moment, young man," said Mr. Johnson, as his visitor turned to leave, "Solomon says: 'He who answereth a matter before he hear eth it, it is a folly and shame unto him.' If you had waited a moment and heard what I had to say yesterday, you would have been spared this mortification and trouble. To this let me add something of my own: Don't be so sure again that you never make mistakes.—American Boy.

To Assist Charitable Institution.

Under the will of William S. Vaux, Jr., the Philadelphia architect, who designed the Palmer Home for Old Folks, at Dover, that institution will eventually receive a handsome legacy. Mr. Vaux died several years ago and recently the managers of the home were notified to go to Philapelphia where they would hear interesting news from the attorney in charge of the estate. G. M. Jones made the trip and was informed that under the will of Mr. Vaux, who was unmarried, his estate would go to his father during his lifetime and then to his sister. At her death the estate reverts to a number of charitable institutions, the Dover home to be a beneficiary to the extent of one tenth of the estate. It is thought that the home will eventually receive from $500 to $600 a year from the estate.—Dover Index.
